Hettler hearings start Thurs.; testimony to be made public

Two student discipline committees will hear testimony behind closed doors this week on charges against Chuck Hettler and Phi Delta Theta Colony.

Bill Mahoney, chairman pro tempore of Student Council and chairman of Council's discipline committee, announced at yesterday's Council meeting that the discipline committee would begin hearing testimony this Thursday at 2 p.m. Mahoney said that the hearing itself would be closed, but that testimony would be tape recorded and released following the hearing.

Hettler is charged with having an illegal Greek affiliation with Phi Delta Theta Colony and thus has allegedly misrepresented himself as a Council representative-at-large. The Student Government constitution stipulates that no representative-at-large may be a Greek.

Bill Jones, Council representative who filed formal charges against Hettler, named John F. Greenman, junior American studies major and former Jambar editor, as the prosecutor for the case.

Hettler said he didn't know who would represent him at the hearing. Mahoney said both the prosecution and the defense had until noon on Wednesday to submit their list of witnesses for the hearing.

Members of the discipline committee are Mahoney, Bob Berquist, senior in engineering, and James LaRosa, junior business major.

The IFC Judicial Court will hold a hearing on Wednesday to hear charges against Phi Delta Theta Colony arising from the Hettler incident. Dave Fleischer, IFC president, said yesterday that IFC would hear charges brought forth by Pete Isgro, former president of Student Government and currently a graduate student. Isgro charged that the colony had violated IFC rules by not officially submitting a bid nor including Hettler on the fraternity's roster.

IFC Judicial Court is made up of two elected and two appointed members of IFC.

Rash of forged parking stickers on the decline; prosecution may pend

The rash of forged parking stickers that was reported in last Friday's Jambar seems to have fallen off according to Mr. Paul Cress, Chief of YSU's security force. He said yesterday that the force has not found any of the forged stickers in the last two days.

Mr. Cress stated that the security force had about twenty-two forged stickers and that he is considering the prosecution of the users of these forged permits. He said that he will see the county prosecutor sometime in the future about whether it would be advisable to prosecute the offenders. He also indicated that the offenders may be referred to the University's Discipline Committee for possible action.

U.S. Defense Dept. asks draft of doctors

WASHINGTON AP — The Defense Department asked the Selective Service System to draft 2,100 doctors this year in the first call up of physicians since 1969.

The Pentagon said the call up of physicians, osteopaths and dentists was needed because too few medical school graduates have volunteered for military service.

Beginning in July, 1,531 doctors of medicine, 77 doctors of osteopathy and 536 dentists will be drafted into the Army, Navy and Air Force for a period of two years active duty.

Dr. Louis M. Rousselot, assistant secretary of defense for health and environment, recommended to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird last month that he approve a call up of physicians after two warnings to the medical community went unheeded.

In an open letter last August, Rousselot reported a 40 per cent drop in voluntary applications. This decline was believed to total more than 2,000 medical school graduates. Rousselot indicated in an interview last month that the situation had not improved since his last warning went out five months ago.

Nixon asks Congress for more student aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress again yesterday to revamp federal aid programs for college students to help an additional one million young people.

The President's call came in a message to Congress that repeated his reform proposals of last year.

"The program which I am again submitting this year would benefit approximately one million more students that are currently receiving aid," Nixon said.

"It would assure that federal funds go first, and in the largest amounts, to the neediest students in order to place them on an equal footing with students from higher-income families," he said.

The President's proposals to shift major responsibility for student aid from the government to private lending institutions met opposition in Congress last year and were not passed. Critics charged the plan would actually decrease the amount of money available to middle class students.

The President also again proposed a $100 million National Foundation for Higher Education within the Office of Education to stimulate college innovations such as flexible curricula and televised instruction outside the classroom.

The President did not mention the growing financial plight of the nation's colleges and universities and offered no additional aid to meet institutional needs.

Groups representing higher education have urged the administration to begin a program of direct aid to hard-pressed institutions rather than the present mix of student aid and research help.

A major proposal of the President is creation of a National Student Loan Association with government sponsorship to buy student loans made by qualified lenders.

The President has budgeted only a $50 million increase to $632 million for government aid to students in the next year. But Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland said the amount of money available for student aid would jump from $970 million to $1.9 billion under the President's proposals because of the shift from subsidized loans to guaranteed loans in the private sector.

Courage is not the absence of fear, rather the overcoming of it.

Guilty Or Innocent

On Thursday, the Student Council Discipline Committee will hear the prosecution and defense of charges that Chuck Hettler has misrepresented himself on Student Council. Some people question Hettler's guilt, others question his innocence, but the most-asked question of all is why the Jambar "went after" Hettler in full force.

Unfortunately, there are those who think our initial allegations and subsequent editorials were malicious and unwarranted. Some believe they are strictly personal and that we are out to destroy Hettler and Phi Delta Theta Colony. Some believe that we fabricated or at the very least sensationalized the Hettler episodes. Some refuse to see a case against Hettler at all.

We maintain that we have been neither yellow journalists, malicious reporters, nor foolhearty accusers in the Hettler incidents. We feel strongly about the presentation of the truth, particularly when it involves basic principles of ethics. For this reason we carefully analyzed and prepared out stories in advance of our charges. We are familiar with libel laws and of our duties as defined by the University's Publications Board. We strongly stand by articles and allegations.

In commenting on the power and the rights of the press, Samuel Johnson once said that "nobody has the right to put another under such difficulty that he must either hurt the person by telling the truth or hurt himself by telling what is not true." Surely Johnson's reply has meaning today. We have attempted to tell this University the truth knowing full well what our press responsibilities are. We will not settle for less.

Unquestionably Hettler deserves a fair hearing. If he is innocent he deserves another chance. But if he is guilty, he should blame himself, not us.

Letters to the Editor

Considers abortion ads offensive

To the editor of the Jambar:

As I believe that abortion is nothing more than the killing of an innocent person, I find the recent Jambar "advertisements" for abortion very offensive—as I am sure you would consider offensive the advertisement of safe, legal euthanasia — or would you?

Regardless of your opinion or mine, the topic is definitely a controversial one and, in any public medium, should be handled sensitively. Flagrant advertisements such as those printed in the Jambar are in poor taste for any newspaper, and are certainly insensitive to the feelings and beliefs of a portion (at least) of your readers. I hope you will give some thought and consideration to this matter in the future.

Sincerely

Compares 'Jambar' to scandal mag

To the editor of the Jambar:

I was considering advertising my camper and travel trailer business in the Jambar, remembering it as a fine publication from when I attended YSU just two years ago. I was somewhat surprised to see that you are now running ads for abortion, pornography, and sexual devices. Your paper has taken on somewhat of a likeness to a scandal magazine found on the newsstand across from the steel mill.

The establishment looks upon our college youth as the future leaders in our society and we sure would hate to think that you weren't going along with our liberalized laws toward pornography and sex. It seems that things like this are great for breaking down the generation gap. An irresponsible society passed these laws, (the same society that has brought you marijuana, heroin, and Vietnam) and it delights me to know that you don't condemn us for our mistakes, but encourage more of this. Thank you for the vote of confidence.

I think that I'll hold off placing an ad at this time, but should I ever get out of the camping business and into abortion or selling pornography, then I will be happy to place an ad in your paper.

Dr. Painter evaluates female status in published article

"The present status of women may not be so positive and promising as it seems," reports Dr. Edith G. Painter, associate dean of student affairs at YSU, in an article published in the winter Journal of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors, and suggests that the solution may be found in the kind of attitudes developed in young boys and girls by their mothers and women teachers.

Entitled "Women: The Last of the Discriminated," the article treats the discriminatory issues of salary, education and executive positions and offers several concrete solutions to the problem.

Dean Painter cites World War II as the cause for bringing women, especially married with children, into the working world. According to Dean Painter, "today over one-third of the work force is female, and the average worker is married and aged 40. Currently there are 29 million women working, three-fourths of them full time and year-round."

Dr. Painter does believe that the "woman has acquired more personal freedom than ever before," citing modern time-saving devices in the home, and even having the choice if she wishes to bear children or not, and how many she wants. Today's woman also experiences "little social disapproval if she decides to remain single," and she can combine marriage with a career and receive little criticism.

Examining the salary scale, Dr. Painter notes that today 28% of employed men earn over $10,000, compared to only 3% of employed women. On the average, all sources agree that women earn 60% of the salaries paid their male counterparts.

Several practical answers to women's dilemma are offered by Dean Painter. "It should be the responsibility of the colleges, now increasingly co-educational, to help young women knowing the probable discontinuities of their lives, make intelligent decisions, and to help young men understand them as intellectual equals." She also suggests that "professional schools abolish their discriminatory admission practices based on sex—there is no longer a rationale to support them." And let "government and private resources attempt to provide day-care centers as other countries have done."

Dean Painter concludes the article by saying "attitudes and prejudices do not die easily, but the final solution to the problem of equality may lie with women in their roles as teachers and mothers, in that they are the ones primarily responsible for the attitudes of both boys and girls."

A native of Weymouth, Mass., Dr. Painter received a bachelor of science degree from Tufts University, a master of arts degree from Columbia University, and an Ed. D. from Colorado State College. Prior to coming to YSU in 1961, she was dean of women at Boise College in Idaho for four years, and had also been executive director of South Shore Council, Camp Fire Girls in Quincy, Mass., and assistant dean of students and assistant dean of women at New Paltz State Teachers College, New York, and Meredith College, North Carolina.

Dean Painter

American U. student researches in area

Daniel DeSantis, a graduate intern in the urban affairs program at American University who chose to do this internship in his home area of Youngstown, is motivated by an overwhelming concern for the prevention of the plight in our cities.

DeSantis is a native of Warren, and received a bachelor of arts degree, with a major in comprehensive social studies, for YSU last June. He began his graduate work towards a master's of public administration in urban affairs last fall at American University in Washington, D.C., and his zealous endeavors indicate that he is a proponent of working wholeheartedly toward improving man's environment.

Dan is doing research for the Center's study of open space and recreation needs in the Mahoning Valley. The newly-established Center for Urban Studies was selected by the Mahoning-Trumbull Council of Governments (COG) to make the survey which is the first detailed study made of recreation and open space needs in the two-county area.

Concerned and eager to do more than his share, Dan got interested in this field when he was an undergraduate student at YSU taking a course from Costa. He became stimulated and inquisitive and decided to pursue the topic on his own.

Dan's main interest is comparative urban affairs, and he hopes to graduate from AU next spring. Last fall he did research in Washington under the auspices of the Washington Center for Metropolitan Studies and was a member of the research team who did a study exploring the role of Congress relative to the District of Columbia delegate, for which he interviewed 22 Congressmen.

His incentive has brought him into contact with many people who share the same unfeigned fervor and he was recently elected to the board of directors of a newly-established group in Washington, Community Improvement Through Youth, which was organized by graduate students and is the first nation-wide urban affairs organization geared toward students and young people in the field.

Intramural basketball ends Sun.; drawings decide bracket pairings

Eleven fraternities can hang up their sneakers as six weeks of intramural cage warfare ended Sunday. Drawings will be held this week to determine bracket pairings for the teams still in the running for the championship. Sigma Alpha Mu and Theta Chi won as expected and will meet this weekend for the right to advance to playoff competition. The Sammys knocked off Sigma Tau Gamma 58-44 behind John Angelo's 18 points, though Ron Lemmo took scoring honors with 22. Phi Sigma Kappa fell before the Theta Chi express 47-37 with Dave Sentivany hooping 19 for the victors.

In final tuneups before the playoffs, three undefeated first place finishers came through with triumphs. Fist Full of Stickers by Skip Miller and Carl Basic

Several students have been caught using forged parking stickers. Some say there is an organized group mass-producing the stickers . . .

This is the campus — YSU, 16,000 students live here, sometimes a few of them step out of line. If they do, that's when they meet him — he carries a badge. His name Pableck D. Fender.

He was working the day watch-out of forged parking stickers when a call came in on the squawk box, "One Adam Twelve, One Adam. Twelve, a 69-8-1 in progress corner of Arlington and Elm—handle Code 2."

A 69-8-1 is the number used to designate an infraction known as Illegitimum Stagnentum Decalum (phony parking sticker).

He arrived on the scene at 9:00 a.m. and talked to the parking lot attendant, Mr. Meanmote Erscooter.

"What happened?"

"I caught one of those hardened, draft-dodging, hippie, fraternity punks with a fake sticker."

"When did you first suspect that the sticker was a forgery?"

"Two weeks ago."

"What gave you your first clue?"

"It was painted on a rock, besides, it was for Hofstra University."

"That must have been one of those crude imitations the Campus Security Chief was talking about. What took you so long to detect the forgery?"

"He had it hanging from his rearview mirror, and the dice, baby shoes, and high school tassel kept getting in the way."

"This sounds like a professional job. Only one group could be behind this, Al Coupon and his gang of S.P.U.A.G.R.U.P.C.C.S. (Society for the Prevention of University Administrators Getting Rich by Using Poor Commuting College Students) freaks. We'll have to call in some help—I'll call Penguinman."

"No, you can't. Penguinman can't help anyone but students."

"I'll call the Campus Security Police."

"They can't help anyone, period."

"I'll call Dean Dean."

"He can't even help himself!"

"Well, I guess we'll have to go under cover."

Disguised as the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, our fearless police officer entered the mud lot and was immediately arrested by the Campus Security Police for unlawful assembly. Again our police defender disguised himself, this time as an average YSU student. The long blond hair of his wig cascaded over the shoulders of his black leather jacket which was decorated with Greek letters. His trousers were a pair of tie-dyed Navy Bells. He wore a $42 Floursheim buckle-strap oxford on his left foot and a jumpboot on the other. Once in the mud lot, he was approached by Mr. Fotoe Stat, an illegal parking sticker pusher, and his girlfriend Mary Wauna.

"Hey man, you need a fix?"

"No, I was wondering if I could get something else."

"Better talk to Mary."

"No, I was looking for a parking sticker."

"Well, we got you covered. But you can't buy just one."

"What are these, Lay's?"

"I told you, talk to Mary for that. Actually, we sell our parking stickers in bag lots, also front lots — just a little humor there. Really, we sell them in nickel bags, dime bags, and "keys."

"Do you mean a kilo?"

"No, I mean we give you a key that fits any GM car made since 1960. You steal a car in the morning when you come to school, that way, if it gets ticketed or towed away while you're in class, you can just steal another car and go home."

"Where do you get your supply of phony parking stickers?"

YSU professor selected to analyze excavated remains

Dr. Gary F. Fry, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology at YSU, is one of four authorities in the United States selected by representatives of the Museum of Northern Arizona and the American Museum of Natural History to perform parasitological and paleoecological analysis of mummified human remains over 2,000 years old recovered from southern Utah.

Originally excavated in the early 1900's, the remains have been in the American Museum of Natural History. According to Dr. Fry, "new techniques of investigation have been developed which will enable us in our investigation." By examining the artifacts, which consist of stomach contents, intestines and other organ remnants, Dr. Fry hopes to determine the diet of these people, ancient diseases they had to contend with, ecological adaptations they had to make to the environment and general facts regarding their culture and civilization.

These people are referred to as living in the basketmaker phase of the Anasazi culture and are ancestors of today's Pueblo Indians. Dr. Fry, who spent five years in Utah probing excavations, will conduct his research until September and then submit his findings to various archaeological journals.

"They come down the Ho Cheap Men trail from Buffalo."

"New York?"

"No, Running. He's a Black-foot Indian Medicine Man in Billings, Montana."

"How did you meet him?"

"He's a fraternity brother of one of the guys on Student Council."

"Where does he get the stickers?"

"He gets them from the Commandant of the Air Force Academy, who gets them from a taco vender in Tijuana, Mexico. The taco vender gets them from the assistant president of YSU."

"Where does the assistant president get them?"

"That's easy—he lives in 'Parking Country'."
