Campus police slam brakes on car theft rate

By SUE KNAPIC
Jambar News Editor

1987 was a good year for the Campus Police Department, but not as good for motor vehicle thieves.

The Department was able to cut motor vehicle thefts by more than 50 percent from 1986.

According to Campus Police Chief Richard Turkiewicz, the total fell from 20 motor vehicle thefts in 1986 to only nine in 1987.

Turkiewicz said the Department is attributing the decline to better patrol and a more aggressive follow-up on the thefts.

"We wanted to reduce the amount of thefts [that occurred on campus] and we targeted that area," Turkiewicz said.

We are not happy with nine car thefts, we want it reduced to nothing.
Police Chief Richard Turkiewicz

Even with the reduction in thefts over the previous year, Turkiewicz said the Police Department is not happy with the totals: "We are not happy with nine car thefts; we want it reduced to nothing," he said.

Overall, Turkiewicz said the Department is pleased about the drop in thefts: "The officers feel positive that if you put your mind and efforts towards something it can be instrumental" to improving the safety of our campus.

Job opportunities up slightly

From College Press Service

Students graduating from college this school year will find job opportunities scarce, but more plentiful than last year, a recent survey said.

Michigan State University's annual survey of employers in business, industry, government and education showed that employers had planned to hire 5.5 percent more graduates than last year. But, after the "crash" of October 19, companies scaled back their hiring plans by 1.7 percent.

Like other surveys, the MSU study found that students in technical fields like engineering can expect to find the highest starting salaries and the greatest demand.

Starting salaries for students with bachelor's degrees should average $22,600. Chemical engineering graduates can expect offers of about $30,190.

At Northrup University near Los Angeles, placement director Joella Marshall reports students with technical majors were "hired before the ink is dry" on their degrees.

University of Oklahoma engineering and accounting majors are pulling in 22 percent more recruiting visits than last year, placement director Bill Audas said.

OU accounting majors are getting annual starting salary offers of $23-$27,000, but "most at the low end," while physical and mechanical engineers could anticipate starting salary offers of $29-$30,000.

Northrup technical majors are getting salary offers in the low 30s, Marshall's figures showed.

Nationwide, the lowest starting salaries, said MSU's John Shingleton, who conducted the Trustees accept over $300,000 in gifts

YSU — The Board of Trustees accepted a total of $314,291 in gifts, grants and contracts at its December meeting.

This included $93,499 for the Annual Fund, $25,024 for the University's radio station, WYSU-FM, equipment valued at $115,604, and $80,164 in grants and contracts.

The equipment contributions included a Circuit Board Design System from IBM valued at $97,950 for the Computer Center and eight computers from Phar Mor Inc., valued at $13,444, for the School of Business and the Athletic Department.

The Annual Fund gifts recognized at this meeting included an additional $50,000 for the previously established John W. and Lucille G. Fedor Scholarship Fund and $2,000 to establish a new Gerhard M. Stein Electrical Engineering Scholarship Fund.

Mrs. Fedor was an elementary teacher in Campbell schools, where her husband, John, was a principal. Last fall it was announced her will John Einfalt, graduate student in Materials Engineering, signs up for the Career Services workshops with the help of Carol Cook, coordinator of Career Services. Seniors preparing for graduation can attend the seminars (Office Orientation, Job Search, Resume Writing, and Interviewing Techniques) being offered in Jones Hall Jan. 11-14 at 2 p.m. Or students can call the Career Services office at 742-3515 to arrange to view a seminar on video tape.

Program examines home problems

YSU — The College for the 60-Plus program will offer an opportunity for those 60 and older to diagnose problems in the structure of homes.

Dr. John Cernica, Engineering, will lecture on "What Every Homeowner Should Know" from 2-3:30 p.m. Jan. 12, in Room 2068 Kilcawley Center.

His talk will include remedies for leaky basements, concrete cracks and foundation problems.

Cernica, a member of the faculty since 1957, was chairman of the civil engineering department for nearly 19 years.

He has authored five textbooks, a variety of papers, and has received many awards, including "Outstanding Civil Engineer of the Year" from the Youngstown Branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers, "Outstanding Professional Engineer" from the Ohio

Society of Professional Engineers, the city of Campbell's "Man of the Year" award, and YSU's "Distinguished Professor" award.

Reservations may be made by calling the University's Office of Continuing Education/Education Outreach at 742-3358.

The College for the 60-Plus enables Ohio residents 60 and over to take University classes free of charge.

Regents offer awards

By ROB CICCOTELLI
Jambar Reporter

The Ohio Board of Regents Graduate/Professional Fellowship Program offers Regents Fellowship awards of $3,500 each year for two years for graduate school to the most outstanding baccalaureate graduates in Ohio.

The program is intended to attract and retain in Ohio some of the most talented baccalaureate graduates of Ohio colleges who pursue graduate study.

At least one fellowship will be awarded to a senior from each eligible public or private college or university in Ohio.

To be eligible a student should have earned a baccalaureate degree at an Ohio college or university holding a certificate of authorization from the OBR, plan to enroll full-time to earn a graduate degree at an eligible Ohio graduate or graduate professional school and be a U.S. citizen.

Applicants must rank among the top of the class as of Feb. 1 of their senior year, or percentile placement on professional examinations such as GRE, MCAT, GMAT, or LSAT must be at least 90. Also, complete transcripts of all undergraduate work must be provided.

In addition to an interview, candidates must submit a written essay with the topic and length specified by the OBR.

Individuals interested in obtaining application materials for these fellowships should contact Beth Kushner between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays at the Graduate School office, 3001 Jones Hall.

Completed applications and supporting materials should be turned in to the Graduate School office by 5 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1, 1988.

Drug awareness program sought

YSU — The U.S. Department of Education is just saying "yes" when it comes to drug awareness.

An Inter-Association Task Force on Alcohol and Other Substance Abuse Issues of the Department of Education has declared the second week of February to be the first National Collegiate Drug Awareness Week.

YSU will also be saying "yes" to the program, according to Counseling and Health Services.

South High alumni give scholarship

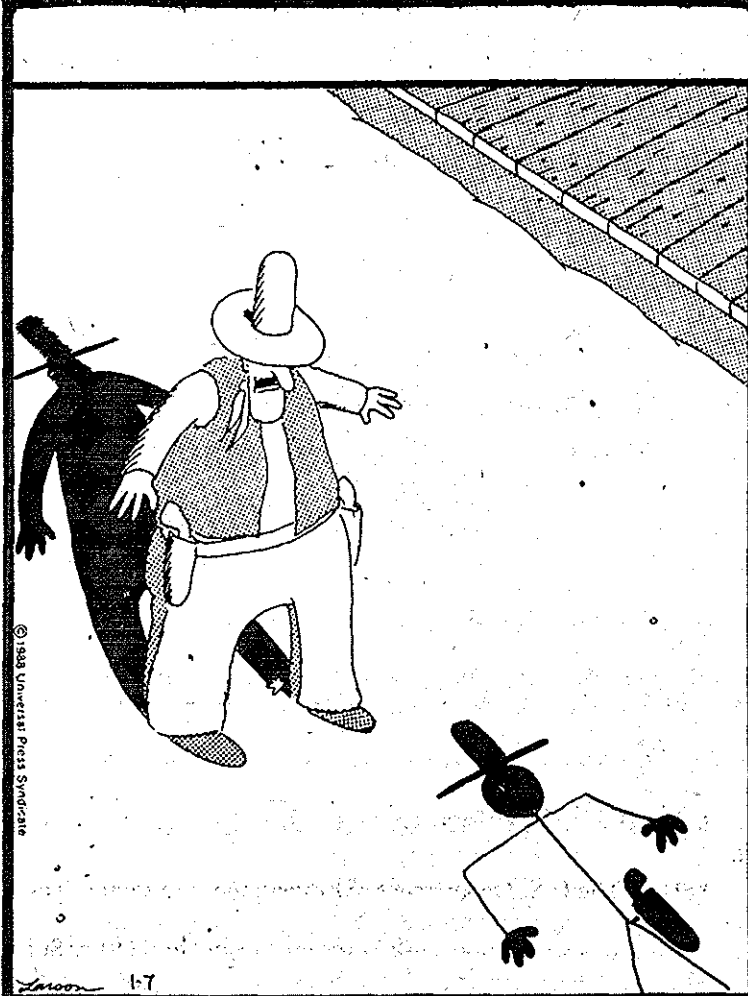

YSU — A new scholarship for YSU-bound South High School students has been established due to the generosity of the South High Class of 1937.

The 50th Alumni Reunion Committee donated $840.59 for a $100 yearly scholarship to be given to that South High School student with the most outstanding academic record who chooses to attend YSU.

The committee, made up of coordinators William C. Mittler, Don Labruzzo and Audrey Masternick, along with Class of '37 secretary Carolyn Miller and treasurer Howard Bauschatz, stipulated that the fund be used for eight or nine years until the money is depleted.

The Class of 1937 South High School Scholarship will be administered by the Youngstown State University Foundation.

Black fraternity admits first white

From College Press Service

Phi Beta Sigma, a heretofore black fraternity, inducted Mark Brafford, a white student from Florida into the house recently, integrating a University of Alabama fraternity for the first time in 140 years.

The induction occurred as a number of black Greek houses were moving onto Alabama's traditionally white Greek Row for the first time this fall.

Last year, the predominantly black Zeta Phi Beta sorority inducted a white woman at Alabama to which Joab Thomas, university president replied: "I think that's terrific."

Brafford told the student paper, The Crimson & White, he joined Phi Beta Sigma because "they don't stifle your individuality. All the other fraternities, through my eyes, seem to want to mold you to be like everyone else."

Sometimes, such integration can be only haltingly successful. A white student joined the University of Pennsylvania's Black Student League [BSL] last year, but the BSL, after some members protested, effectively downgraded the student's membership to "associate" status.

Report says graduates earning more

From College Press Service

In a report released last October, the U.S. Census Bureau estimated that college students who graduate earn an average of $672 more a month than students who drop out of college before graduating.

They gross an average of $1,841 a month, while people who hold two-year degrees average $1,346 a month.

"The piece of paper," concluded the Census Bureau's Robert Kominski in a statement accompanying the report, called "What's It Worth?", "means something. [Diplomas] mean something to employers and to the success of individuals."

Law, dental and med school grads, the study found, earned about 5 times as much per month as high school dropouts.

People who earned doctorates made a little more than 4 times more than high school dropouts, who average $693 a month, while students with four-year undergrad degrees made more than twice as much.

The Census Bureau found about 21 percent of the population holds a college degree.

Tax change may lift bookstore prices

From College Press Service

The price students pay for computers, stereos, greeting cards and maybe even textbooks at campus bookstores nationwide may be rising again soon, perhaps by as much as 20 percent, college store managers say.

The U.S. Treasury wants to change a small part of the tax code, and, if it's subsequently endorsed by Congress—which will soon issue its opinion about the change—campus bookstores will lose the special advantages that let them charge less for the items they sell.

Small businesses that sell the same things off campus want the code changed because they say they can't compete with campus businesses that, in turn, are supported by state taxes that they themselves pay.

Objectivity, beer flow together

Kilcawley Director Phil Hirsch and the Pub staff should be applauded for their decision to allow beer to be sold beginning at 2 p.m.

The decision to start selling beer three hours earlier isn't the focus of this editorial, but the principle behind the decision deserves recognition.

When Ohio lawmakers voted to increase the drinking age to 21 last summer, Hirsch decided to ban beer sales until 5 p.m. At the time, Hirsch believed the decision would best allow the University to comply with the law and control and monitor Pub crowds.

Although The Jambar disagreed with the decision and the manner in which it was made, we understood that a decision had to be made. Hirsch was working under time restraints and was responsible for the actions of a large number of people.

Hirsch made a decision on a controversial issue and stuck to it. It is now time to commend Hirsch for not allowing his decision to be carved in stone. Instead, he followed the issue, monitored the reaction and kept an open mind about the beer sales.

Having an administrator who possesses objectivity and open-mindedness on controversial issues is an asset to the YSU community.

Promises, pockets are empty

The recent tuition increase by the YSU Board of Trustees is an unfortunate decision that will create financial problems for many present and future students.

However, the increase was unavoidable. Students should voice their concerns to the local governing board and, more importantly, to Gov. Richard F. Celeste.

Celeste is an official who once came to this institution and spoke on how much he was in favor of higher education and its importance. He is also an official who did not add any money to the higher education budget for 1988-89.

Celeste's promises and actions are a contradiction in Mr. Webster's eyes. Celeste's promises are like the pockets of the financially strapped Ohio college student — empty.

From the local point of view, the three-year tuition freeze from 1983-86 seemed to melt under heated budget restraints.

The decision to freeze tuition for a three-year period seemed very novel at the time. However, the authors did not anticipate the outcome: a 12 percent, 9 percent and 11.1 percent tuition increase from fall 1986 to the summer of 1988.

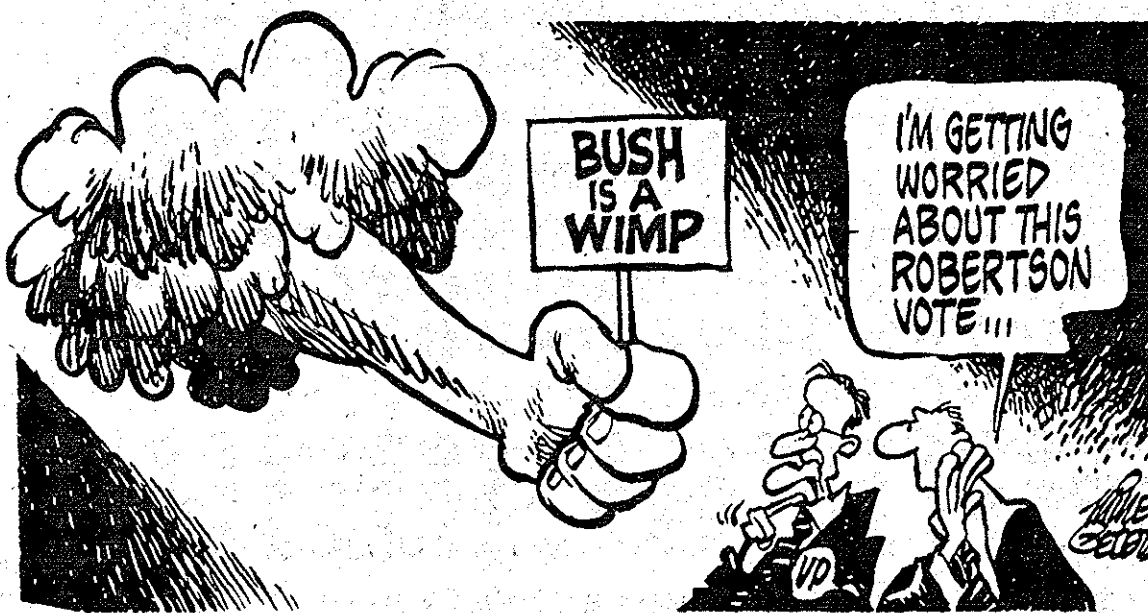

A gradual tuition increase over the last five years would have been more bearable financially for students.

Let us hope this University can learn from past mistakes since current students had the misfortune of being born after our 1983-85 predecessors.

COMMENTARY

Vote for a candidate with a cause

The start of any new year causes some excitement; but this year promises to be even more eventful than others. The month of February gains an extra day, the Olympics keep pulses throbbing, and most importantly — 1988 is the year American voters choose a new President.

Some people following the presidential quest have noted the lack of excitement among the candidates. Even more notable is the lack of enthusiasm for any of the present candidates.

Since U.S. Rep. James Traficant proved it's never impossible to enter a presidential race, and Gary Hart proved it's never too late to re-enter the race, I'd like to nominate my own candidates for the '88 election — ones who should spark some enthusiasm.

My choice for Vice-President would be Councilman Michael O'Brien of Warren, who was recently recognized in a newspaper article for some of his unusual contributions.

It seems that the old cement-style street signs in O'Brien's ward were in poor shape, and barely readable. Calls to the street department by concerned residents, however, fell on deaf ears.

Amidst a barrage of complaints by his constituents, O'Brien took the problem — and the brush — in hand. He spent several hours after work and on Saturdays repainting the street signs, and restoring some civic pride to the community he represents.

The other slot on this election ticket would be filled by New York City Mayor Edward Koch. Always outspoken and having a penchant for publicity, Koch recently proved again that he's presidential material.

DEBORA SHAULIS,
MANAGING EDITOR

Not too long ago, after a hard day at the office, Koch (a self-proclaimed film fanatic) departed for the nearest movie theatre. Upon his arrival, he found the ticket price had been raised from $6 to $7.

Rather than just compare the price of the ticket to the high price of Raisinettes these days, Koch took action.

Monday night he joined a protest group of outraged moviegoers called Boycott 7 and stood outside movie theatres in New York. Koch and company passed out flyers and tried to persuade others to boycott the cinemas until the original price was restored. He also vowed to continue the protest as long as he had his "army" of supporters behind him.

The Koch-O'Brien ticket may be a virtually impossible one, but there is an important point to be made: They believed in a cause and became involved in it, personally as well as professionally. They were able to identify with the people they serve and served them well as a result. Their names may not appear on the presidential ballot come November, but maybe the voters will be able to find someone who shows these same characteristics.

Hey, if Pat Robertson can run for President, . . .

Student is boiling over chilly temperatures

Dear Editor,
Have you ever walked through Kilcawley Center in the dead of summer, when it's 90 degrees outside, only to find that Kilcawley Center is as cold as the North Pole?
Or how about in the dead of winter, when you expect to walk into a nice warm building...you find that Kilcawley Center is again uncomfortably frigid.

Try sitting in the lounge across from Dollar Bank (behind the copy center.) You'll find that your nose starts to run, your teeth chatter and you get very, very cold!
Why? Why can't the management of Kilcawley Center do their normal good job and maintain the climate at a pleasant 70-72 degrees? If they have problems, I'm sure they could get help from the heating, ventilation and air-conditioning experts in the School of Engineering.

It isn't too much to ask is it? All we want is a comfortable climate to study and socialize in.
I wonder if president Humphrey's office is this cold...

High school band director thanks Dana

Dear Editor:
My name is Ann Chasanov and I am the band director at South High School and at Bennett and Cleveland Elementary Schools here in Youngstown.
I am writing this letter to thank your Dana School of Music students for their efforts to help me recruit fifth grade students for the Instrumental Music Programs at Bennett and Cleveland Elementary Schools.

Karla Kisaberth, Tracy Guerin, Bob Kleinschmidt and George Miklas took time out of their busy schedules to introduce the world of instrumental music to the fifth graders of Bennett and Cleveland Elementary Schools.
The elementary students had the valuable opportunity to see and hear each instrument being played, while the University students had the opportunity to influence a new generation of potential musicians.

It means so much to me and to the music department of the Youngstown city schools to have a cooperative resource from which to draw.
Many thanks to Karla, Tracy, Bob, George and for Edwards, director of Dana School of Music.

University campus in Pullman, Wash., told a House subcommittee hearing last summer, "that private, for-profit, tax-paying organizations would be overjoyed if they could develop an 80 percent membership base in the community, enjoy special postage privileges, have direct access to the line of credit of the state university, receive discounted advertising rates in a local newspaper, have all utilities provided from a central utility service, have access to a government telecommunications system, plus have the good reputation of a university."
Brong's company declared a form of bankruptcy after being unable to match the computer prices offered by the WSU computer center.

College store discounts are "definitely restricting the growth of some companies," said Kenton Pattie of the International Communication Industries Association, a trade group that represents small computer, video and audio retailers and manufacturers. "In some cases, they're killing off businesses."
The small businesses' complaints prompted the U.S. Treasury to propose to prevent nonprofit groups like colleges from using their tax-exempt status to compete unfairly with off-campus retail stores.
But the change, campus bookstores officials say, would raise the prices of most items, and might even make it harder to get textbooks for small classes.
"Most colleges lose money on textbooks," claimed Garis Distelhorst of the National Association of College Stores, a Cleveland, Ohio, based group that represents campus bookstores.

YSU gears up for a little education

By JUDY BARBER
Jambar Reporter

YSU is taking in a different type of student these days: They're a little shorter, ask a lot of questions and like milk and cookies for lunch.

Registration of 3-½ to 5-year-old children is now being accepted in the School of Education for free preschool classes, which are offered as part of a preschool practicum for YSU child care majors.

The program is open to the public, and is offered from 9:30 a.m. to noon on either Thursdays or Saturdays during both winter and spring quarters. Children's names may be placed on a general waiting list or a list for a specific class, but children can attend only one class a week.

The preschool classes are held in the Education building, contain a maximum of 12 children, and provide individual and group learning experiences, including art, music, science, motor and language development, and social skills.

Judy Walker, elementary education graduate assistant, who is responsible for registering children, suggests children come to the preschool without friends, explaining that all children then "start out at the same basis."

Walker explained, "If they (the children) come with a friend, they tend to stay with that friend and not extend their social circle."

The preschool is state certified and taught by YSU students under the supervision of Dr. Margaret Braden, instructor for the practicum, Education 630. The practicum combines classroom instruction with practical experience in teaching the preschool.

For more information, contact the elementary education and reading department at 742-3251.

60-Plus program offers Lotus workshop

YSU — YSU's Office of Continuing Education will offer a course on the Lotus 1-2-3 software package of microcomputers and another on "Construction Estimating."

"Introduction To Lotus 1-2-3" is for those who want to learn the basics of the Lotus 1-2-3 program but have no programming experience.

The classes for this course will be held from 5:40-7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, Jan. 26 through Feb. 23. The course fee is $190, or $175 for those registering before Jan. 12.

William L. Brown, CPA, finance and systems director with Allied Human Services, will instruct this hands-on course. It will be especially helpful for new users of microcomputers, from business owners to executives.

The "Construction Estimating" class will be held from 5:40-7:30 p.m. on Mondays, Feb. 8-March 14. The course fee is $90, or $75 for registrations received by Jan. 25.

Herb Moore, architect with YSU's University Facilities, will instruct the course which details various methods of estimating construction project costs. Ways to use plans and specifications in preparing and submitting bids to private owners and for public projects will be detailed, and insurance and bonding requirements will be discussed.

To register, or for more information, call 742-3358.

Cleveland dance troupe steps into YSU workshops

YSU — The Modern Dance Ensemble at YSU is planning several major dance events this winter and spring and will also sponsor an appearance of the Tom Evert Dance Company on campus Wednesday, Jan. 27.

Auditions for the Ensemble's performances will be from 5:30-7:30 p.m., Thursday and Friday, Jan. 14-15, in Room 100 of Beeghly Center.

Joan Wagman, artistic director and advisor for the Ensemble, said there is no need to prepare material in advance for the audition.

Dancers will be selected for both a large ensemble to perform in a spring concert (the date will be announced) and for a small touring company that will present a mini-concert for Youngstown area schools.

Following those events, the Tom Evert Dance Company of Cleveland will present two programs on Jan. 27, in Room 119 of Beeghly Center.

Troupe leads workshops: Members of the Tom Evert Dance Company will be the guests of the YSU Dance Ensemble as the latter is sponsoring two workshops with the assistance of the Company on Wednesday, Jan. 27.

Evert will teach a master class in basic modern dance technique from 4-5:30 p.m., and he and his troupe will give a lecture/performance of the company's repertoire at 8 p.m. Admission will be $2 per event or $3 for both of the programs. YSU students will be admitted free with their ID card. For reservations, call 742-1899 or 742-7150.

Evert is an Ohio native who returned to found his own company after a distinguished career in New York. While there, he danced with the Phyllis Lamhut Dance Company and performed and toured the world with the famed Paul Taylor Dance Company.

Wagman, who is instructor of dance in YSU's department of health and physical education, reports a growing interest in modern dance, both on campus and in the community.

She announced that with the increased activities and interest, the YSU Dance Ensemble is now issuing a quarterly newsletter that lists modern dance events on campus and throughout the region, including Akron, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

"These events are for everyone interested in dance, whether one prefers to watch professional dance concerts, study technique and/or to perform," Wagman said.

Anyone interested in receiving the Dance Ensemble newsletter, or with questions about upcoming events, may contact Wagman at 742-1899 weekdays.

All of the aforementioned events are open to the general public as well as the YSU community.

Orchestra sets open meeting

YSU — All interested musicians, particularly string players, are invited to attend the opening rehearsal of the YSU College-Community Orchestra at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 12. The meeting will be held in the Orchestra/Band Room of Bliss Hall.

Michael Gelfand, music, is the director of the orchestra. He stated that all past, present and new members are invited to join in the preparations for the orchestra's third annual Pops Concert, which will be presented on March 7.

The orchestra is composed of students, faculty and community musicians. Last year over 60 people from all walks of life participated in the group.

Gallery shows students' works

The show, entitled "The Art of Graphic Design," began Jan. 4 and will continue until Jan. 23.

A reception will be held this evening from 6-8 p.m., with all 173 works on display.

Six different categories are being exhibited, on the second floor of Kilcawley Center. The six are: typography, posters, illustrations, computer graphics, publication designs and books.

Some creators of the works are: Debbie Allen, sophomore, CAST; George Halas, junior, F&PA; Nancy Diana, senior, F&PA; and Chris Leeper, junior, F&PA.

Susan Russo, art, chose the works to be displayed in this exhibition.

The hours for the Gallery are: 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday, Thursday and Friday; 10 a.m.-7 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday; and 11 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday.

Butler, Dana concert planned

YSU — As a part of the Dana Concert Series and the Butler Institute of American Art's ongoing succession of weekly performances, the YSU Men's Chorus will be presented at 12:15 p.m. on Wednesday, January 13.

The Chorus, under the direction of Wendell E. Orr, music, will feature songs from The Testament of Freedom, "A Setting of Four Passages from the Writings of Thomas Jefferson."

The concerts are free and open to the YSU community as well as the general public and all are invited to bring a lunch to the half hour event.

The next concert, which takes place at 12:15 p.m. on Wednesday, January 20, will feature the Dana Faculty Ensemble.

Come dine with us

JOHN CHAMBERS/THE JAMBAR

Looking for a record

YSU senior Dorothy Bowers looks for an opener player in recent action. The star forward needed only 25 points going into last night's game at Robert Morris to break the Penguin career scoring mark set by Wanda Grant. The Jambar was not notified at press time as to the result of the game.

Gilmore, team prepare for Zips

By TIM LEONARD
Jambar Sports Reporter

Jim Gilmore missed only one start last year for the Penguins. This season, he didn't even start the first six basketball games.

But, since the Tennessee State game when he made his first start, the Penguins are 4-0 and he has captured the MVP of the Greater Youngstown Classic.

"He'll be starting as long as he continues to play well," Penguins' coach Jim Clemons said.

When Gilmore slipped into the starting lineup, the Penguins were 2-4; now they're 6-4 and he said he expects they'll improve their record against Akron (6-4) at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday at Beeghly Center.

"I think we should beat them," Gilmore said, "because we're playing real good now. By game time, we should be really pumped up because it's a rivalry."

Akron comes in fresh from a loss to Cleveland State, 80-73, a team which beat YSU by 28 points in December. Earlier in the season, the Zips lost by four points to the Pitt Panthers, presently ranked No. 2 in the country.

The Zips, coached by Bob Huggins, are led by guard Eric McLaughlin, a junior, averaging 15.6 points, and 6-foot-6 forward Shawn Roberts, a junior, averaging 13.8 points and 7 rebounds. Akron also has freshman guard Anthony Buford, who leads the team in three-point shots (20-41 for 50 percent).

The Penguins look to avenge the 103-74 drubbing that Akron inflicted in last year's first-round OVC action. The Zips later participated in the National Invitation Tournament. The previous year they made the NCAA tournament.

"They beat us pretty bad, but that was our fault," said Gilmore. "We didn't play any." See Gilmore, page 11

Free t-shirts for Penguin boosters; Track team sets organizing meeting

Penguin fans, it's time to show your true colors — red and white — once again. The most fashionable piece of clothing to be found now on the YSU campus is the sporty red and white Penguin Rebounders Club T-shirt.

Burger King in conjunction with the YSU Athletic Depart- ment is sponsoring the student booster club for Penguin games at Rosselli Court.

Each member of the club will be given the Penguin Rebounders Club T-shirt for free. The members of the club will have their own section in Beeghly Center (Section 8, located behind the south-end backboard). This section has been dubbed the Bad Attitude Section.

The only requirements to enter the club and section is that you are a current YSU student and that you have a roll of toilet paper to heave after the Penguins put their first points of the evening on the board.

Membership is limited to only 250 members. Yours truly has already been named president of this club. The Jambar staff will be passing out the T-shirts at Saturday's game against Akron, and Friday in The Jambar office.

That's right — those wonderful Zippers from Akron will be invading Beeghly again Saturday night, bringing their rat-of-a-mascot Zitty with them. Let's make the bus ride back to Akron Saturday night the longest they've ever taken.

Back in November, before their matchup in the Blizzard Bowl with Akron, I gave coach Jim Tressel and his squad, defense. We were taking a lot of shots that weren't called for."

Red-hot: YSU guard Jim Gilmore looks inside for the open man during action over the winter break. The senior from Warren Western Reserve has been a hot shooter for the Penguins since returning to the YSU starting line-up, helping them to four straight wins.

While presently second on the team in scoring (12.2), and third in rebounding (4.2), Gilmore has been the Penguins' leading scorer during the last four games, outscoring Tilman Bevely 57-55. Bevely, however, is YSU's scoring leader of the season with a 15-point average.

During the Penguins' holiday tournament, Gilmore scored 27 points in the championship while beating Radford. He and Cortney Gilmore both landed on the All-Tournament Team. He also won the tournament's MVP, named the Bill Dailey Award, in honor of the Penguins' head basketball coach who passed away last August.

"It felt real good — great. Because Coach Dailey was my man," said Gilmore. "He was like a father to me. I hated it when we lost him. I wish he was still here."

He said it was truly special when Barb Dailey, Bill's wife, presented the trophy to him.

"It was great. It made me feel that it came from him [Dailey], but he just couldn't make the trip, like he was in the hospital."

In the tournament championship, Gilmore was 11-of-16 from the field, 5-of-5 at the free throw line, then grabbed four rebounds.

"He was simply outstanding, especially in the second game," said Clemons. "He won the MVP, and deservedly so."

Even in the season-opening win over Wooster, while in a non-starting role, Gilmore was already scoring — a game-high 16 points. He said he was shocked to start the season on the bench, but said Clemons wanted an experienced player coming off the bench.

"It surprised me, but then (Clemons) talked to me after a practice and told me I'll have to accept it, or it was going to be a long season," Gilmore said.

Gilmore accepted it, and now he's accepting his starting role. But he said he wants to achieve more this season.

"I hope to go real far," he said. "I hope to make the NCAA (tournament), but as long as we finish in the top three in the league, that's all I care about, so we'll get a homecourt (advantage)."

survey, was $16,600 for geology majors.

The MSU survey indicated the best employment opportunities for new graduates are in the Southwest and Northeast.

Oklahoma's Audas, however, cautions, "the economy here is crummy."

In the Northwest, the economy "is lagging behind. Jobs are a little harder to come by," said Louis Lallas, placement director for Western Washington University.

Business majors everywhere will probably feel the effects of the precipitous stock market decline of Oct. 19, when the Dow Jones Industrial Average fell in record 508 points in one day.

Shortly after the crash, Bankers Trust Co. and Shearson Lehman Brothers cancelled out of a symposium on careers in finance for MBA students at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton Graduate School.

Placement officers say top business schools like Harvard, Columbia, Stanford, Kellogg and the Sloan School of Management have sent 21 to 30 percent of their graduates to Wall Street. Following the crash, those numbers will fall considerably, placement officers say.

Audas of Oklahoma recalls that some of the firms that showed up to recruit business majors at the time of the crash were "very blue."

"They came here to lure people to their companies, and now some of them are in big trouble," said Audas. "Their need for people has not increased."

One company cancelled interviews at Northrup following the crash, and a few suspended hiring until the financial picture cleared, Marshall said.

The hiring picture was also uncertain for liberal arts students.

While Audas said Proctor and Gamble, Playtex and Lever Brothers are recruiting liberal arts majors as salespeople with starting salaries as high as $24,000, Western Washington's Lallas added it typically takes them longer to find jobs than other students.

Lallas added Western Washington liberal arts grads are getting starting offers of about $17-$19,000.

Education majors are having the hardest time in Washington, Lallas said.

"Washington can't support its need for teachers. There's no budget," he said. "A teacher wanting to stay in the state will have a difficult time finding a position."

MSU's survey indicates students will do well to apply to small businesses, which plan to increase hiring by 10 to 17 percent over last year.

Hotel, restaurant and institution management hiring will also increase by 4.3 percent.

Graduates with master's degrees can expect starting salaries of about $27,700, up 2.3 percent from last year, the MSU survey showed.

Students will find that about 27 percent of their prospective employers test for drug use, while 2 percent test for AIDS, the MSU survey found.

a few words of advice in a column. I now offer coach Jim Clemons and the Penguin cagers the same line of advice for Saturday's game with the Zippers — Take No Prisoners!

The 1988 track and field season is quickly approaching. All athletes interested in competing at the collegiate level should contact either Patty Metzler in the Sports Information office, at 742-3191, or Jack Rigney, at 742-1909.

There will be an organizational meeting held in room 1049-50 of Stambaugh Stadium, at 5 p.m., on Thursday, January 21.

Last quarter we introduced Butch's Bakers' Dozen, a weekly look at the best collegiate basketball teams by a member of The Jambar sports staff. We'll be looking at the picks of our master poll-taker weekly in the column.

Here's Butch's picks for this week:

1. Kentucky (10-0)
2. Arizona (9-1)
3. North Carolina (11-1)
4. Syracuse (10-1)
5. Pitt (9-1)
6. Duke (10-1)
7. Michigan (12-1)
8. Oklahoma (11-0)
9. Temple (9-0)
10. Iowa (11-2)
11. Purdue (11-1)
12. Georgetown (12-1), and
13. Detroit (0-11).

Butch explains his pick of Detroit this way: "The Titans are following in the tradition set by their hometown NFL team, the Lions. Any team 0-11 deserves a little credit for finding so many different ways to lose each game."

We'll see you all Saturday at Beeghly — let's get the house rocking — and...Go Penguins!
