Students get shock from computer foul up

By SUE KNAPIC
 Jambar News Editor

Over 7,200 YSU students received a shock last week when they received their grade reports for winter quarter — but not because they did poorly in the classroom.

An error with the computation of the accumulative grade point average, done on the mainframe computer in Meshel Hall, caused the students' shock. Many students found their accumulative GPAs to be reduced substantially, as the computer system printed zeros instead of the correct tenths following the decimal point, according to Dr. Harold Yiannaki, registrar.

Several other students, however, reported other problems with their GPAs, including errors in the computation of cumulative quality points.

Grade reports are printed and mailed according to students' zip codes, and the error was limited to those whose zip codes fell into the second half of the University's list, said Yiannaki.

The only error occurred on the actual report cards, he added, and none of the departmental records were affected by the mistake.

The phone calls to the Registrar's Office alerted them to the error, Yiannaki said. After several students phoned in to complain, the staff realized an error had been made and that new report cards would have to be issued.

Yiannaki said the mistake occurred within the computer system and no other mistake such as this has ever occurred in the past.

The error cost the University approximately $1,300, as corrected report cards were sent to all University students.

Yiannaki said he and his staff would gladly help anyone who believes there is still a problem with their report card.

Thomas W. Doctor, director of the Computer Center, was unavailable to comment on the actual problem with the computer system.

Student remains serious after fall

From Jambar Staff Reports

A YSU student remains in serious condition in a Daytona Beach hospital, one week after he fell off the balcony of a motel during his Spring Break vacation.

David Brine, senior, A&S from Girard, was moved from intensive care and listed in serious but stable condition, said a spokesman from Halifax Medical Center in Daytona Monday afternoon.

According to police reports, Brine was jumping, or "leapfrogging," from balcony to balcony on the fourth floor of the Voyager Hotel. He lost his grip and fell approximately 48 feet, striking other balconies and Spring Break week kept the Campus Police Department on its toes; the fifth vehicle since January 1 was reported stolen from the V-4 parking lot on March 21.

Campus Police reports stated the 1985 Oldsmobile Ciera, valued at $8,500, was parked in the lot (facing Meshel Hall) at 7:45 a.m. When the owner returned to the lot at 5 p.m., the vehicle was missing.

House Bill 34 finally gets OK from legislators

By ERIKA HANZELY
 Jambar Assistant News Editor

College students across the state won a major battle on Friday, March 19.

The fight to place students on the Board of Trustees at state schools has been going on for 16 years. State legislators finally okayed House Bill 34 after heavy lobbying by students.

Student Government President Marvin Robinson has been fighting for the bill since he became involved with Government at YSU four years ago.

For Robinson, March 19 was a very triumphant day. The bill now goes to Governor Richard F. Celeste for his signature.

Locally, Student Government action was hindered at the first meeting of spring quarter by a failure to meet quorum — only 10 members were present.

Despite the low attendance the executive board was able to make several new chair appointments. Amy McFarland was appointed to the position of parliamentarian, Marty Duffy will chair the Special Projects and Research committee and Jeff Osikiewicz will chair the Discipline committee.

New dean receives appointment

YSU — Neil D. Humphrey, YSU president, announced the appointment of Dr. James Cicarelli of Fredonia, N.Y., as dean of the Warren P. Williamson Jr. School of Business Administration, effective July 1.

Cicarelli succeeds Dr. Frank Seibold, marketing, who has been serving as interim dean since last summer.

Cicarelli has served as chair of the department of business administration at the State University of New York (SUNY) at Fredonia since 1984. He has been responsible for directing the activities of the department, which enrolls approximately 20 percent of the undergraduate majors in accounting and business administration degree programs.

Cicarelli holds three degrees in economics from the University of Connecticut. He received his bachelor's degree, with honors, in 1963, his master's degree in 1964 and his doctorate in 1968.

Prior to his position at SUNY-Fredonia, Cicarelli served as the dean of the School of Business Administration at St. Bonaventure (N.Y.) University in 1983-84.

From 1980-83, he was the chair of the department of economics at SUNY-Oswego. He previously taught at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., and at Lewis and Clark College, Lewistown, Idaho.

Cicarelli has served as co-director of the Fredonia Center for Economic Education, and was president of the New York State Economics Association from 1983-85.

He has authored three books and numerous magazine and journal articles, is a book review editor with the Journal of Business Forecasting and is an editorial board member of the Journal of International Economics and Economic Intergration.

Cicarelli is a member of the Academy of Management, the Eastern Academy of Management, Financial Executives Institute, The Midwest Economics Association and the New York State Economics Association.

He has been a member of the Long-Range Planning Committee of the United Way of Northern Chautauqua County, the advisory board of the Fredonia Center for Business and Industry, and served as a consultant for a number of firms.

Alaskan regional director gets Urban Studies job

YOUNGSTOWN — Dr. Gilbert Peterson, a Warren, Ohio native and graduate of YSU, has been named director of the University's Center for Urban Studies, effective March 1.

The announcement was made by Dr. Lawrence E. Looby, vice president for Institutional Advancement.

The Center for Urban Studies is part of YSU's Public Service Institute, which also includes the Cushwa Center for Industrial Development, the Center for Human Services Development and Engineering Services Center.

For the past four-and-a-half years, Peterson has been Alaskan regional director of Environmental Science and Engineering, Inc., an international company.

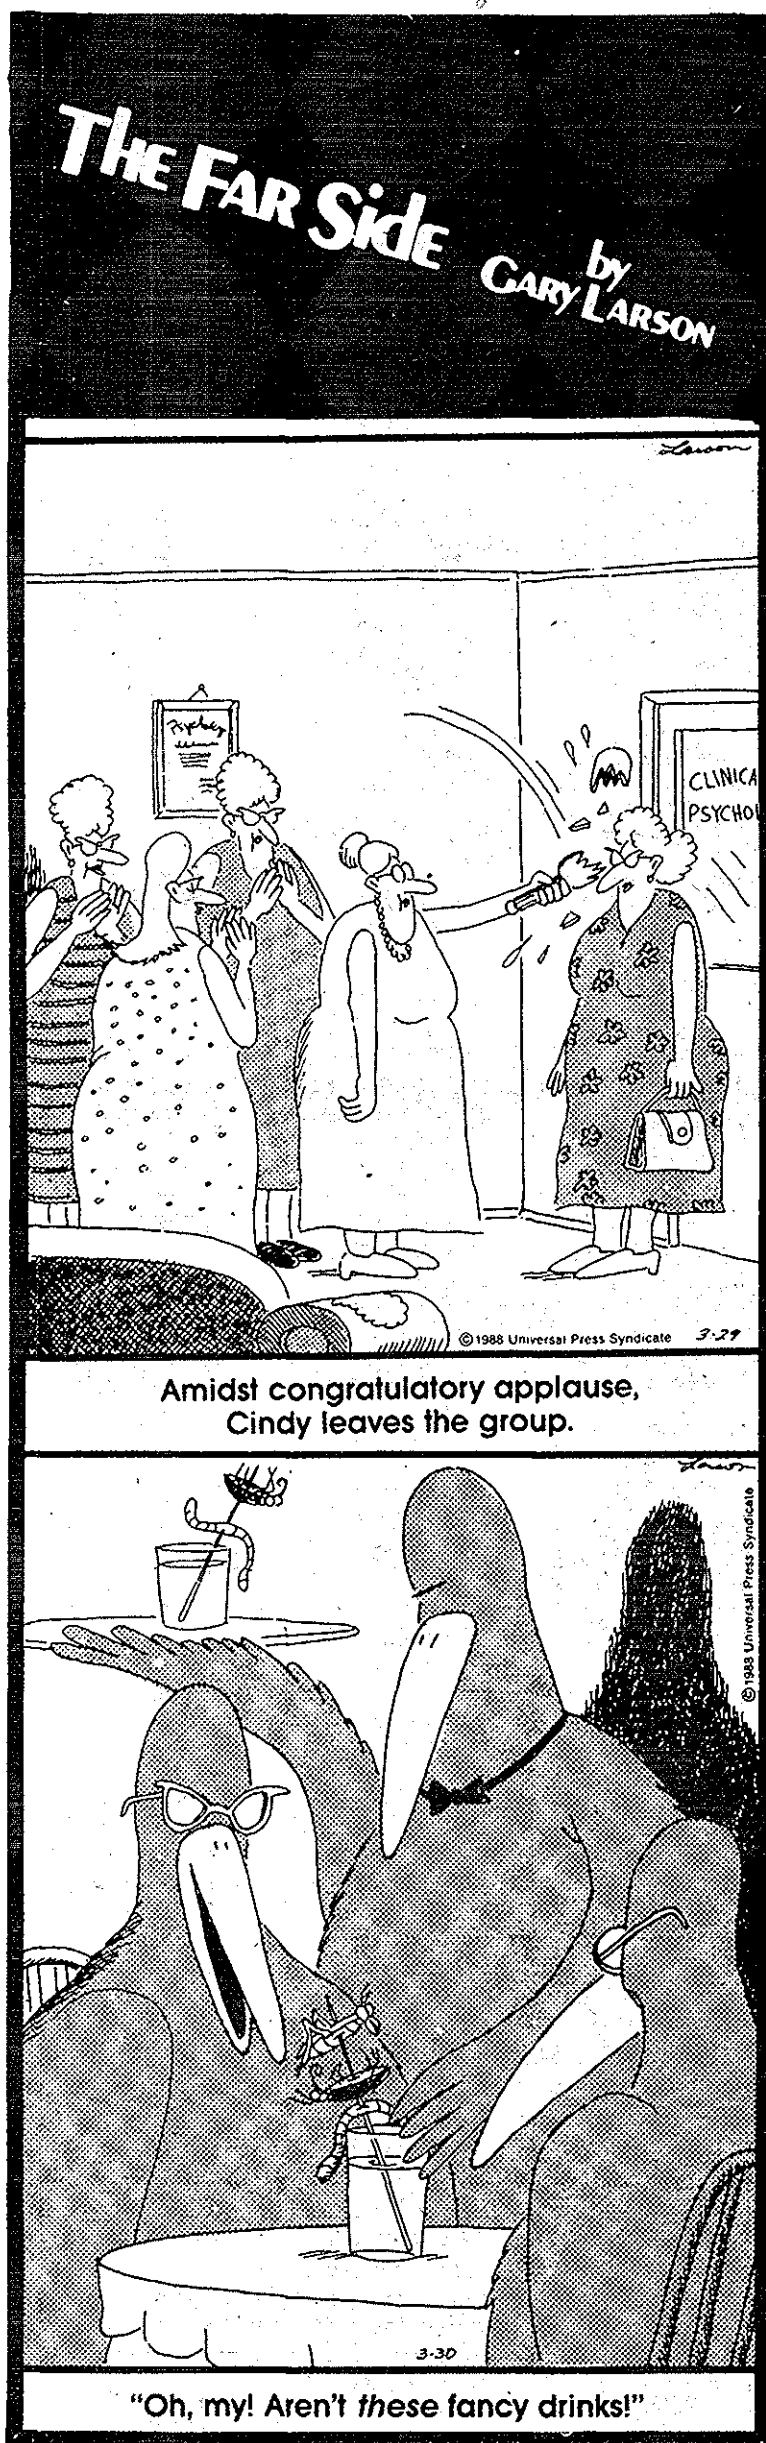

Earlier, while working with ESE, he was also adjunct professor in the Natural Resources Division of Alaska Pacific University at Anchorage, where he taught a graduate course in resource management, and adjunct professor in the School of Business and Public Affairs, University of Alaska.

Prior to that, he was professor of Regional Planning in the Department of Geography and Regional Planning at Western Washington University, Bellingham, Wash.; professor of Environmental Planning at Huxley College of Environmental Studies at Western Washington; and instructor-lecturer in the Department of Urban Planning, University of Washington, Seattle.

Peterson holds certification by the American Institute of Certified Planners, is registered as a principal planner-in-charge by the State of Washington, and holds a certificate in urban systems engineering from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Weather delays track resurfacing

By KENNETH J. KUCZMA
Jambar Contributor

Inclement weather resulted in delays in resurfacing YSU's five-year old reslite track and in reconstructing the University's tennis courts.

According to Michael Skurich, manager of technical services in the office of Campus Development, the resurfacing job took only four or five days to complete but completion was stretched over a two-month period last fall because of bad weather conditions.

Edmund Salata, executive director, facilities, said the track is finished but needs a few minor touch-ups. He said the tennis courts will be completed this spring but are available for use by physical education classes.

According to Skurich, the tennis courts were rebuilt because of drainage problems. The courts needed more efficient base filtration into the sub-surface drainage, along with a different slope to reduce the number of puddles, Skurich said. The University needed to get permission from Har-drives Paving & Construction, Inc. of Mineral Ridge, who are doing the work on the tennis courts, in order to use the tennis courts in their present condition. The final color of all the tennis courts will be green. It should take approximately 10 days in the spring to finish the tennis courts, according to Skurich. The cost of rebuilding the tennis courts is $167,400 which came from state funds for capital improvements.

The track is covered with recycled rubber tires. The tires are ground up into three different size granules by a company in Barberton, Ohio. Each granule size is compressed and glued together on the track forming layers. The smaller granules are on the top layer, filling in the lower two layers. These layers form a five-eighths inch sponge-like surface called sprintrax, and is expected to last from five to seven years.

The lining of the eight lane, 400 meter track, took two days to complete by hand by a specialist from New England. Skurich said the $51,400 cost to resurface the track also came from state funds.

This spring a steeplechase water jump will be installed at the west end (Elm Street) of the track, and the high jump area needs to be reversed so the jumpers don't have to run over the track rail

YSU waddles in wasteful wonders

For those of you who are unaware, a new major exists at YSU — Wasteful Spending.

The University did not have to search very far for professors for this major, as personnel was right here.

YSU is leading the way with extraordinary examples for students to follow. Take for example sending out report cards with the wrong accumulative grade point averages. Officials said it only cost the University $1,300 to correct the mistake.

The first point: 7200 incorrect copies were sent out, yet the registrar's office sent corrected versions to all students enrolled during winter quarter.

Point number two: if $1,300 takes in the cost of paper, postage, operator cost and the administrative cost to oversee this plummeting grade point problem, then YSU has some pretty cheap labor.

This venture must have been the pride and joy for the YSU's Wasteful Spending department.

No — there's more.

Last year several offices in Jones Hall were relocated due to major renovations. Yesterday both stairwells were roped off as painters repainted the walls. Maybe the Wasteful Spending department was conducting a class project. Or maybe workers like Jones Hall so well they decided to return.

By the way, blocking off both stairwells appears to be a fire hazard. Maybe the workers removed the signs about using stairwells in case of a fire. You know, to have new ones made with bigger lettering or different colors or just to have new ones made to spend money.

When the YSU staff union won its parking grievance concerning student-only parking and several signs, bulletins and handbooks had to be changed, some YSU officials did not see the cost as being very high. How does one estimate what high is? After all, when a University raises its tuition three consecutive years, and charges fees ranging from a $6 add/drop charge to a $25 cost for graduating, high may actually be very low.

Besides these wasteful wonders, YSU is notorious for redoing work and replacing equipment that does not need replacing.

For example, some offices on campus had to be repainted after they were not completely finished. Some offices replaced doors and paper towel dispensers, and added high-tech beam lights over a lounge area that does not exist.

Painting Spring Street was a real novel idea. One of the many the Wasteful Spending department has had.

The obvious solution is for this University to do a little planning and use more cost efficient measures.

However, the University only seems to be able to cutback on organizational budgets and probably would not waste its time with this advice.

COMMENTARY

Being successful is no blow off

What is going to be your statement of success? Often enough we hear of dreams of red Honda Preludes, Club Med vacations, Wall Street, an American Express card, condos, and cocaine.

Hopefully, most will choose a sports car, but more will find prestige in the drug of the 80s.

Have you ever approached a friend about their cocaine habit? Their favorite response is always, "I have control of it, man!" Better yet, "I only do it once in awhile."

These same friends are the ones blowing off their car payments and draining their Visa cash advances. They are also the same friends you meet out in a bar who spend most of the evening whispering in peoples' ears and trailing off to the bathroom.

I had a friend who visited me once for only 45 minutes. He drank two beers, smoked a joint, and did two lines of coke while continually explaining that he couldn't make his house payment or buy groceries with his $1500 a month paycheck. Afterwards, he left to play darts.

Playing games. Isn't this the reason these people are your friends? You have gone through everything together. You've drunk together for years. You've experienced broken hearts and lost virginities, high school football and college graduations. None of us were getting married until 30 and tequila and marijuana were just stages.

Now it seems everyone is in a cocaine stage and there doesn't seem to be a way out. Everything is fun until it becomes a problem.

Being an outsider and looking in can start to be pretty scary. Brides have walked down the aisle "all coked up." Best friends tell you, "I did some last night. You know, just for old-times sake. But, this morning I wanted more."

Being their friend isn't easy. How do you react? What are you supposed to say? Usually it is just a blank nod. How can you make them realize that they are going backwards on that ladder of life?

The pressure is high. We are only allowed to succeed, never to fail. Maybe you can buy them an exercise bike or flush everything down the toilet. Maybe you can send them drug abuse pamphlets or give them a "wrong" phone number, 1-800-COCAINE. Maybe you just have to go on with your life and maybe someday they will catch up.

It's sad and confusing to watch a drug control the lives of people you care about. It's terrifying to think they could die from "just doing a little once in awhile."

I suppose if you have tried drugs and never became hooked, you're lucky. I suppose if you drink and drive and have never been caught, you're lucky. I suppose if you think doing cocaine is cool, you're stupid!

Former student wants more informed opinions

Dear Editor:

Having left Youngstown to attend college elsewhere, I receive The Jambar in the mail and read with interest what is happening at YSU.

Upon receiving the Feb. 9 issue, however, I was dismayed at some of the concerns expressed in the opinion section.

In the editorial section entitled "Winners and Sinners," I was amazed to find that "members of the House of Representatives who voted against the Contra Aid package President Reagan proposed" were defined as "Sinners."

It is inconceivable to me how the label "Sinners" can be placed upon people who no longer wish to support our government's funding of senseless killing in order to "preserve democracy." Obviously this new Vietnam is not being recognized as such.

Although I realize that many support our government's involvement in Central America, my main objection is that The Jambar chose this harsh, evidently uninformed, comment to represent the views of YSU students.

Searching for more opinions on the issue, all I found were concerns with YSU. It seems that "people who spit on the floor of the Wick Deck bridge" (Penguin Pet Peeves) have priority over any type of world event.

Finally, I hope that The Jambar will begin to include more informed, worldly-concerned opinions in its seemingly narrow-sighted opinion section.

Until then, the newspaper will continue to give an outsider the impression that the students, or at least The Jambar's concerns extend no further than YSU.

Professor commends paper's coverage

Dear Editor:

I want to commend the editor and staff of The Jambar for its sensitive and thoroughly professional coverage of the regrettable resignation of Dr. Timothy J. Lyons. Recently, the paper has come under attack for its less-than-objective treatment of the controversial issue of plagiarism, but in the last two weeks, the area media could and should have learned a great deal about journalistic ethics from our campus newspaper.

While many have praised Lyons for his leadership in the College of Fine and Performing Arts, I wish to point out that the University is losing a scholar with a national reputation. Lyons' research and published work on film auteur Charles Chaplin is vitally important not only to the study of a major cinematic artist but also to the study of early motion picture art in general.

In doing research for a book on Buster Keaton (Chaplin's only serious rival in the art of silent film comedy), I have read all of Lyons' work and have found it cited in every major recent study of Chaplin's art. In addition, I have met a number of film scholars from various parts of the country, all of whom know and respect Lyons and recognize with gratitude his important contribution to film scholarship.

To lose such a prominent scholar at this University is indeed unfortunate. Should Lyons decide to stay in academics, I wish him well and hope another university takes advantage of our loss, for we in the film studies community still have much to gain from his contributions.

Worship service is nice addition

Dear Editor:

Having a family whose members are all YSU graduates and who have at one time or another been employed by the University, my family's association with YSU dates back many years. Through the years we have seen so much happening on campus, many changes, events both good and bad, many additions and subtractions, so to speak.

On Thursday, March 3rd I attended one of the nicest and much-needed additions to the University calendar of events. That was the World Day of Prayer service which was held in the Scarlet Room, Kilcawley, with the Rev. Jim Ray conducting.

The worship service was on that gave much food for thought concerning our need for God in these crazy, terrible times, and with all the unhappy events recently on campus and in the city. Those who attended included not only students but faculty and staff which made for a feeling of unity.

In talking later with Dr. Gordon Mapley, assistant dean of Arts and Sciences and a board member of Cooperative Campus Ministry, I was happy to learn that this prayer service on campus will be a monthly event. The next service will be on Good Friday and will be co-sponsored by the Newman Center.

Please join us...won't you? This half hour of prayer and meditation will not only bring you much joy but a real feeling of togetherness as a family for God on campus.

Academic Challenge Program sets new standards of quality

YSU — The Ohio Board of Regents recently presented the University with the first of two installments under its Academic Challenge Program, which is designed to advance strong academic programs.

YSU received checks totaling $351,829 for the first of the biennium year as the Board of Regents held its meeting at YSU. The total over the two years for the six YSU programs selected for Challenge grants is $716,746.

Academic Challenge, an initiative funded by the Ohio General Assembly and Gov. Richard F. Celeste, is designed to increase the quality of the strongest programs at state colleges and universities.

Last month, under Round Two of Academic Challenge, the Board of Regents announced YSU's department of history, mechanical engineering and the School of Business Administration would receive a total of $473,622 during the next two years.

Earlier, the Regents approved a total of $243,124 in Challenge grants for the Dana School of Music, the counseling department in the School of Education and the biological sciences department.

YSU's history department will use its funds, which total $175,655 over the next two years, to enhance history instruction in area schools, according to Dr. George Beelen, chair, history.

A summer workshop program for area teachers, which will advance their knowledge of history in 12 basic categories, will be taught by YSU instructors beginning this summer. In addition, a summer enrichment program, providing high school graduates with intensive instruction in Western Civilization classes and their first exposure to college, will also be offered this summer. The mechanical engineering department plans to apply its challenge grant of $115,967 toward the creation of a computer graphics room which will be used by all freshmen in Engineering and Engineering Technology.

Dr. Frank D'Isa, chair of mechanical engineering, said the department will purchase 24 personal computers as well as MICRO-CADAM Cornerstone, a computer software program which is capable of drafting, modeling and analyzing work.

The Williamson School of Business Administration, which will receive $182,000 in the next two years, will use its funds in the accounting and finance department to add one doctoral faculty position and upgrade the salary of another faculty position, according to Dr. Frank Seibold, interim dean of the school.

Paper receives First Class rank

From Jambar Staff Reports

The Jambar received a First Class rating with two Marks of Distinction from the Associated Collegiate Press for the second semester of the 1986-87 academic term.

The highest ranking a college paper can receive is All American. The Jambar has received two All American awards: in 1968 and 1971.

First through Fourth Class rankings follow All-American. The lowest score for First Class is 3,200 points. The Jambar received 3,605 points.

According to the ACP newspaper guidebook, papers that receive a First Class ranking can move up to the top rating of All American if they have additionally received at least four of the five Marks of Distinction.

The two Marks of Distinction were awarded to the paper for coverage and content and writing and editing.

Fraternity life offers some surprises

By TOM TIKKANEN
Jambar Contributor

Wild parties and excessive beer drinking typifies the image many people have of fraternity life.

A recent visit to one fraternity house on campus offered an inside glimpse into what life is like between the parties.

The Alpha Phi Delta fraternity house, located on the corner of Bryson Avenue and West Bound Service Road, houses eight of the 22 men in the fraternity. The inside of the house wasn't elegant, and the yard was sprinkled with an occasional beer can, but the guys who live there said it suits them fine.

The majority of the men said they moved into the house because of its close proximity to school and that they soon found other benefits. Steve Eschman, freshman, Business, said, "One good thing about living in the house is that there is always someone to help you when you need it — whether it's schoolwork or something else."

Chip Windsor, freshman, Business, said he likes living in the house because "There's always someone to go out with.

You never have to be bored when you live here."

Other than help with schoolwork, and someone to go out with, living in a fraternity house teaches a man responsibility and independence, according to Mike Canone, senior, pre-med.

Canone, president of Alpha Phi Delta, said, "A person has to cook his own food, discipline himself, and make an effort at school when he lives in the house. We also have responsibilities such as the paying of utility bills and rent. Each man plays a part in making sure the house runs smoothly."

Mike Cooper, sophomore, Engineering, said there are some drawbacks to living in a fraternity house.

"There's eight of us living here but we share the house with 12 other guys," Cooper said. "Sometimes the house can get kind of trashed, especially on the weekends."

Chris Bray, sophomore, Business, said, "It can get a little noisy at times. Everyone usually comes back here to party after the bars close. If you're trying to get some sleep or something, it can be difficult."

Life in a fraternity house, according to the fraternity members, can be a bit trying at times but can also be very beneficial.

"The best times are when the weather starts to get warm and a bunch of us sit on the front porch, drink a few beers and watch the babes go by," said Ken MacMillan, sophomore, Business.

Dave Tikkanen, sophomore, Nutrition, summed it up when he said, "It's like living with seven brothers, we fight sometimes but we'll be friends for life."

Duquesne dumps pre-paid tuition plan

By COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

The school that pioneered one of the now-standard experiments in helping parents pre-pay tuition years before their children get to college has dropped the idea.

Just weeks after the Reagan administration asked Congress to adopt a similar plan for the whole country, Duquesne University in Pittsburgh announced March 2 it was suspending its landmark prepaid tuition plan.

"The economy has changed so drastically that we have to re-evaluate the program to make certain it's a good venture," said Duquesne spokeswoman Ann Rago.

Duquesne attracted national attention in 1985 when it initiated its program that enabled parents to pay a lump sum that would — after being properly invested by the school or the state — grow into enough money to pay for 4 years of college by the time the student gets to college age.

Duquesne officials said they were stopping their program because the bonds they'd invested in to help pay for it were not earning as much as they had anticipated, and because they had to raise tuition much faster than they had planned.

As a result, their investments would not return enough money to pay the tuition of the children when they finally got to Duquesne.

The 662 families already enrolled in the program will not be affected, said Rago.

Michigan, for one, already has adopted such a plan but is still waiting for the IRS to rule on its tax status.

The IRS is to decide if it will tax the plan the same way it taxes other investment gains.

If the IRS decides to treat a tuition investment the same way it taxes all other investments, some critics say the plan will provide too little incentive to participate. Other states are postponing establishing such programs until the IRS reaches a decision on the Michigan program.

The Reagan administration also has proposed a plan to give tax breaks to parents who buy savings bonds for their children's tuition.

Still others think the plans, like Duquesne's, would be destined to go broke and require states to bail them out.

"What you may be doing," said Aims McGuiness of the Education Commission of the States, "is shifting the burden of education from the next generation of students through loans to the next generation of governors through state subsidies."

Private Duquesne, without a state to help it, figured it was only making 8.5 percent from the bonds it bought with the money parents had given it in advance.

John Finnerty, the executive vice president of CSB Holdings, a financial services concern, calculated Duquesne needed to make a 14 percent return to cover projected tuition charges. Such a rate, he said, "is an unrealistic objective."

Grounds crew gears up for spring quarter

YSU — Spring is a time to repair as well as rebirth, and Henry Garono, grounds director at YSU, told how the grounds crew prepared for the upcoming season in the February edition of School and College.

The national magazine has a circulation of approximately 70,000.

"At YSU, we are on a strict grounds care program that we follow religiously," said Garono, adding that the repair of damaged grounds after winter is important in beginning an effective program.

One step in repairing grounds in aerifying, which is the process of punching holes in the soil and removing the plugs. Since foot traffic tends to be excessive on school campuses, aeration relieves compaction of the soil, Garono said.

Garono's article, "Setting Up for Spring," also includes a discussion of fertilization methods and maintenance of grounds equipment.

Garono and the YSU grounds crew have been featured in several trade publications in recent years.

 A check of the lot was made and broken glass was discovered where the vehicle had been parked. "Entry was [possibly] gained by breaking out the driver's side window," the report said. The vehicle was recovered on March 22 by the Youngstown Police Department in a partially-stripped condition, said Officer Michael A. Cretella of the Campus Police Department. In other Police reports, a 1987 Chevrolet Presta was broken into last week. According to the report, the owner parked the vehicle in the M-7 parking lot (on Rayen Avenue) at 9 a.m. When the owner returned to the vehicle, she noticed the fuzzbuster was missing. Investigation revealed a "slight pry mark on the driver's side window which apparently was the point of entry," stated the report.

Center Stage

Radio sends strong signals, high wattage rock

By JONI DOBRAN
Jambar Entertainment Editor

A radio is a piece of electronic equipment that, when tuned in to a good station, transmits many different songs by various artists.

The band called Radio is very similar to that, as they play many different songs by various artists.

The group is based out of Warren and its members are: David Nay, lead vocals and guitar; Mitch Brink, keyboards and vocals; Gary Montagna, bass; Mark Jaworski, drums and Kenny Barnes, guitar and vocals.

The group has been together since December and started playing out in January, although Nay and Barnes have been in bands for over six years. Jaworski is the newest member of the group, performing with them for only a few weeks.

Nay said the name of the band can be attributed to a shirt he owns, that shirt having an emblem that reads 'Radio' on the back of it. "We were trying to think of a name for the band and Kenny said 'Let's name it Radio, after your shirt.'

We thought, well yeah, that's the kind of music we want to play and it kind of typifies the music we do, so why not?" he said.

The band's first gig was at the Chalet in New Castle, and they all agreed that it went well. Nay joked that although they got things thrown at them, it was still fun (he added that they don't get quite as much thrown at them nowadays).

With the audiences come the occasional small crowd and an off night for the band. As Jaworski said, though, fun can still be had with these types of shows. "On slow nights, you can have more fun within the band up on the stage. We can joke more, have a good time," he said.

Adding to that statement, Nay said "We always have a good time. If there's nobody there to make us have a good time, we can make it happen among ourselves."

The five agreed that when the crowd is more enthusiastic, they are as well — it's a type of feed, where they feed off the crowd's energy and the crowd feeds off theirs. "You play better and you move more and you just get into it more. It even makes the night go faster," Barnes said.

Since Radio tries to play out as often as possible, they tend to hold only two, sometimes three, practices a week. However, they've also had what they refer to as 'marathon practices' where they've holed themselves up for three days straight, practicing for 12 hours a day, trying to learn new material and improve on what they already know. Although this sometimes caused the group to go stir crazy, they said it was all worth it in the end.

They're also working on originals, with each member writing his own material and then presenting the ideas to the others. Montagna said that "Within the next six months or so we'll probably do at least one-quarter of the show with originals and three-quarters of it with copy and then just continue from there."

Brink added that "We each have a lot of originals written and we're trying to put them together, but it's hard because people around here don't really respond to them." Nay continued the point, stating "People don't want to hear your own stuff, they really don't. A lot of original bands aren't playing out, they're playing in their garages and that's it because they can't get jobs."

"I think the way to do it is to get people to know your name, know your band and then, after you've been around in the area for a while, to get people to know your originals," he concluded. Radio records their own songs in a small studio, so they have their ideas and plans mapped out.

Since most of the songs they choose to play are popular, often times they'll just go ahead and learn them. Other times, a member will particularly think a song is good, so they'll bring it to the others. Tunes they play are from groups like Beau Coup, The Cure, John Waite, Squeeze and R.E.M., just to name a few.

"We've pretty much said that if people can't dance to it, let's not even do it," Nay said, commenting on their choice of music. He added "There's a few songs we do that I don't think people can dance to very well, but most of the stuff we pick is because it can be danced to. I think that's the most important thing."

Broadway show opens on Playhouse stage as 42 high-steppers begin their dances

YOUNGSTOWN — The David Merrick Broadway hit-musical 42nd Street will open on the Youngstown Playhouse mainstage featuring 42 local and vicinity high-stepping cast members at 8 p.m. Friday, April 8 and will run for three subsequent weekends until April 24.

Based upon the 1933 movie of the same name, 42nd Street is the story of ingenue Peggy Sawyer who gets a job in a chorus line of a new show and is thrust into the limelight and ultimate stardom when leading lady Dorothy Brock suffers a broken ankle just before the Broadway opening.

In the genre of the 1930s musicals, the Youngstown Playhouse production of 42nd Street will reproduce sets, costumes and lights replete with effects that are nostalgically reminiscent of that era.

To undertake the task the Playhouse production engages 84 tap dancing feet under the direction of Al Benson and two choreographers: Rick Raupack and Darrell R. Moore; an orchestra under the musical direction of Jo Lanier; over 200 costume changes from approximately 20 different designs by Sarah Thomson; 20 set set designs by Paul Kimpel which includes horizontal and vertical flies, moving wagons, a complete span of 40 x 18 marquees, a reproduction of Philadelphia's Broad Street Train Station; over 150 lights and technical cues designed by Jim Lybarger and technical assistants Art Adolphson and Don Stucky.

Cast in principle roles for the production are Jane Hann as the aging star Dorothy Brock; Bernie Appulgiase as Billy Lawlor; Ruth A. Janis as Peggy Sawyer; Dennis Colla as the director Julian Marsh; Terri Annette Wilkes as Maggie Jones; Laurence Keen as Bert Barry; Jim Petuch as Andy Lee; and Bill Flad as Abner Dillon.

Tickets are available for 42nd Street for season ticket holders on Monday, March 28, and for the general public Monday, April 4. The production dates and times are: 8 p.m. Fridays, April 8, 15 and 22; 8 p.m. Saturdays, April 9, 16 and 23; and 2:30 p.m. Sundays, April 17 and 24. The show may be held over.

For ticket reservations call the Playhouse box office at 788-8739. Prices for non-smokers are: $11 Fridays & Saturdays (including students and senior citizens); $9 Thursdays & Sundays (students and senior citizens are $7 those days only).

Art center presents musical

The Oakland Center for the Arts announces Eve Merriam's The Club a musical diversion including songs from 1894 to 1905, arranged by Alexandra Ivanoff.

Set in an all male club, circa 1905, this witty delicious musical provides "a refracting lens for the condescension and bigotry that pervade those good old songs and by implication, our culture." — New York Post.

This sophisticated musical comedy, directed by David Jendre features M. Collins, A. Finnerty-James and A. Vansuch, as the members of the club. Serving the members of the club are M.J. Leonard as the page; S. Wade, as the waiter; and S. Pollard as the maestro. The stage manager is Pat Gallo.

Dates for the performances are: 8 p.m. Friday and Saturdays, April 1-2 and April 8-9. An opening night reception will follow the Friday March 25 performance.

Reservations can be made by calling 746-0404. Ticket prices for Friday and Saturday nights are $7 for regular admissions and $5 for students and senior citizens.

Kilcawley Gallery exhibits oversize print collection

"In Large Print" is free and open to the public as well as the University community. Gallery hours are: 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday, Thursday and Friday; 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday; and 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturdays.

The collection was organized by the School of Art at Ohio University for the celebration of their College of Fine Arts' 50th anniversary.

Included in the exhibit are works by many who are in the forefront of contemporary art in the '80s: Julian Schnabel, David Salle, Francesco Clemente, Alex Katz, Robert Kushner, Robert Mangold, Odd Nerdrum, Donald Sultan and David True.

The group is very close-knit, hanging out together off stage as well. They said that there are the occasional minor disagreements, but on the average they really enjoy each other's company. They also receive support from their families, who come out to see the band when they can.

Along with their families' support, they said they are happy that they are starting to get regular support from fans who follow the group around from gig to gig. "If you have a following, it keeps you going and it keeps the band going as well," Jaworski said.

Brink summed it up when he said "We're just a working band trying to make it, trying to get a good crowd to follow us and accept what we do."

The bi-weekly entertainment feature known as Center Stage is a section that spotlights both local and regional bands. Many types of bands have been featured so far throughout the 1987-88 school year. Center Stage has showcased different kinds of music from reggae to rock, from heavy metal to hard core and even Top 40.

If you would like your band to be featured, contact Joni Dobran at The Jambar, either by stopping in or calling 742-3095.

Penguin nine struggle on southern swing

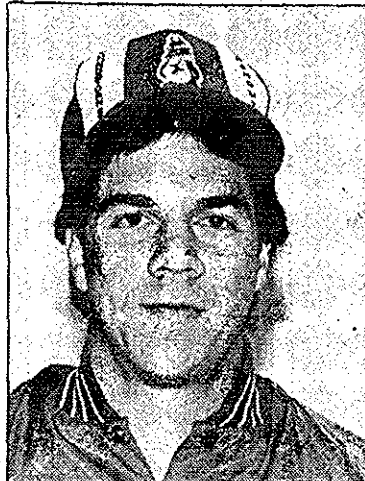

By RUSSELL FARMINTINO
Jambar Sports Reporter

While the rest of the Youngstown community was enjoying Spring Break activities, the YSU baseball team was hard at work on their traditional, season-opening Southern tour.

The Southern tour started well for the Penguins, as they rolled into Spartanburg, S.C., and defeated host, University of South Carolina/Spartanburg, 5-4. It was the first loss pinned on the Rifles after starting the season with an 18-game winning streak.

In the opener, the Penguins raced out to a 4-0 lead after 4½ innings, and then held on the rest of the way to earn the decision.

Offensively, the sparkplugs for YSU were Jerry Dennis, who went 3-for-5 with a double, two runs scored and an RBI; catcher Jim Sotlar, who had two hits and two RBIs; and John DiPiero, who had two hits and an RBI.

Gaining the verdict on the hill was Bob Susa, with relief help from Joe Herubin in the sixth and the ever-present Dennis in the ninth. The victory marked a successful debut for new YSU baseball coach Scott Knox and assistant coach John Zizzo.

The Penguins remained in Spartanburg and faced Limestone College the following day. However, the Penguins overstayed their welcome and were handed their first setback of the young season, 8-3.

Against Limestone, missed opportunities and mistakes did the Penguins in. YSU stranded 13 men on the bases and Limestone scored five unearned runs in the fourth inning to contribute to the YSU defeat.

Bright spots offensively for YSU were Sotlar, who had 2 RBIs while going 2-for-5, and DiPiero, who collected two hits for the second straight game.

Next up for the Penguins was a trip to Rock Hill, S.C., for a tussle with Winthrop College. The Penguins started well as they scored a tally in the top half of the opening frame. After that, things went downhill as the YSU bats were silenced in a 7-1 loss.

Sotlar continued to pound the baseball as he collected two hits for the third game in a row and also drove in the only YSU tally. Bob Janeda also cracked two hits for the Penguins.

The Penguins continued their trek through South Carolina with a stop at Wofford to take on Wofford College. The result didn't improve any as Wofford handed the Penguins a 17-7 setback. Junior Shawn McCart was the big man offensively for the Penguins, as he blasted a grand slam, a two-run homer and a single for a three-hit, six-RBI performance.

Also chipping in were freshman Dave Ifft, who had two hits and scored a couple of runs, and Rob Armstrong, who added two base hits. Dennis was the starter and loser on the hill for YSU.

The Penguins concluded their tour of South Carolina in Aiken and Charleston to face South Carolina-Aiken and The Citadel, respectively. The Penguins luck didn't change much as they dropped the contests, 24-5 and 5-0 to prolong their losing skein to five games and dip their record to 1-5 overall.

The Penguins were in search of a win as they voyaged to Lexington, Ky. to take on the University of Kentucky Wildcats. The change of scenery also changed the fortunes of the YSU baseball team as they snapped a five-game losing streak by de-clawing the Wildcats, 10-6. The Penguins fought back from 2-0 and 5-3 deficits to post their second win.

Leading the way offensively for the Penguins were Janeda, who drove in two runs while cracking four singles; Armstrong, who smashed a couple of singles and scored twice; and Sotlar, who drove in two runs.

Sophomore Jim Timko did a neat job on the hill as he hurled 7½ strong innings to post the victory. Doug Harrah pitched the final 1½ innings to record the save.

The Penguins then concluded their road trip as they traveled across Kentucky to Morehead to

The YSU tennis team lost to South Carolina State last Wednesday 8-1. Dan Haude was the lone victor for the Penguins.

Top seed Haude had an impressive win by taking his opponent in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. Head tennis coach Don Getz said the freshman showed great poise in his win.

Getz said he was also pleased with the play of Brian Fry. The fourth seed, Tom Dickey, did a good job before losing in a tie breaker 6-3, 7-6, 7-3.

In doubles action, the team of Haude and Fry lost a tough three set match 7-5, 0-6, 6-4.

Getz said he was not concerned by the 8-1 loss. He said they gained much experience since the Penguins are a young, promising team. Getz said the Penguins were without two of

Penguin women open season with two wins

By MARK S. ARP
Jambar Sports Reporter

The YSU softball team initiated their 1988 campaign in fine fashion as the Penguins swept St. Francis College in a doubleheader last Saturday.

Sophomore pitcher Julie Croft took to the mound in the first contest, hurling a two-hitter including three strikeouts, for a 1-0 victory.

Centerfielder Marla Penza scored the game's only run in the first inning when she was hit by a pitch, advanced on a Zina Abbas sacrifice and scored on a wild pitch.

Tammy Schaeffer, Julie Yuhasz, Elaine Jacobs and Shelly Byers provided the offense as they each collected one hit apiece.

Junior Ruth Pleskovic assumed the mound duties in the second game and guided the Penguins to a 6-1 victory. Pleskovic also hurled a two-hitter, fanning three batters.

The game's first runs were scored by the Penguins in the third inning. Penza led off the inning with a single. Abbas followed by reaching on a fielder's choice. Schaeffer added a single and Yuhasz reached on a fielder's choice, but forced Penza at home.

Sophomore catcher Chris Timko then came to the plate with bases loaded and smacked a three-run double with two outs to drive home Abbas, Schaeffer and Yuhasz, giving YSU a 3-0 lead. The Timko double turned out to be the game-winning RBI in the contest.

The Penguins added three more runs in the fourth. Jacobs led off the inning with a single. Pleskovic added a safety of her own one out later. Penza followed her with a single. St. Francis then put in some sloppy play in the field with two errors to allow the Penguins to score three runs in the frame, all unearned.

St. Francis put their lone tally on the board in the fifth on an unearned run as well.

...hurls two-hitter for win.

Penza led the Penguins with three hits, while Schaeffer, Jacobs, Pleskovic and Timko each added one safety apiece.

The Penguins, 2-0, will travel to Ohio State tomorrow to take on the Buckeyes.

Linksters place in matches

The YSU golf team opened the spring portion of their 1988 season with a pair of matches over Spring Break.

The Penguin linksters teed it up at Augusta College and at the Eastern Kentucky University Spring Golf Classic.

The YSU season opened at Augusta in a two-day event, March 21-22. The Penguins finished 12th out of the 14 teams competing with a 670 stroke total. Eastern Tennessee won the match with a 629 total.

Scott Karabin picked up where he left off after a highly successful fall season by leading the Penguins with a 160 stroke total on round scores of 83-77. Brian Garman followed him with a 186. Scott Walker added a 172, Jon Jones a 173, and Gary Buttar a 176.

YSU next ventured to Eastern Kentucky where they placed 13th out of 21 teams with a 960 score. Western Kentucky took the event with a low total of 916 in the two-day event.

Karabin paced the Penguins again with a 234 on scores of 75-79-80. Garman and Jones followed with identical 241s. Jones came in at 245, and Buttar rounded out the five with a 264.

The Penguins overall record is now 10-23.

their starters because of academics.

Getz continued, "We came up on the short end because of youth and South Carolina State's big serve. We did very well on hitting the ground strokes."

Despite the loss of five starters from last year's team, Coach Getz said he is optimistic the young team will do well in the coming OVC tournament.

With the loss the Penguins fell to 0-4 on the season. The Penguins next match is at Denison on Thursday.

face OVC rival Morehead State in a three-game, two-day series.

The series didn't go well for the Penguins as they dropped all three contests, 21-4 and 7-2 in a doubleheader, and 15-2 the following day to drop the YSU season record to 2-8. In the opener, the Penguins were caught in a Morehead State barrage as they pounded out 27 hits and five home runs on way to their victory.

The Penguins were paced offensively by Armstrong, Joel Brennan and Tim Shuttleworth, who each pounded out two hits.

In the nightcap, a six-run fourth inning by the Eagles did in YSU. The Penguins bats were relatively silent as the Eagles limited YSU to five hits, one of them a two-run circuit blast by Sotlar. In the finale of the three-game set, it was, unfortunately, more of the same for YSU.

Sparkplugs in the finale for the Penguins were Dennis, who had three doubles while going 4-for-4, and Brennan, who drove in both Penguin tallies.

Coach Zizzo termed the YSU Southern swing as a learning experience. "We learned a lot about the talent that we had, which players could do what, and what changes can be made," said Zizzo. "We also got a good look at the mental makeup of our team. We know who wants to play now, which we couldn't determine when we were indoors," he said.

"Freshman Jerry Dennis was 7-for-11 against Morehead State. He got the save against Spartanburg and really threw well on the trip," Zizzo added.
