NEW DEAN - Dr. Yozwiak, newly appointed Dean of College of Arts and Sciences, leans back with a pipe and a smile for Jambar photographer.

Yozwiak appointed Arts College Dean

Dr. Bernard J. Yozwiak, chairman of YSU's mathematics department, has been appointed Dean of the college of Arts and Sciences announced President Pugsley last week. The appointment is effective August 1.

In announcing the appointment, President Pugsley stated, "From his many years of outstanding service to the University, Dr. Yozwiak brings to the position of dean comprehensive and detailed knowledge of the operations and personnel of the College of Arts and Sciences.

"We are most fortunate to have in our own faculty a man who is so widely recognized by the University community as combining in such an exceptional way the qualities of scholarship, administrative skill and empathy with students."

"I am delighted that Dr. Yozwiak has accepted the challenge of leading the college that provides a substantial part of the course work for all students in the University. I wish also to express appreciation for the very effective services of Dr. Robert K. Smith who served as acting dean during this interim period."

Dr. Yozwiak will also concurrently act as the chairman of the mathematics department until September 15 when the new chairman for the department will be appointed.

He succeeds Dean Karl W. Dykema who served as dean from 1963-70 and was a member of the YSU faculty since 1937. Since Dean Dykema's death last July, Dr. Robert K. Smith has served as acting dean.

As a result of the appointment of Dr. Yozwiak, Dr. Smith will return to his original position as assistant dean of College of Arts and Sciences for one year after which he plans to either go to the Western Rockies or Pacific Northwest.

A member of the YSU faculty since 1947 and chairman of the mathematics department since 1966, Dr. Yozwiak earned a bachelor of arts degree from Marietta College and a master of science and Ph.D. in mathematics from the University of Pittsburgh.

He has done additional graduate study at Case Institute of Technology on General Electric Fellowship and has received two National Science Foundation Faculty Fellowships.

Named a "Distinguished Professor" in 1961, Dr. Yozwiak is the former chairman of the Ohio Section of the Mathematical Association of America and a "Visiting Scientist" for the Ohio Academy of Science.

From 1962-68, he served as director and instructor of the National Science Foundation sponsored In-Service Institutes for Secondary Teachers of Mathematics, and in 1961, was elected to the Society of Sigma Xi, a national honorary research fraternity.

A member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Association of University Professors, Dr. Yozwiak is listed in "American Men of Science" and "Leaders in American Science."

First free university class opens here on 'New Sociology'

Dr. B.K. Bhagwati Poddar, assistant professor in sociology, will begin this Monday at 6:00 p.m. to teach the first free university class ever to exist at YSU.

The class called "The New Sociology" will be an extension of the discussions held in a political sociology class this past spring.

It will be held at the Lincoln Projects room 206 with permission from the School officials to use the room.

Dr. Poddar will not get paid for the teaching of this class and it will be open to any student interested.

Hassani Khouri, a junior in political science and several friends started the idea. Fifteen students are expected to attend the class.

The title of the course was selected by Dr. Poddar, who also said that there will be assigned

Dr. Hare advises last Jambar issue

Dr. Robert Hare, associate professor in English and Communications, has resigned from his position as advisor to the Jambar effective with this edition.

Dr. Hare is resigning so that he may spend more time specializing in 18th century literature, but will teach journalism courses if they are assigned.

President Pugsley has accepted the resignation and has appointed Dr. Taylor Alderman, assistant at the Jambar for the past two years, and assistant professor in English and communications as the new advisor. Dr. Alderman's appointment is effective immediately.

When Dr. Hare came to YSU four years ago, the Jambar office was located in Kilcawley Hall and consisted of three desks and a typewriter. The printing of the paper was a hot type operation, cost twice as much per page as it does now, and the Jambar was a weekly paper.

During Dr. Hare's term as advisor, the Jambar moved to much larger quarters in the old placement office; sophisticated IBM equipment was purchased, the paper changed from a hot type operation to a cold offset type, all the make-up work was done on the campus, and the Jambar began publishing twice weekly.

Dr. Hare commented: "I suppose I interpreted my appointment as faculty advisor as a mandate to put the Jambar house in order and to give the campus a respectable newspaper commensurate with its size."

He went on to say, "I did not succeed entirely. What this campus needs is a daily newspaper and a journalism department or school to support such a newspaper and to serve the area needs for newspapermen. I hope this will come someday, but the prospect is slim in the near future."

Dr. Hare did not succeed in his goal of getting all of the journalism courses at YSU taught in one department. At the present time journalism is taught in both the English de-

Kilcawley meal tickets go begging at $190/qtr

Although Kilcawley cafeteria offers meal tickets to all students whether they reside in the Kilcawley dorm or not, only two such meal tickets have been purchased of date this summer.

The meal tickets are offered to students for $190 per quarter and are available in the Bursar's office on the first floor of Jones Hall.

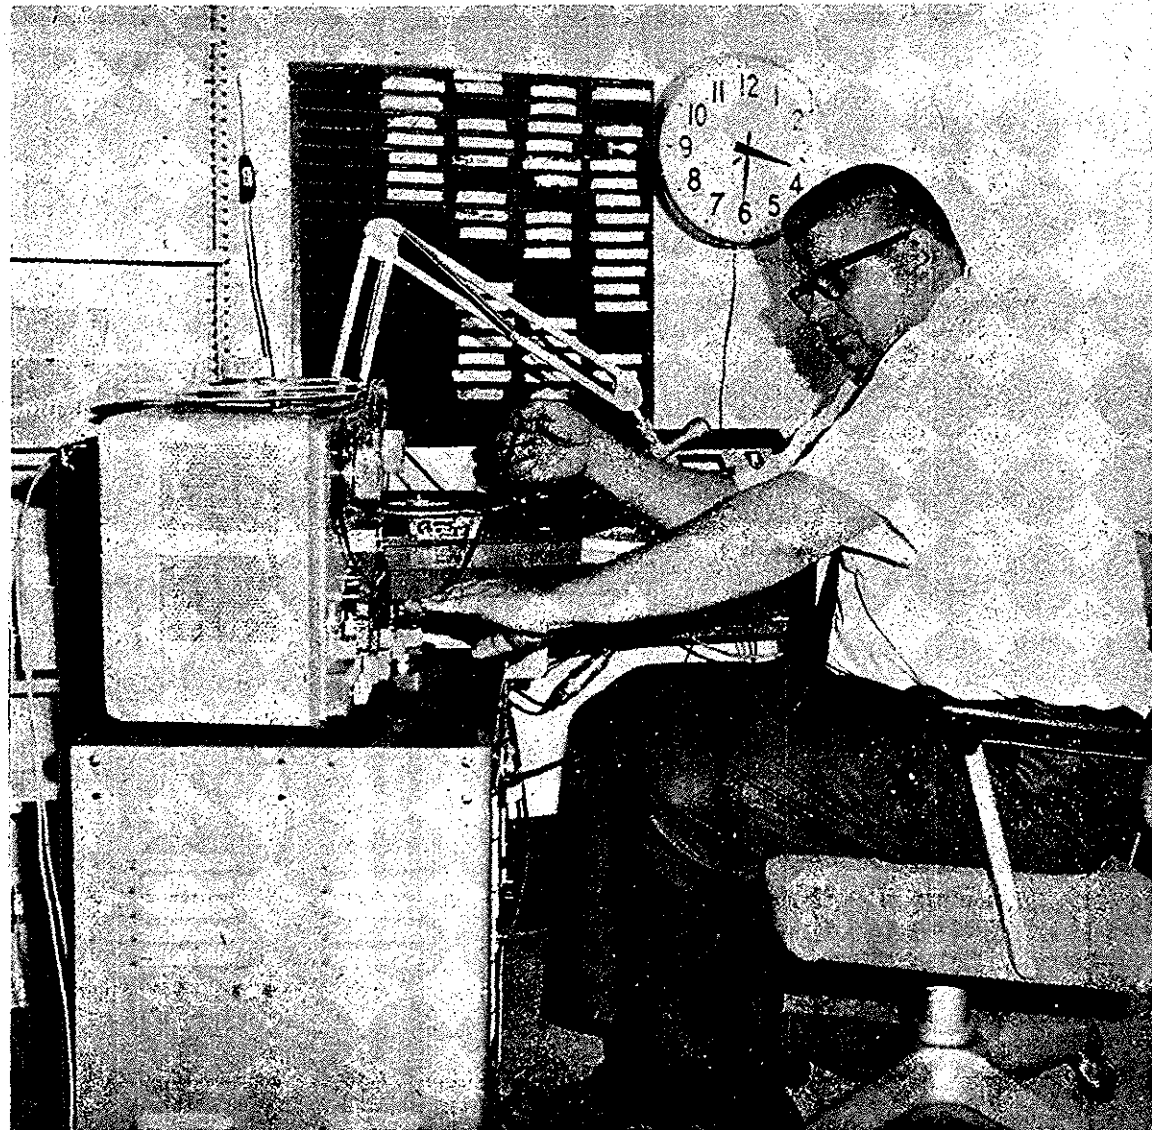

Mr. George Pappas, director of food services in Kilcawley Student Center, said that many students are not aware that this service is available to non-residents.

The menus do not change in the cafeteria during the summer from the regular school year according to Mr. Pappas. However, since there are less people to serve, only one line is open whereas four lines are open during regular school sessions. The menus consist of two entrees for every meal. Mr. Pappas changes the menu every five weeks.

The decision on what is going to be served is made by the dieticians with Mr. Pappas' suggestions. The suggestions are then sent to Dr. Bertelson, assistant dean of Student Affairs, and Mr. Philip E. Rogers, assistant to the vice president for Financial Affairs for approval. Pappas has tried to get student opinion on the menus by forming a food service committee of Kilcawley residents and by food preference polls.

Mr. Pappas admitted that the cafeteria is profit oriented and operated by the Food Service Company under Specialized Management Services of the Macke Company.

WYSU MUSIC DIRECTOR - William Foster of YSU's radio station prepares another show for the air.

WYSU plans to extend broadcasting schedule in fall

by Lois Tamplin

As one of the many innovations added since WYSU-FM began broadcasting in October of 1969, the station may soon extend their broadcasting day beyond noon-to-midnight schedule by beginning at 9 a.m. according to Stephen Grcevich station manager.

When WYSU-FM, YSU's non-commercial radio station, applied to the FCC for licensing, it pledged itself to provide educational, informational and cultural programming which is not generally available in the area, and since it began broadcasting it has been continually striving to fulfill this pledge.

The station tapes and replays the Youngstown Symphony concerts, as well as the YSU Artist-Lecture Series and the Dana recitals. To keep its audience informed of the programs being offered, 10,000 schedules are printed and distributed each quarter.

WYSU-FM is among the 96 stations affiliated with the National Educational Radio Network. To qualify for affiliation a station must be 250 watts or more, employ a professional staff of not fewer than 3, be on the air at least 48 weeks a year, 6 days a week, 8 hours a day, and not exist as a training facility.

These criteria exclude the 10-watt student operated stations in existence at many universities. WYSU-FM is the only university stereo station in Ohio, and is second only to the station at Ohio University in power.

WYSU-FM's signal extends as far as Cleveland and Pittsburgh, thus its potential audience is great. The station employs 12 students on its staff, all of whom are licensed by the FCC.

In further pursuit of its goal, WYSU-FM is planning for expanded programming in the near future. Mr. Grcevich hopes to make more effective use of the resources available at YSU with dialogues with faculty, student discussions, etc.

Negotiations are under way with Akron University and Kent State University for the joint operation of 2 education TV stations.

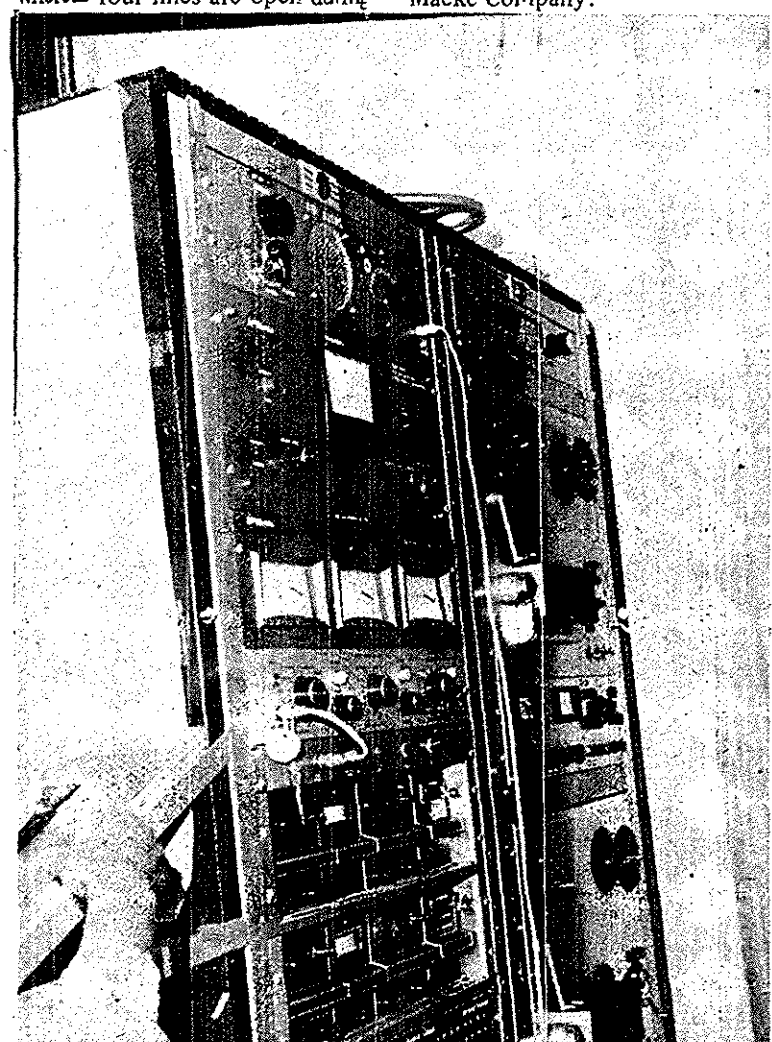

These stations will feature classroom programming during the day, and in the evening they will tie in with National Education Television programs.

Stephen Grcevich has been with the station since its beginning and brings a wealth of experience to his position. A YSU graduate, Mr. Grcevich has spent 25 years in the broadcasting field, and prior to his affiliation with WYSU-FM he set up Ohio's first high school radio station, WKTL at Struthers High School.

Mr. Grcevich sees the University's responsibility as extending beyond campus, and believes that through the medium of broadcasting the University can enrich the lives of area citizens as well as YSU students.

WYSU-FM offers a wide variety of programming. In addition to the serious music which predominates, it features weekly programs of Broadway show music, folk music and jazz, and transmits news broadcasts through the network with which it is affiliated.

Letters to the Editor

Compliments WYSU on programs

Dear members of the WYSU radio staff:

May I use this opportunity to extend my compliments to you on the production of consistently fine programming material. Your radio station is truly one of Youngstown's greatest assets, and I would hope that through the example which your station sets, our area may grow richer in the arts and heighten its general intellectual attitudes.

Those who know me as a person find an interesting, but not uncommon, trait—I'm a music lover of the "Beatles to Bach" species. Before the advent of your station we were limited to Beatles, as far as radio broadcasting, and obliged to forget the Bach, lest we go broke buying records or unless our equipment would afford us 500 mile radius reception. Now, I feel we are blessed with a fine arts radio station unexcelled in its class. Having listened to similar stations in major cities (Chicago and New York) I find that you've really got a good thing going! Being an audiophile of unknown merit, let me say that technically your broadcasts take nothing away from my seven hundred odd dollars worth of receiving equipment. Especially those fantastic Boston Pops concerts on Sunday evenings!

Also, I would like to briefly react to statements made by various members of the YSU community charging that your programming is not indicative of their interests (witness several "Letters to the Editor" present in the Jambar), but establishing the premise that folk, soul, and "acid-rock" are the only musical forms which members of the university community care to listen to. To them I would say:

1. There are many, many members of this university community who are equally turned on by classical music and the challenge of building increasingly higher cultural standards (You know this very well, because of the success of your station).

2. There are many outstanding stations, several broadcasting in FM stereo, in our area which present excellent folk-rock programming. Another would seem unnecessary to me.

3. It must be understood that the range of WYSU extends to many thousands of people—many of whom are really nuts about the programming which you offer listeners but who are not members of the university community. To them you are performing an outstanding service.

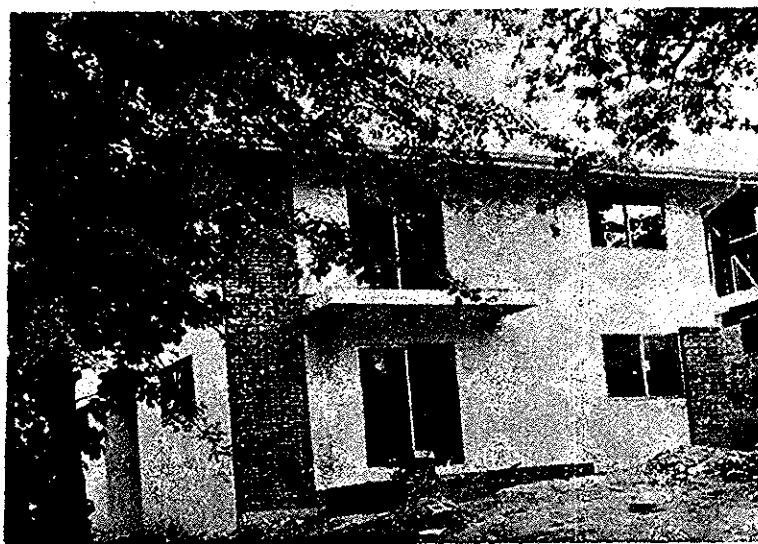

4. Obviously, your very existence as a non-commercial radio station dictates the form of programming which you are pursuing.

Thank you very much for a great job. Keep up the good work! May I wish you continued success in your future endeavors.

P.S.

Don't hold back on the Russian classics. Dmitri Shostakovich is my favorite composer, but much Russian music impresses me as having real power and "guis".

PROGRESS ON APARTMENTS—This is a sneak preview of the new student apartments on Ohio Ave., due for a September 1 opening.

1,000 Grants awarded by Yo. Ed. Foundation

The Youngstown Educational Foundation, under the direction of Dr. Howard W. Jones, Youngstown University president emeritus, will assist over 1,000 YSU students this coming fall with scholarships and grants-in-aid.

The YEF helped 835 graduate and undergraduate student this past year, with their grants-in-aid outnumbering their scholarships.

YSU financial aids director

Colonel Wales says that the foundation provides more scholarships for YSU students than all other sources combined.

Student assistance from the foundation varies from $450 full tuition downward. Room, board and book costs are not assumed by the YEF.

Students are recommended by the YSU financial aids department on the basis of academic promise and need. These recommendations are followed closely by the YEF in their awards, said the chairman of the YEF scholarship committee, Dean Smith.

The YEF was incorporated in January of 1967 to help students who might not be able to attend school full-time for financial reasons and to help faculty members on leave for further study and research who might have difficulty subsisting on a university allowance which allots a maximum of half-salary. An average of six faculty members a year have received YEF aid upon the recommendation of President Pugsley.

The YEF is a permanent foundation which uses the income from its invested funds to help students and faculty. It has channeled certain funds raised for specific purposes while the university was private institution into their pledged projects. For example, $3.5 million were contributed to the Beeghly Physical Educator Center through the foundation. Private individuals, businesses, corporations and other foundations still continue to give money for the YEF in an effort to financially assist greater numbers of YSU students and faculty.

The Youngstown Educational Foundation has a thirty-member Board of Trustees comprised of many members of the old YU Board. Four of these members also sit on the nine-member YSU Board of Trustees.

Any YSU student who needs financial assistance may apply at the financial aids department. Do not apply directly to the YEF.

Abortion of Life

by Jim Jannes and Bob Larkey

INHIBITIONS OUT - The 90 degree heat at the Festival of Life produced various stages of undress as is exhibited by this bare-breasted participant and her friends.

WOODSTOCK REMEMBERED - These towers and contented crowds give the Louisiana landscape the appearance of the fabled rock festival of the summer of '69.

ENTERTAINING ELEPHANT - This elephant was part of the circus entourage brought to the Celebration to create a festival atmosphere.

(Editor's Note: Two Youngstown students traveled to Louisiana for the summer's major rock festival. They recorded the following impressions of the festival.)

Macrea, La.: "A Celebration of Life" . . . "Eight Days in the Country" . . . "A Retreat" . . . "An escape for the inner soul."

That's how the advertisements read. In other words, the promoters were promising a ready-made Woodstock. And the people came; those who had been to Woodstock, trying to recreate that almost mythical three days, those who had missed the original and were determined to create a second even greater festival, and those who just came for the music and "other things."

What they found was a full-scale disaster. There was intolerable heat and humidity (the temperature soared into the 90's every day by 9:00 a.m.), poor sanitation; little water; very little food; and very, very little peace, love and music.

However, even in the midst of the largest disasters, it is not hard to stumble onto the good things, no matter how small or seemingly insignificant. In a far corner of the 700 acre site was the crafts fair, probably one of the best organized exhibits at Celebration. Craftsmen from all over the country featured their leatherwork, handmade jewelry, and silk-creened shirts and posters. Many in this area sat in their tents during the muggy afternoons jamming on guitars and homemade instruments.

Then there was the music on stage. . . mellow John Sebastian recapping his "Spoonful" hits and just getting into some good old rock'n'roll: Chuck Berry who had 60,000 people at their feet shouting "Boogie, Brother.

Boogie" to "Roll Over Beethoven", and dancing for over two solid hours; Eric Burden and War, Boz Scaggs and Stephen Stills.

Other entertainment was provided by Molly Kova, high-wire artist who performed to the carnival-like strains of the Beatles' "Being for the Benefit of Mr. Kite." After Molly's "death-defying feats", the crowd settled back in the grass to watch an hour-long fireworks show set off to the rest of the "Sgt. Pepper" album played over the loud speaker system.

To stay off boredom, hunger and the heat; a trip into McCrea seemed like a good idea. There is only one general store in McCrea, Mr. R.D. Kimball's, in fact there is only one store, in fact there is only one building. . . period! Mr. Kimball, when asked about the people attending the festival, felt they were being cheated by the concession people charging exorbitant prices on the festival grounds (hamburgers were going for one dollar) and that the kids were the nicest and most honest people he had ever met.

Throughout the festival there were people helping each other to survive. . . leading others back to their campsites who had gotten lost in the night. . . and those who had even managed to get lost in the daytime. . . one swimmer saving another from rowing in the Atchafalaya River whose swift currents claimed two lives. . . people sharing what little food they had with friends just met, and probably, never to be seen again.

The festival closed after four days. It was a financial disaster, and generally considered a musical disaster since only eight of the thirty promised groups showed, but there was just a little peace and love; you just had to look for it.

POPULAR PERFORMER - John Sebastian, whose music was one of the highlights of the four days, relaxes while being interviewed on the festival grounds.

Poddar adds charges against officials

Dr. Bhagwati P.K. Poddar, has added charges of harassment and retaliation against the administration along with his original charge of discrimination on the basis of national origin with the civil rights investigatory division of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Dr. Poddar last filed a complaint with HEW charging a violation of his civil rights when he was refused promotion by the university.

Earlier, the Ohio Civil Rights Commission investigated Dr. Poddar's charges of discrimination. The investigation for the commission found probable cause.

However, the full Commission turned down the findings of its investigator. One of the members of the Commission is Mr. Clingan Jackson, an instructor in political science.

Late last year, the complaint was evaluated, docketed, accepted for investigation by HEW's Washington, D.C. headquarters, then forwarded to Chicago.

If discrimination and retaliation is found, HEW is empowered to withhold federal funds. It can also order a full compliance review if warranted by the investigation. The HEW representative is now preparing his report.

House continues hearings on student - trustee posts

Hearings continue in Columbus this week on Senate bill 352, which calls for expanding the Boards of trustees and the Ohio Board of Regents to include students and faculty members of state universities.

State Senator Harry Meshel of Youngstown reports from Columbus that the bill, co-sponsored by himself and State Senator William F. Bowend, is now in the process of being examined in detail by a State Senate Hearing Committee. Here the various components of the bill are being discussed and if there are any amendments to the bill they will be made here, before the bill is passed on to the State House of Representatives.

Senator Meshel was not overly optimistic about the outcome of the hearings because of what he calls "the seeming lack of interest of impartial persons."

Hearings on this bill have now been placed on the agenda for every Wednesday evening at 8:00 p.m. in room "E" of the State Senate hearing room in Columbus until testimony on the bill has been completed.

partment and the department of advertising and public relations.

"I regard this as immoral, illegal, and contrary to common sense, but the administration does not seem at present inclined to straighten out this confusion.

"The fact of the matter is that the advertising and public relations department enroll far more students than the English department courses, but nevertheless, the English department courses are the sole support of the Jambar and offer students training that they will need to begin careers in professional journalism."

Dr. Hare never censored the Jambar even though he had the authority to do so. "I did suggest that an article or part of one be omitted, but never insisted that it be done," he said.

"As a matter of fact, I have far more often encouraged the printing of stories than discouraged the printing of stories that were unsuitable. I feel the students have the right to express their own views and that the university community is served better by full coverage than by any kind of suppression."

Besides having been in the newspaper business and working as a university professor, Dr. Hare was a dairy farmer in Eastern Shore, Maryland, for ten years.

Recently the Supreme Court reversed Ali's conviction by a lower court as a draft evader. Ali is scheduled to fight Jimmy Ellis on July 26 at the Houston Astrodome in Texas.

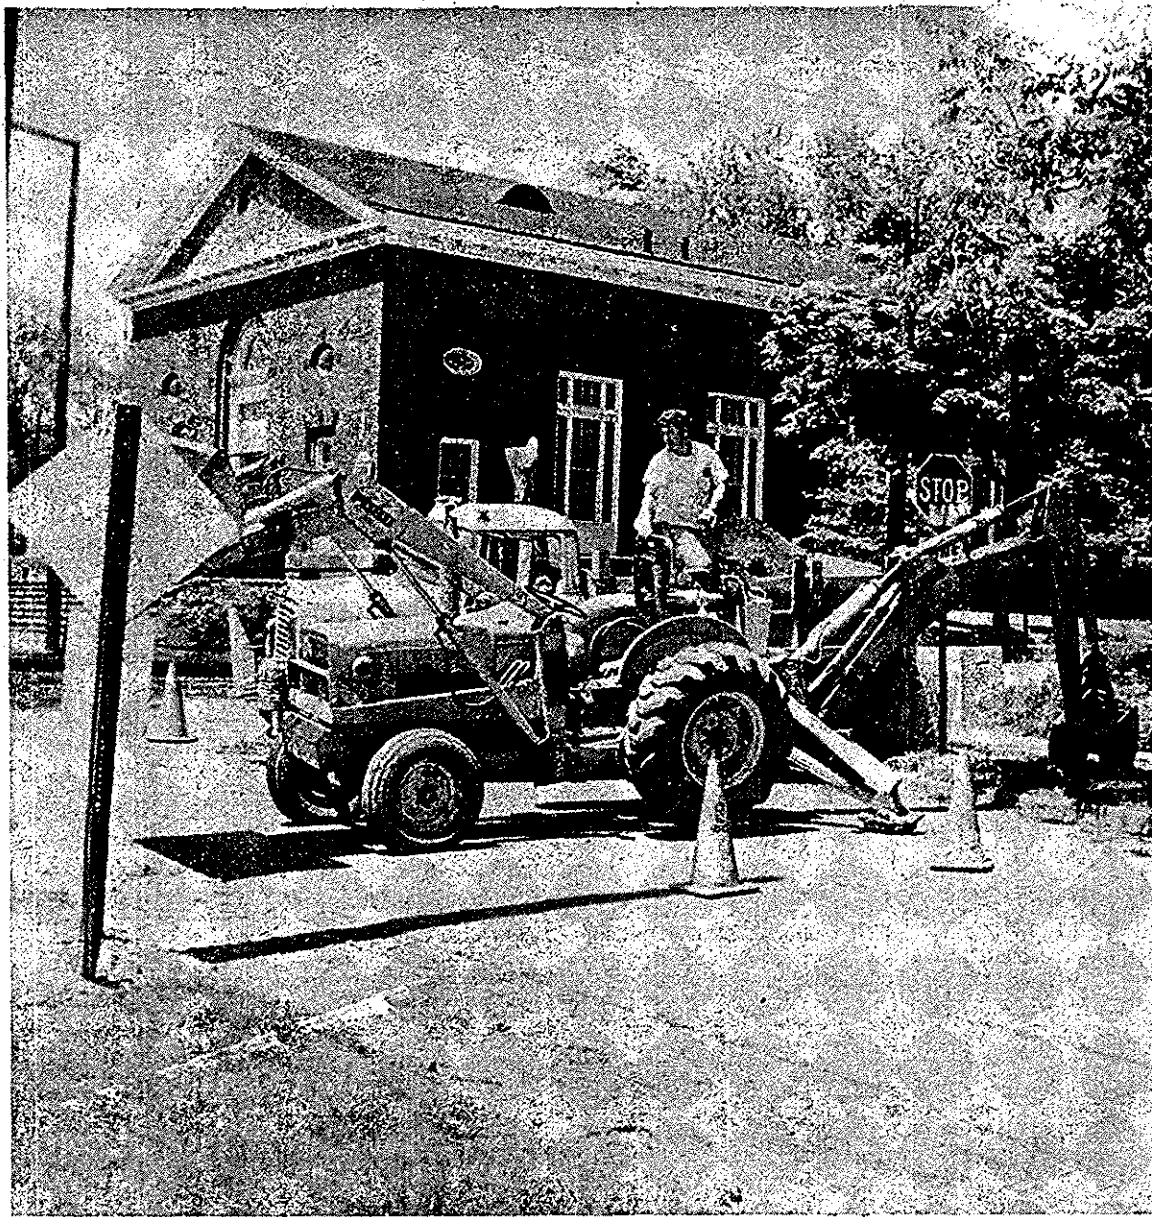

The former heavyweight champion fought 106 amateur bouts. In his professional career, he has fought 32 fights, winning 31, 25 by knockouts. He lost to Joe Frazier on March 8, 1971 in the Madison Square Garden while attempting to regain his championship status.

Named "Fighter of the Year" in 1965 by the Boxing Writers Association, he was also awarded the Edward J. Neill Memorial Trophy.

Sponsors of the event do not yet know the cost of the tickets and are considering free admission.

Proceeds from the ticket sale, if any, will go to help improve the recreational facilities for youths on the Northeastside and Southside of Youngstown in the Model Cities Project areas.
