Lock the door, get a dog, to stop thefts says YPD

Suggestions to discourage house burglaries accessory thefts, larceny of parked cars, and robberies near the campus area, were compiled by the Jambar in cooperation with the draw the drapes, the Jambar in cooperation with the drapes, Youngstown Police Department, yesterday.

The police department cited the carelessness of apartment dwellers in locking up their apartments when they leave them. They also noted the readily accessible and even anxious markets for the stolen goods.

In order to prevent apartment burglaries, the following suggestions are offered:

1. Good locks should be installed on windows and doors. Dead-bolt locks were recommended as the best by the Police Department, particularly those which require keys inside as well as outside.

2. When all boarders are absent from the apartment a light should be left on and possibly a radio to create the appearance of someone being home.

3. Shades or curtains should be drawn so that it is not easily determinable whether or not someone is home.

4. The serial numbers of all valuable appliances should be recorded and kept to be turned over to the police should one of them be stolen. Makes and model numbers are also important. They may also be anchored to shelves or the floor.

5. Pet dogs discourage a would-be burglar.

6. Outdoor lights discourage anyone from loitering around your apartment and home.

The following suggestions if heeded, will reduce the temptation to break into parked cars:

1. Do not leave anything in sight in parked automobiles. Particularly stereo tapes and books. Lock any

University Senate to consider voting status for 14 students

The University Senate will consider constitutional changes that will include giving voting status of the Senate to fourteen undergraduate students at their monthly meeting today.

According to Dr. Phillip Hahn, chairman of the Senate's Constitution Committee, the committee will recommend that the Senate's constitution be amended to increase student make-up on the body from six to fourteen and give students voting privileges.

Presently, six students serve on the Senate in an advisory status.

The amendment would also change the manner by which student senators are selected, according to Dan Crishon, Student Government president. Crishon, who serves on the Student Affairs Committee which made the original recommendation for an increased student membership, said that the amendment would call for the election of students to twelve seats and ex officio membership for the president of Student Government and the chairman of Student Council. Presently student senate seats are filled by appointment of the Student Government president.

The amendment needs majority approval from the Senate tomorrow and then a two-thirds majority in a mail vote to be held within the next ten days.

Crishon was optimistic about the outcome of the proposal and endorsed the measure. He said that he was not in favor of a direct election of student senators since student voting turnout has been traditionally low, but is satisfied with the amendment since the primary consideration of the amendment is to give students a more active part in University (cont. on page 7)

Postal Service may raise rate to eight cents to avoid deficit

By MARK BROWN ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service, facing a revenue deficit of 2.4 billion this fiscal year, is expected to raise the price of letter mail to eight cents by mid April.

This is likely to be one of the first acts of the nine-member board of govenors given recess appointments by President Nixon-this week.

The emergency powers given the board of Congress allow it to raise postal rates by one-third within 100 days of formal notification.

The board members were appointed by Nixon Monday but they have not been sworn in yet or held a meeting. The oath of office will be administered to the governors individually over the next few days.

Postal officials estimate that a 2-cent increase in first class postage would raise about $1.5 billion a year while lesser amounts would accrue from like increases in second and third class rates.

A number of factors dictate swift action by the board in converting the 200-year-old post office from its present status as an executive agency subject to the whims of Congress to the semiautonomous corporate-like postal service that is suppose to pay its own way.

The conversion must be carried out before next Aug. 12. On that date last year, Nixon signed the postal reform legislation providing a one-year changeover period.

However, one provision of the law, requiring collective bargaining between postal management and employees, comes into play in less than two weeks.

U.S. forces report lowest death rate since 1965

SAIGON (AP) - The U.S. Command reported Thursday that 4,204 Americans were killed in combat last year, the lowest total since 1965 when the United States was only to build up its forces.

his was reported along with that 33 Americans were killed in action last week, down from 41 the week before, while 305 were wounded.

The declines of last year reflected a general lowering of the fighting level and the continued U.S. disengagement from the war.

The figures were released a day ahead of the arrival of Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who expects to end the U.S. combat role in South Vietnam after midsummer this

On his two-day visit, Laird is expected to be looking for ways to speed the American withdrawal.

Give Students a Vote

The University Senate meets today to consider perhaps the most crucial of all issues concerning the student, the student role in the University. For years now, students have gone as far as to demand to be recognized as a decision making force in our universities. At most major universities they have been given legislative positions and responded admirably in those roles.

At YSU, student voting privileges on the Senate represent an important means of student expression. Since the Student Council has been incapable of expressing much of anything due to their limited power and weak membership, the Senate could serve as a direct expression of student opinion providing elected members carry out their positions responsibly.

There is no question as to the importance of the measure today. The recommendation to increase student membership on the Senate to 14 and give students voting privileges, came after careful study by the Student Affairs Committee and hearings by the Constitution and By-laws Committee. Both committees have overwhelmingly concluded that the measure should be passed.

We feel that the measure is the most singularly important piece of legislation to date concerning students here. The issue has been carefully considered by most everyone for a good while, and its positive points far outnumber the negative. The Senate's decision is bound to tell a lot.

To the editor of the Jambar:

So much has been said about the NAACP Workshop, which was held November 21, 1970. I was one of those 60 students that attended the workshop and from the workshop I learned that in this great period of stress we young people are facing many challenges of untold proportions that the world's responsibilities will soon fall on our shoulders, and of today's high school students. The prospects of a peaceful solution to world problems which seem remote, all because of a handful of people trying to hold us back.

The environment we live in is being polluted not only by air, but also by that handful of people who is afraid of giving the other man a chance. The problems of racial and ethnic divisions are serious all over the world, even here at YSU. With all these and many extremely difficult and complex questions, we were trying to work together as a peaceful team, to provide the type of a basic education that will enable everyone of our high school and college age to deal with these complex problems. This was our goal.

Counseling Director considers major problem area to be academic

By James Adams

The Counseling Center has found two academic problem areas affecting students here, and is attacking them in two different ways, according to Dr. George E. Letchworth, Director of Counseling Center.

Dr. Letchworth states that the major problem area of many of the students coming to the department for counseling is their indecision concerning what course they want their life to take generally, and what major to take here at the University. Dr. Letchworth has found two root causes form the basis formuch of this indecision.

The first root cause, Dr. Letchworth has found, is that "students misunderstand the meaning of higher education." He found that many students here feel that YSU is training them for a vocation only. Too often courses are not seen in any wider sense than that.

To combat this impression

Or. Letchworth attempts to present YSU courses as "something more than" vocational classes. He stressed the idea that "liberal education" is that "something more," although he doesn't feel the term describes the potential fullness of YSU's academic program exactly.

Dr. Letchworth has tound that the second root cause that underlies much of the student indecision here is "parental misunderstanding of higher education, coupled with their reluctance to let their children growup." To combat this the University must be redefined in terms of what it really is. Also the student must be encouraged to make his own decisions in light of his own wants and desires.

The second major academic problem area on campus is what Dr. Letchworth calls "the lack of any real intellectual atmosphere on campus." He feels this deprives students of academic promise the chance to develop as fully as possible.

To deal with this lack, Dr. Letchworth created the Keola program. It brings together students who have shown academic promise to at least one member of the faculty. He states that Keola is not a sensitivity group, as some feel, but rather an open-ended discussion situation that "sets the stage for individual development and the expression of ideas."

Dr. Letchworth stated that he used for example, the "curiousity motive" to attract students to the program. Student members' reactions vary from extreme boredom to great enthusiasm. He feels the program's success depends on student values at YSU, and on organization difficulties.

Dr. Letchworth pointed out that most YSU students show "an unwillingness to discuss" in classroom situations. Keola is based on a non-classroom situation since ther is no credit available, no attendance taken, and

Black Studies Director discusses program at YSU By James Oesch Studies curriculum up there to culty members who would be Youngstown public school system whole the youngstown public school system of the youngstow

"I think what we really have to do now is to stand up, open our mouths and yell for the first time in our lives that we have basically been a racist nation and that we have really not been sincere, genuinely sincere, in our approaches to making black people in this country a total part of this country."

This is Mr. Alfred Bright, assistant professor of art, who, in a recent interview, spoke candidly about the need for a Black Studies program, his new role as director of that program at YSU and how it has affected his personal life.

The Black Studies program at YSU is being developed with the belief that it is "an academically sound approach to the entire dilemma of black-white relations, integration ideology, the whole concept of minority groups, or any groups under oppression in this country or in this world."

It is with this philosophy that

Mr. Bright is approaching the development of the Blak Studies program of YSU.

Mr. Bright explained his own involvement with the program as stemming from his sensitivity toward people and the feeling that a "vast pool of information about black men, black history and black heritage is lying fallow."

He was particulary concerned about "the pitiful state of my black people" who are being kept in a social-economic rut not because of lack of individual worth but because "things are stacked against us as a black people," in part because "the black man has always been somewhat of a scapegoat for the white man's feelings of superiority."

The way to rectify and solve these problems, Mr. Bright feels, is "through intelligence, massive intelligence and education. Now that education is at the fingertips of every man and child in this country I think we ought to be using education for the best benefit of expanding our awareness of things, our humanity, the good of man instead of the evil of man."

As the only full time black faculty member at YSU, Mr. Bright feels a personal responsibility "to investigate possibilities of introducing the Black make it more relevant for black folk to study up there."

Mr. Bright visited Black Studies programs while on seventeen different campuses across the nation this past summer.

the nation this past summer.

The three strongest programs he found were at Southern Illinois University, Hunter College in New York City and Akron University. Mr. Bright cited these three programs as "really beautiful because they have localized their programs and have thereby become relevant."

The only university offering Black Studies on any other level than undergraduate work is Southern Illinois University which has a Masters program and is developing a Doctoral program.

is developing a Doctoral program.

Mr. Bright feels that a Black Studies major has the same validity as any other liberal arts major because "any concentration [in the liberal arts] can't help but make a better, more aware person - more aware of the real world we live in."

He also explained that the courses to be offered under the Black Studies program "are not soul courses or 'Mickey Mouse.' We're talking about black economic systems, minority groups, black political thought, black philosophical thought, African heritage — we're talking about the whole concept of the black man's dilemma in this country. It can not help but to broaden any man's horizon."

A Black Studies major would be applicable to pre-law, teaching Black Studies, and particularly for students who plan to work in government agencies dealing with poverty programs, social welfare problems, urban education and other related areas where such a major would be useful if not vital. Regarding the Black Studies program at YSU, Mr. Bright stated that while more teachers are needed in this field, YSU does have a number of scholars interested in this area who are equipped to teach.

He cited Dr. Donald Robinson, Dr. Dominic Capeci and Sister Mary Conroy as three faculty members who would be well qualified to teach specific areas of Black Studies. Sister Conroy did her doctorate work in Black literature. Mr. Capeci is a specialist in Black American history. Dr. Robinson, the new Dean of the School of Education, was instrumental in establishing the Black Studies rogram-at SIU and is now on the advisory committee for Black Studies at YSU.

There has been some contoversy over whether only black people are qualified to teach Black Studies courses and Mr. Bright's response is "It is ludicrous to make that assumption." He elaborated on that issue by saying that "there is, however, something a black man can bring to a black course that a white man can't, and that is his own personal black experience."

A present there are only 700 black students out of a total enrollment of 15,000 at YSU. Half of these black students are new this year. Mr. Bright feels that there should be approximately 3,000 black students on campus. He cited the facts that 42% of the children in the Youngstown public school system are black and that Youngstown has the sixth largest black population in the state as reasons for the 3,000 black enrollment figure.

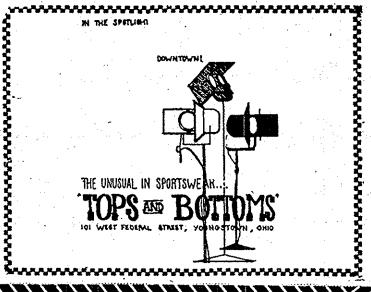

His role as director of the program has forced Mr. Bright to make a number of sacrifices as an artist because his time is so limited now. But he feels that the sacrifices are worth it because when he goes back to the canvas "it will be a different manifestation—a stronger, more positive manifestation about a greater reality on my part."

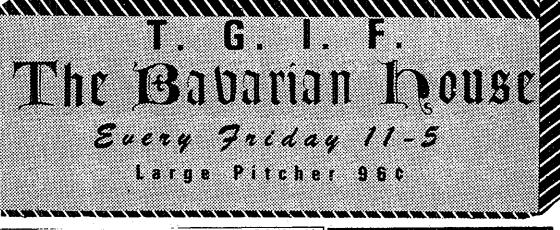

Being the father of four children (11 months to six years old), Mr. Bright also feels that the sacrifices he makes now as Director of the Black Studies program are going to benefit his children and his children's children.

Mr. Bright has a high regard for today's students. While admitting that there have been some "ugly" things done by students and black militants in this country, he feels that on the whole the youth movement has been a very positive, valuable thing for our country. He explained his feelings by saying that "students in general in this country have done a beautiful thing, and that is today's students have begun an inward search of themselves as a race of people, as a country. They've enjoyed all the material benefits. Students today aren't fascinated with all the material things that a lot of us adults are still hung up about."

The role of youth in the world today is a vital one, Mr. Bright feels, so important that he made the prediction that "if they (youth) can sustain that type of energy to do something honest, to do something good, to do something for humanity, I think maybe this country will pull itself together and become the great leader it really is, and until that time we're going to always be fighting wars over land ownership and pretend that we're fighting them over ideologies."

Professors to present Beethoven sonatas

Dr. William Conable and Dr. Robert Hopkins will present The Beethoven Cello-piano Sonatas, Part I, on Monday evening, January 11, 1971 in Dana Recital Hall, at 8:00 p.m. The first program will consist of: Sonata No. 1 in F Major, Op. 5, No. 1, Seven Variations on the Theme, "Bei Mannern, welche Liebe fuhlen," from The Magic Flute, Twelve Variations on a Theme from Handel's Oratorio, Judas Maccabaeus, & Sonata No. III in A Major, Op. 69.

Conable, a native of New York, received his AB degree from the University of Illinois, and the MM and Doctorate degrees from Boston University. An honor graduate and member of Phi Beta Kappa, Conable was the recipient of the Woodrow Wilson and Danforth Fellowships. Presently he is a member of the string faculty at Dana School of Music and conductor of The Youngstown State University Symphony Orchestra. He also plays cello with the Youngstown Symphony Orchestra.

Hopkins, a native of North Carolina, received the Doctor of Musical 'Arts and Performer's Certificate in Piano from Eastman School of Music. He spent the 1969-70 season in New York on sabbatical leave from the University. During this time he studied with the noted pianist, Claudio Arrau. In September of 1970, Hopkins made his New York debut in Town Hall and received excellent reviews in the New York Times.

This same program will be performed at Findlay College on January 20th. The second part of the program will be presented on February 16, 1971, in Dana Recital Hall, at 8:00 p.m.

Akron hands Penguins first defeat; shatters 22-game home win streak

A red-hot Akron club shattered YSU's 22-game home court win streak Wednesday night with a 98-73 thrashing. The Zips hit a torrid 53.5 for the game including 61.8 in the second half to hand the Penguins their first setback in nine outings.

Before Youngstown State is to launch another home court winning streak, it will have to conquer a tall and talented San Diego University outfit.

The Toreros invade the Struthers High Field House Saturday night to meet the Penguins at 8 p.m. It will be stop No. 3 on an eastern swing which had USD at Toledo Wednesday, Cleveland State Friday, YSU Saturday and Gannon next Monday.

Saturday's prelim will be one of the season's highlights with Chuck Bush's 5-5 Penguin JVs tackling the Alumni All-Stars at 6 p.m. The All-Stars are slated to have former YSU scoring greats John McElroy, Dave Culliver, Ronnie Allen and Red Jones in addition to ex-Penguin stars Wayne Davis, Charlie Day, Frank Fitz, Don Graham, Tony Pero, Charlie Rowan and Willie

Teague. YSU has picked a toughie to be the first victim of another streak. Although the Toreros sport-a-3-5 record, they have but one man under 6-foot on a roster which includes five 6-6ers. And San Diego apparently likes the midwestern climate since it nearly upset Toledo Wednesday night, bowing 74-70. The Toreros, coached by second-year mentor Bernie Bickerstaff, show wins over Redlands (82-60), St. Mary's (85-80) and Southern Utah (92-75). USD losses were to Pepperdine (83-78), San Fernando Valley State (93-80), Los Angeles State (96-81), Whittier (85-75) and Toledo. Bickerstaff succeeded the legendary Phil Woolpert, now USD athletic director, who

In order to reduce the possibility of becoming a robbery victim, the following suggestions are offered:

1 Open a checking account in a local bank rather than carrying substantial amounts of money on your person or leaving it in your apartment. Keep on hand only enough money to get through a week.

2. Travel in pairs or in groups particularly around the campus area after dark. If you are alone and returning to your car parked in a lot wait for someone going your way.

had NCAA champs at San Francisco in 1955 and 1956.

Bickerstaff will probably start John Hampton, 6-3 junior, and Gie Simpson, 6-3 sophomore, at forward, Bob Scotlan, 6-6 senior, at center, and Jack Robinson, 5-9 sophomore, and John Boone, 6-0 senior, at

Prior to the Toledo game, Hampton had an 18.6 scoring average, Robinson, 11.0, and Scotlan, 10.0. Hampton and Scotlan were 1-2 in rebounding with 56 and 46, respectively. Bickerstaff also could use 6-6 Oscar Foster (14.4 ppg.), 6-6 Joe Fogel, 6-6 Tim Groff or 6-6 Sterling Garrett.

Expect Dom Rosselli to counter with Ron Smith (20.9) and Rich Denamen (7.3) underneath, Jeff Skeeles (5.0) in the pivot, and Billy Johnson (12.9) and

J.C. Williams (8.0) out front. Bill McMeans, 6-6 freshman from South Range who came off the bench to get 25 points against Akron, could get the nod over Denamen.

Smith continues to lead Penguin scorers with 188 points followed by Johnson with 103. Skeeles paces the rebounders with 104 (11.6 avg.) with Smith second at 87 (9.7). Johnson is tops in assists with 50.

Rosselli soon hopes to have the services of Chris Ellis, Bob Patton and Billy Wells. Ellis is rounding into shape after a year's layoff while Patton and Wells are still recovering from severe ankle injuries.

The Penguins close out their current home stand next Thursday evening against arch-rival Gannon.

PENGUIN PROFILES

Ron Smith, a 6 foot 3 inch 199 pound, forward has been carrying the scoring load for the Youngstown State University basketball team for the last four games. Ron has been coming through with key baskets and clutch defensive plays all season.

Ron, a Junior who was graduated from North Bloomfield High School has come through in good fashion for the Penguins on offense this season leading fastbreaks and causing important turnovers on defense.

Basketball coach DomRosselli feels "Ron has the ability to come up with the big play that can break a game wide open." So far this season Ron is carrying an average of 22 points per Ron, according to Rosselli, "has pride in his game, team and school." He is a standout of defensewith quick hands, good speed and tremendous leaping ability. Rosselli says Ron is a team player with great natural ability. His hustle, desire and dedication make him a valuable asset to the Youngstown State University Team.

Smith, who broke into the starting line-up regularly last year, has taken up the slack offense since the injury to Billy Johnson. Smith's all-around ability as scorer, feeder, and rebounder make hima factorthat opponents find difficult to stop.

The police department has also requested that anyone who has information about any of the recent crimes in the university area come forward with that information to the police. Anonymous phone calls, letters, and visits are welcomed by the police department.

Catch—YSU

The Add & Drop Game

by Skip Miller and Carl Basic

On Tuesday we had the opportunity to engage in the most exciting activity available to YSU students attempting to change registration. This action packed sport has it all: fierce competition, body contact, and huge

All a student needs to play the YSU add and drop game is: a student I.D. card with current validation sticker, a scan sheet properly filled out with a No. 2 lead pencil, and advisement sheet, an advisor's signature, assorted permits for closed classes and courses and most important, two dollars.

Now, that is all the student needs according to the University. However, any veteran of the add and drop game knows that in addition to the aforementioned items many other things are needed. Now available at the Bookstore for the typically nominal bookstore price of an arm and a leg is the YSU Change of Registration Lifesaving Kit. Included in this kit are 1,000 extra scan sheets, (printed in English, French, German, Polish and Swahili). Ten No. 2 lead pencils, one football helmet with cage, one mouth guard, one pair steel toed shoes, a bottle of tranquilizers, one fifth of "Mad Dog" 20-20, and a Partridge in a Pear tree. This kit is truly a boon to the students at YSU.

The main reasons students decide to change their schedules are caused by two separate and equally inefficient entities, i.e. the University and the student. Some of the causes which are clearly the University's fault include: ". . .my girlfriend is in this other class"... or "... I heard that prof is (select one) (a) hard, (b) easy, (c) homosexual..." or "I decided I really didn't want to be a"

Some of the student causes for changing registration can outs from the program is based be illustrated by the following example. We happened to be right behind two female Phys. Ed. majors. Miss Bonnie Butkus and Miss Sarah Huff as they moved through the charge of registration line for the fourth time, (the first time the class they wanted was closed and the second time their advisor had signed them up for the wrong class and the third time they forgot to say "Mother may I"). Their conversation with one of the lady assistants went something like

"We'd like to sign up for Health 0000."

"I'm sorry, that class is closed."

"Is there any way we can still get in?"

"Yes, all you need is a permit bearing the signatures of your advisor, the chairman of the department, Martha Mitchell, the San Francisco 49er's, and your signature - in blood of course."

"Is there any other way?"

- "Yes, what are you doing tonight?"
- "Is there any other way?"
- "Yes, take the course the next time it's offered." "When will that be?"

"In the year 2525, if man is still alive."

What about those students who are lucky enough to make their changes. What happens to them? Those who do not go directly to Woodside have to go to class. Many of the classes offered at YSU are not worth the trouble. One such course is History 1066, a course on recent Cuban History. The course is currently taught by Mr. Charles Bulldung. Mr. Bulldung is not too well versed on the subject he teaches. For example he is under the erronous assumption that the Bay of Pigs Invasion was a panty raid on Lincoln Towers. Of course there are benefits in successfully making changes of registration. Getting the classes one needs provides the excitement of wondering where the class will really meet (the class catalogue is about as accurate as a V.C. body count), whether or not the class will be cancelled, and if there are any "foxy women" in the class.

Just like any other collegiate sport, Change of Registration at YSU can provide the thrill of victory and more often than not, the agony of defeat.

Counseling

(Cont. from pg. 4) no real need for the student to attend. The problem of dropon the same "unwillingness to discuss" personal opinions.

In general, Dr. Letchworth feels that "free discussion has less value" to YSU students. His experience at other schools causes him to suspect that the commuter nature of YSU and the lack of an academic atmosphere itself contributes to the creation of this value system.

The organizational difficultiesthat trouble Keola range from schedule conflicts to transportation difficulties. Despite these failures and problems, Dr. Letchworth feels that the program has succeeded in developing a more intellectual atmosphere for the program members. He cites the fact that members have returned from last year's program to form another group in this program as proof of Keola's popularity and success.
