YOUNGSTOWN STATE UNIVERSITY

VOLUME 45—NO. 14

President Albert L. Pugsley

Tuition Raise Won't Affect Students Presently Enrolled

President Albert L. Pugsley announced Wednesday that a tuition raise for out-of-state students will become effective in the Summer quarter of this year, but will not affect students registered in the University prior to that time.

The resolution authorizing the raise was passed by the Board of Regents in Columbus last Friday. The resolution contains two tuition raises spaced over a period of two years.

Effective this summer the out-of-state student fee will be raised from $75 per quarter to $100 for full-time students. The cost per credit hours for part-time or students taking more than 17 hours will be raised from $10 to $13. This also applies only to non-resident students.

Effective by Summer The second raise will become effective with the summer quarter of '69. At that time the student fee for non-residents will be raised from $100 per quarter to $125. The credit hour cost for out-of-state students taking less than 12 hours or more than 17 will be raised from $13 to $16.

Rumors had been circulating the campus since a Columbus radio station announced the tuition raise, but failed to state that students presently enrolled would not be affected.

President Pugsley was disturbed by this and pointed out that the Board of Regent's resolution states specifically, "that these increases will not be applied to any non-resident of Ohio enrolled at Youngstown State University before the summer quarter of 1968."

President Pugsley noted that this school's non-resident fee will still be among the lowest of all Ohio State Institutions.

He cited Kent State University which has a non-resident fee of $150 and will go to $175 this summer and $200 the summer of 1969.

All Being Raised

President Pugsley further stated that all the Ohio School non-resident tuitions are being raised, but that he was particularly opposed to a raise for students already enrolled in the school.

The raise in out-of-state student tuition was necessary so that the resident students would not have to pay any more. President Pugsley pointed out that Ohio residents are already paying for the school by their tax dollars, and it would not be fair to raise their tuition.

He stated that this was not a policy of only Ohio schools, but that all state schools have appreciably higher non-resident tuitions.

When asked about the tuition raise, Lew Bair, Junior, Business Administration, from Mt. Lebanon, Pa., at first protested.

When assured that the raise will not affect students already enrolled, he stated that though he wasn't personally bothered by it, he "does know some people from home who had planned to come to YSU and that they would be upset."

Bailiff Will Tow Pa. Cars With Unpaid Parking Fines

Bailiff Thomas DiBernardi of the Youngstown Municipal Court has warned that all cars with Pennsylvania license plates who have unpaid parking tickets will be towed away beginning February 1, 1968.

Mr. DiBernardi stressed the importance of students paying for their tickets before the deadline. He stated that the City does not want to tow students' cars, but "We want the money".

There are some 3000 unpaid tickets on file at City Hall. These tickets represent more than $14,000 in unpaid fines.

Tickets now are one dollar if paid within 72 hours. After three days a ticket costs the individual two dollars, and after thirty days the price goes up to five dollars.

These penalties will be changed on February 10, 1968. At that time on-the-street parking violations will carry a fine of five dollars immediately. After thirty days the penalty will be ten dollars.

Mr. DiBernardi stated that it is impossible to contact the present unpaid violators because their license plates cannot be traced. An inquiry he made to Harrisburg, Pa. concerning a motor vehicle registration book was never answered, stated the Bailiff.

At this time Mr. DiBernardi sees no other way of collecting the unpaid fines short of towing the cars.

He said that an amnesty for all parking violations prior to February 1, with a more efficient follow-up on tickets given after that date would be impractical and unlawful.

Mr. DiBernardi suggested a book of registration for all Youngstown State students' cars. The book would contain the student's name, license number, make of car, and home and school addresses.

With a book such as this Mr. DiBernardi stated he could follow-up on parking violations before they became too delinquent.

The "tow-away list" has been attempted before with little success. The list which will come out on February 1, 1968 will be used for a longer time than previous books, stated Mr. DiBernardi. It will be kept up to date, and he said that he expects a greater degree of success than in previous years.

Register Today For Yearbooks

Friday, January 26, 1968, is the last day for students to sign up for the 1967-68 yearbook in Strouss Auditorium.

No other type of sign-up procedure is valid.

If the student signed up for his Neon, he should have a yellow receipt in his possession as proof of such sign up.

Night students and other students who were unable to sign up during the week, may sign up Saturday, January 27, 1968, from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 in the Neon office in Kilcawley.

Students may also sign up during the week in the Neon office until February 16, 1968. That is the final date for signing up for the Neon this year.

Today, Friday, Jan. 26, is the final day to drop classes

Winter Week-End Begins Tonight At Idora Park

The second annual Winter Week-End, sponsored by the Major Events Committee, will begin tonight at 9:00 with a semi-formal dance at the Idora Park Ballroom, featuring the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra. A basketball game Saturday evening against E. Michigan and a Concert Sunday featuring Martha and the Vandellas, the Vogues and Groov U will be the other week-end activities.

Tickets for the week-end are still available today until five o'clock in the Student Council Office, 108 Kilcawley. The price for tickets is one dollar and student I.D. cards must be shown.

A Faculty Coffee Break will be held at the Pollock House this afternoon from two to four o'clock. All members of the faculty are invited.

The theme of tonight's dance will be Snowflake Frolic. Jake Randolph and Tammy Tabak are the co-chairmen of the dance. Favors will be presented to the girls.

Saturday night's game will feature a spirit contest open to all interested campus organizations. The deadline for contest registration is 1:00 today in the Student Council offices.

Prizes will be awarded to the groups displaying the best all-around spirit and one to that displaying the best signs and posters. Faculty members will do the judging and the trophies will be awarded at the concert Sunday.

The finale of the week-end will be a concert at the Struthers Field House Sunday evening at 7 p.m.

Martha and the Vandellas have had such hits as Jimmy Mack, Heat Wave, and Dancing in the Streets. The Vogues' hits include Magic Town, Milk and Honey, and 5 O'Clock World.

The field house doors will open at 6:00 p.m.

Great Geodesic Genius Slated To Speak Feb. 9

R. Buckminster Fuller, widely known innovator in modern architectural design, will deliver the first in a series of Special Lectures here on February 9, 1968.

Richard Buckminster will speak on the "Strategies of Realistic Thinking."

Since 1914 Mr. Fuller has risen from an apprentice machine fitter to one most acclaimed architects in the world. He is the inventor of the Geodesic Dome and designer of the US Pavilion at Expo '67 in Montreal. Since 1918 he has acted as editor, publisher, author, and subject of numerous magazines, newspapers, and books. In 1939 Buckminster Fuller ap-

Greek News

By Franny and Zoocy

As we pick up the travels of Franny and Zoocy, we find that after much agony and pain, the Troublesome Twosome, are back at their natural habitat; Youngstown, anxiously awaiting the many "fulfilled" events of Winter Weekend.

Franny is so excited about the upcoming weekend, that she has not been able to come to school for the past week.

Zoocy has been getting ready by running around Wick Park, making an attempt to get in shape for Saturday night.

Franny and Zoocy hope that everyone enjoys themselves this weekend, and also that all the Greek organizations come in full force to the basketball game Saturday night to support the Penguin basketball team.

Even with the confusion of Winter weekend, the cold weather, and studying, there are still people who have found time to fall in love.

Gates Installed To Relieve Jams Says Leonelli

"The electronic parkin gates in use at the student parking lots were installed to relieve both traffic jams and manpower shortages," said Mr. Nick J. Leonelli, Director of Physical Plant.

Mr. Leonelli stated that the gates are working better than expected. The reasons the gates are at present slowing up student traffic are electronic difficulties which should be eliminated soon.

Traffic is also slowed due to the students' lack of ability to drive close enough for insertion of the money into the meter.

Parking lot attendants will still be on duty, however, their services will be more effectively used in directing traffic and supervising the lots.

According to Mr. Christopher C. Bell, Arlington St. attendant, the gates were placed at the wrong place. Students must drive to the end of the lot in order to obtain the correct angle into the exit, since the curves are too sharp at the front of the lot for the students to turn through the gate.

He further stated that the attendants must spend long periods standing in the cold directing traffic because it backs up inside the lot.

In addition Mr. Leonelli also explained the reason for the raising of fees. As a private university money can be spent in any area seen fit by the university.

As a state university no money is provided for non-academic areas such as dormitories, student lounges or parking facilities.

In addition the increase in fee is necessary for the maintenance of the lots. Maintenance includes repair of lights, slagging in winter and oiling in the summer.

Work with the mentally retarded and this is the thanks you get.

Most days, working with the retarded is no bed of roses. It's often so difficult and frustrating you find yourself asking, "Why did I volunteer in the first place?"

It takes time and patience to teach a kid how to tie his shoe. Or build up unused muscles so an adult can hold a job. Or clean up the classroom after thirty hyperactive seven-year-olds have made a mess of it.

It's tough. But from time to time little victories occur. There's a breakthrough. Somebody gets it right the first time. Someone's mind grows better and faster than you ever thought it would.

And you feel good again.

Or a bunch of kids does something nice for you. Just because they like you. Real well.

And that's the thanks you get.

Find out how you can help the retarded. Write for a free booklet to The President's Committee on Mental Retardation, Washington, D.C. 20201.

Lounge Damage Serious

By Jennifer Moody

The photographs on this page show some of the serious damage that has been done to the furniture and carpeting of the Kilcawley Student Center Lounge this quarter.

The most serious vandalism so far is what has been done to the carpet, which cost the University several thousand dollars.

Cigarette burns cover the carpet, and ashtrays are continually being upset on it, as is shown by the photos.

The carpet is continually being used as a combination ashtray and wastebasket by thoughtless students, who clutter it with their cigarette packs and debris from their lunches.

Not Accidental

Most of this damage is mere carelessness on the part of students using the lounge, but much of the other damage is obviously intentional.

The upholstery on one of the lounge's sofas has been marred by a slit nearly a foot and a half long.

This could not be accidental.

Special Toughness

The upholstery was chosen especially for its toughness and durability and can be torn only by intentional means.

According to Mr. T. H. Martindale, Head of Campus Housing, a pencil or some other sharp pointed object must have been inserted into a hole left by a button which had been pulled out and pulled along under the upholstery to produce this type of slit.

More Damage

Not shown are a scratched coffee table and a piece of sculpture, with the initials "LBJ" written on it. Neither of these could be accidental, either.

Martindale also stated that one of the chairs had been written on in Magic Marker.

Sandra Woody, the student proctor on duty when these photos were taken, stated that this was the best, cleanest day so far this year for the lounge.

She also attributed some of the clutter to a general lack of ashtrays. Many had been stolen last quarter, and not enough remain to fill the needs of students in the lounge now.

Ashtrays Too Small

Those that remain are too small and are easily tipped over by careless students. Often, they are set on the floor, where they are kicked over.

Many of the ashtrays in the lounge now are broken, making the likelihood of their being spilled even greater.

Remnants of an interesting chess game . . .

Abuse of Kilcawley Lounge furniture is evidenced by the slit in the cushion of this bench.

Students add new decor to Kilcawley Student Lounge.

Anti-Draft Movement More Harmful To Professors Than To Student Body

By Walter Grant

College professors and other adults who are helping to lead the anti-draft movement may be taking a greater risk than young people who actually resist the draft.

The Johnson Administration apparently has initiated a full-fledged effort to stop the "ringleaders" of the growing nation-wide anti-draft campaign. By fighting the resistance movement from top down, the Administration hopes to effectively decrease the number of young people who engage in destructive anti-draft protests and literally refuse to be inducted into the armed services.

Department of Justice and Selective Service officials have not admitted that this strategy is indeed being followed. However, observers

36 Students Recruited For Peace Corps

Thirty-six students applied for work in the Peace Corps during recruiting held last week on campus. The applicants were interviewed and tested with results sent to Washington, D.C., for evaluation.

Peace Corps representative, Chris Butowicz, credits the success of this year's drive to cooperative faculty members allowing class time for talks on the Corps and to YSU students who were generally optimistic and receptive to work as a volunteer.

About seventy-five per cent of those applying are usually accepted. Last year four YSU students began missions in the Peace Corps.

argue that this strategy has been indirectly acknowledged by statements and actions of members of the Administration.

The Justice Department, for example, announced last week that a Federal grand jury in Boston has returned indictments against five men who have encouraged young people to violate draft laws.

The prosecutions are being handled by a newly created unit in the Justice Department designed specifically to prosecute demonstrators. Despite the large number of young people who have been involved in destructive anti-draft demonstrations, the first indictments since the new unit was created involve "adult" leaders.

A Justice Department spokesman said more indictments may be returned against leaders of the anti-draft movement. "If we find a clear violation of the law, we will prosecute. But we are not predicting if there will be two or 200 additional indictments."

Selective Service director Lewis B. Hershey has said he believes many adult leaders who are too old for the draft are behind many anti-draft demonstrations. He favors "busting" the "ringleaders" first because most of them "are older and should know better."

One Selective Service official said pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Spock, a veteran leader of the anti-draft movement, "is encouraging young people to disobey the law and thus saying to hell with Congress." The official said Dr. Spock and other adult leaders "don't have any obligation to the Selective Service but they're out there advising the young people to beat the rap."

Another "State of the Union"

By Jon Kendall

As we sat before our television January 17 and watched the State of the Union message, our first thought was disappointment over the fact that Lyndon Johnson chose to take another opportunity to re-emphasize our national obsession with Vietnam.

All of us, the disillusioned liberal element, were saddened greatly as the President chose not to take this wonderful opportunity to suspend the bombing of North Vietnam in a national gesture toward the other powers-that-be in a new peace offensive.

Domestic Issues Only

Instead of making this his primary objective, the President in a typical election year message, dealt with domestic issues which will only call for greater taxation and greater burdens on the general public.

Although the domestic programs, largely borrowed from the Kennedy administration, are both humanitarian and just in our affluent society, nevertheless, the past four years have shown the practical application of these programs to be a horse of a completely different color.

No Suffering

While the poverty program started under the wise and thoughtful assumption that in a land of plenty, none should suffer from want, hunger or deprivation, the bureaucracy which accompanied the program has all but rendered it impotent.

More money is often spent on administration than on those who so justly deserve attention. Those who would most greatly benefit from monies and assistance are all often left by the wayside, smothered in red-tape.

These "forgotten Americans" still suffer and the poverty program has deteriorated into a highly mechanized political machine, sounding good on paper and doing wonders in acquiring votes, but doing little for the needy except raising hopes and expectations which, if all runs true to form, will never fully be brought to fruition.

Second-Team Aims

The highly political overtones of the address made it apparent that Lyndon Johnson is running . . . and running hard for a second term of office. Unfortunately, our expenditures far exceed our capacity as a nation to endure.

While poverty funds and housing materials are raised, so the cost of the war in Vietnam raises.

We are now engaged in what has to be the longest and most unpopular war in our history. We are also passing through an age of unequalled domestic prosperity.

With this prosperity, however, should come some modicum of fiscal responsibility. We are living in a "guns and butter" economy.

Take From the Rich

The unfortunate qualifier is that the present administration not only wants to supply the guns for Vietnam, but also insists on procuring the butter for its less fortunate citizens at the direct expense of those who have managed to sustain themselves without government assistance.

We are taking from the rich and giving to the world.

The theory of "Robin Hood Economics" is fine when applied to those who have successfully capitalized on the War and are a part of the Industrial-Military Complex.

However, for the average wage-earner making between five and nine thousand dollars a year, such a domestic philosophy can only end in ruin.

Furthermore, the obvious inequity in our tax laws usually leave those in "high places" largely untouched and free from taxation.

In Sorry Shape

The State of the Union is a sorry one. To those who initially believed in the tenets of domestic aid and prudence in foreign affairs, we can only say that we have been betrayed.

For those of us who felt that pride and determination should be an integral part of American life and that it is better to instill self-determination and ambition in those less fortunate than we, instead of building false hopes . . . we have again been betrayed.

We cannot, in good conscience, indict the nation for the errors in judgment of an administration.

We cannot, in good conscience, indict the State of the Union will contain within its fabric a greater appreciation of the real and current needs of the people, punctuated with a rational and sane foreign policy and accented with a realization of fiscal responsibility.

NO DOZ ANNOUNCES THE EXAM PILL

(If you flunk, at least you'll be awake.)

Sure you've used NoDoz to help you stay awake the night before an exam.

But have you ever thought of taking NoDoz to make yourself a little sharper during the exam itself?

Well, maybe you should.

Let's say you're one of those guys who doesn't have to cram like mad the night before. (Even so, you're probably not getting your usual amount of sleep.)

And let's say the morning of the big exam, you find yourself heading for class, kind of drowsy and unwound and wondering if The Great Brain has deserted you in the night.

What do you do?

You panic, that's what you do.

Or, if you happened to read this ad, you walk coolly over to the water cooler and wash down a couple of NoDoz, the Exam Pill. And before long you're feeling more alert and with it again.

You see, NoDoz helps bring you up to your usual level of alertness, so you don't just sit there in a fog; it's got what it takes to help restore your perception, your recall, and even your ability to solve problems.

In fact, NoDoz contains the strongest stimulant for your mind that you can take without a prescription. Yet it's not habit forming.

Okay, but what about the guy who goofs off all term and has to jam everything in the night before.

Are we saying NoDoz will keep him from flaming out?

Nope.

We're just saying he'll be alert and awake.

As he flunks.

ISO NEWS

This week the International Students are meeting at the YWCA for Fun Night. There will be swimming, volleyball, dancing, games and refreshments. We hope to see all members there!

This week the ISO is starting something new of interest to all students on campus. Each week we will spotlight active members of our group.

Today we are introducing Jannie Chow from Taiwan and Zouhair Tabbara of Lebanon. A freshman in Business Administration, Jannie came in September of 1967 and is already very active in ISO.

Zouhair, a graduate of YSU, is now pursuing a degree in practical science. He arrived at YSU in 1963 and since has contributed much to the ISO, of which he served as President for two years. Good luck to both of you!

Reminder

Put Friday, February 10 on your calendar. The ISO is sponsoring a Variety Show at 8:00 p.m. in Strouss Auditorium. Tickets are available in the International Student Office, Kilcawley 114. Donation is $2.00 for adults and $.50 for children under 12.

Spanish Club Again Offers Scholarship

The Spanish Club, Los Buenos Vecinos, is again offering its scholarship for a summer session of study in a foreign country. Money for the scholarship has been raised through book sales, bake sales, and other club activities.

Eligible students who are interested may apply for the scholarship now. The scholarship is an annual grant, and is open to all sophomores and juniors majoring or minoring in a foreign language or English.

Application blanks, available now in the foreign language office, should explain fully the applicant's proposed project of study and should include at least two letters of recommendation. The deadline for applications is Feb. 15, 1968.

The scholarship committee, whose chairman this year is Dr. Ward Miner, will select the winner on the basis of the type of project chosen, the country of study, and the general preparation of the student. Other members of the committee are: Dean Edith G. Painter, Dr. E. Sternberg, Dean John P. Gillespie, and Dr. L. S. Domonkos. Miss Donna Sweany, an alumna of the Spanish Club, and Mr. Samuel Fisher, last year's president of Los Buenos Vecinos, will also be on the committee.

The first Spanish Club scholarship was awarded in 1954 to Miss Barbara Griffith, a junior in sociology, and is now being offered for the 14th consecutive year.

James Kiriazis Attains Ph.D. From U. of Pitt

James W. Kiriazis, assistant professor of sociology at Youngstown State University, recently received his Ph.D. degree in anthropology from the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Kiriazis, who earned his Bachelor of Arts degree at YSU, received a Masters in Social Work from Louisiana State University. Prior to joining the YSU faculty in 1957, he worked as a psychiatric caseworker for the Ohio Mental Health Clinics in Warren and Youngstown for five years. He was also on the faculty at the University of Pittsburgh, and at Carnegie Mellon.

He holds memberships in the American Anthropological Association, Ohio Valley Sociological Society, Central State Anthropological Society, and the Ohio Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Kiriazis and his wife, Isabel, reside at 444 Westgate Boulevard, Youngstown, with their four children James A., Karen, Lisa, and Laura.

Secretarial School Joins College of Bus. Administration

The oldest day school of Youngstown State University, the Secretarial School, was officially incorporated last quarter into the College of Business Administration under Dean Robert L. Miller, and is now known as the Department of Secretarial Studies.

Between quarters, during the recent holidays, the school has also made a physical move from Ford Hall, 547 Wick Avenue, to the second floor of the Rayen School of Engineering.

"We had a pretty good school at Ford Hall," says Mrs. Mae D. Turner, head of the department.

"We had a unique set-up. We were equipped to take care of everyone—from office personnel working in town who wished to improve their skills, and high school and college students, to those wishing to teach business administration in the business field.

"One outstanding feature of this school is that we always had time for guidance and counseling. The students' names were divided into alphabetical order, and each teacher took her portion of the group.

"After graduation, students could get help in finding work from the University Placement Office.

"When I first came here in 1926, the Secretarial School was the only day school on campus," declares Mrs. Turner. "Not many people know that. All other classes met in the evening."

Mrs. Turner doesn't think any students were lost due to the change-over. She feels it has helped. Although tuition is a little higher, and there is some change in the curriculum (such as taking certain basic business courses), students may now take advantage of certain fringe benefits. Before they seemed to be unaware that they were entitled to these benefits.

"Moving entailed a tremendous amount of work," continued Mrs. Turner. "From cramped quarters the school moved into eight spacious rooms. Everything is not yet in place, making it a little difficult to locate certain information."

Mrs. Turner and her secretary, Miss Karen S. Dean, worked all New Year's Day getting things ready.

There are eight full-time and eight part-time teachers. They also take turns doing office duty. Much use is made of High School teachers in the night school.

There are 538 students in the Business Education and secretarial courses combined. A few of them are male—in round numbers, about ten or fifteen. Most of these intend to teach in this field. Two or three are studying to be secretaries.

"Believe it or not, there is a shortage of male secretaries, as they are getting to be more and more in demand," stated Mrs. Turner.

Such a great shortage of office workers on a college level exists that there is recruiting being done here from Washington, D.C.

Students may come full-time or part-time. There are day and evening classes. One, two, or four year courses may be taken. The two year course consists of the first half of the four year course, so that a student may always come back and get his degree.

After one year, the student earns a Certificate. Two years entitles him to an A.B. (Associate in Business Administration). For four years he may receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration with a major in secretarial studies, or the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education in the business education teaching field.

Along with typewriting and shorthand, secretarial accounting, business mathematics, business communication, commercial law, business machine, office practice, and filing and indexing are some of the courses taught.

Besides the many typewriters, there are voice recording, duplicating, and three types of calculating machines—rotary, key driven and printing, and bookkeeping machines set up for various kinds of work.

The school is trying to integrate its program with the College of Business Administration, and is working on policies which may have to do with the future Technical School and Community College.

"We are looking forward to our expansion program," Mrs. Turner elaborated. "We are going to add to our machines."

In addition to being head of the school, Mrs. Turner is a full-time teacher and also a supervisor of student teachers.

SPORTS SCENE

By Mike Foley

Six foot eight-inch freshman Chris Buchanan, a two-time high school All-Stater, tallied 20 points for Central State as the Marauders scored a 62-60 win over our upset-minded Youngstown State team last Saturday night.

Playing on unfamiliar hardwoods, the Penguins were very impressive as they forced Central State into overtime.

The Penguin foe, who had previously beaten Kentucky Wesleyan, the second ranked small college team in the nation, is made up of two juniors, three sophomores, and a host of freshmen.

The Marauders have Michigan All-Stater Charles Puckett and Robert Jenkins, a member of the All-World Air Force team.

Joe Nigro, dropping in 13 field goals and 1 foul shot for 27 points, paced the fired-up Youngstown attack.

Although playing without the services of Jim Lenord, Bob Patton, and Vern Smith, the Penguins played an outstanding defensive and ball-control game.

Tied at 54-54

At the end of regulation play the score was deadlocked at 54-54. But in overtime, six foul shots and a 4-second hoop by Graham Russell was the winning difference for Central State.

Opposition is Tough

Tomorrow evening the YSU basketballers will take on the Eastern Michigan University Hurons, who have already beaten the Penguins in Michigan by a score of 92-58.

The Hurons average a height of 6'4" per man and have all their squad members returning from last year.

Spirit to be High

Many YSU student organizations, have answered the challenge to show that spirit is not lacking on our campus. It is heard that signs, new cheers, and a great deal of enthusiastic noise will be shown and heard at the game.

Fast-Cook Ovens Speed Food Service For All

The new food ovens, located in the Snack Bar of Central Hall have enabled students and faculty to obtain a faster and hotter lunch.

The official title of the device is the Microwave Oven, and it is made by the Litton Industries of Cleveland, and operated at the University by the Servomation Company.

It is a high frequency, high energy oven that can cook or heat previously prepared foods in a matter of seconds.

When the food is placed inside the oven, microwaves penetrate it causing the molecules to vibrate, reach the middle, the microwave oven penetrates deep and heats the center of the food only fractions of a second after the outer surface.

According to Servomation, the microwave oven can cook a sweet roll in about eight seconds, a hot dog in fifteen seconds, a cheeseburger in twenty-five seconds and a casserole in thirty-five seconds.

There is little danger to the students, as the oven will not work unless the door is closed.

Robby Pasha receives a hot meal in seconds at Snack Bar oven.

and thus generating heat by friction.

Because of the high frequency involved, these food molecules move quite rapidly and as a result in a few seconds your food is piping hot and ready to eat.

Remarkably, the microwave oven will not melt metal or burn paper.

If a metallic object is placed in the oven, the energy will be reflected instead of absorbed by the metal.

In the case of paper, which has little moisture content, the energy will pass right through.

Adding to the speed of the oven is the fact that contrary to conventional cooking methods which first heat the food surface and in time

Soaked Campus Longs For Heated Sidewalks

As students and faculty trudge through the puddles of slush and the snow mounded in parking lots and sidewalks, longing looks are cast at the heated sidewalk in front of the Engineering Science Building.

Insulated electrical resistance coils, which work on the same theory as household irons, are located under the sidewalk and melt the snow as it falls onto the walk.

Mr. Nick J. Leonelli, Director of Physical Plant, stated that the walk was included as part of the design of the building.

Funds for the heated walk were included with the building costs and no breakdown of these costs is available.

Mr. Leonelli further stated that the university, even though state supported, could not possibly afford the phenomenal amount it would cost to heat all walkways.

In view of this, it would appear that many weeks of snow-soaked shoes and hallways are in store for all, except those lucky ones attending class in the new Engineering Building.

The YSU Young Republican Club will conduct a Republican preference primary as a part of its recruitment campaign. Students of all political affiliations are invited to come and register their vote on Tues. and Wed., January 30 and 31, from 10:00 to 3:00 in the Kilcawley lobby. The JAM-BAR will publish the results.

Wall Mural Is Planned For Engineering Bldg.

Dean Michael J. Charignon of the Engineering School announced Wednesday that a fund has been started to have a mural painted on the main wall of the new Engineering Building's lobby.

Dean Charignon stated that approximately $15,000 would be needed for the mural. A small part of this amount has been collected already. Most of the contributions have been from alumni of the Engineering School.

The painter will be chosen from mural "painters of renown" through a competitive process, stated the Dean. Painters will be asked to submit samples of their ideas which will be judged by members of the Youngstown Art and other Departments.

Dean Charignon stated that he didn't want a "1910 version of a steam engine." One of the Dean's ideas would be a mural made up of geometric figures which, when looked at from different angles, would represent various machines.

So far contributions for the mural have ranged from ten to $100. Dean Charignon expects that it will take a few years before the necessary funds are collected.

Interview Koppers . . . February 9th

"But Dr. Ferraday!

The atomic weight of einsteinium is 254!"

He did it again. If Dr. Ferraday dropped his guard, George would catch it. George used his head. He came to class prepared. He was anxious—impatient.

Koppers is after impatient young graduates like George. We're growing so fast we have more job openings than we can fill, and we need young graduates to help us fill them—permanently. Answer this ad if you answer this description: impatient, anxious to get ahead, at home with fresh ideas. We want chemists, chemical engineers, mechanical engineers, metallurgists, metallurgical engineers, electrical engineers, civil engineers, business majors, liberal arts majors and MBA's.

Afraid you might get into something you won't like? It's not likely at Koppers. We do all sorts of things with plastics, wood, metal and chemicals. Koppers supplies more than 270 products and services to some 40 industries. Interview us.

Seniors Discuss Gift At First Class Meeting

The members of the senior class are apparently leaning towards a library fund for graduate school books as the senior class gift, but no official action has yet been taken, it was announced by Nino DiIullo after the recent senior class meeting.

In a poll taken at the meeting, a majority of the class members attending voted for the library fund.

Other gift ideas which will be considered are a scholarship fund for the graduate school, a contribution to the radio show and the establishment of a student union fund.

A $5 fee will be added to the graduation fee, and the funds collected from this assessment will be used to buy the gift. The class officers will probably buy the gift that the class has voted for.

The additional five dollar fee will raise the graduation fee to $25. The other $20 includes the rental of the caps and gowns, the rental of Stambaugh Auditorium and the senior graduation announcements.

Three committees were also established, the social, publicity and "new ideas."

Seniors interested in working on any of the committees should sign the list in the student council office, room 108, KSC.

New Dorm Will House 228 Women In March

Lincoln Towers Apartments, located on 257 Lincoln Ave., plans to house 228 women students when fully completed in March. The three story building presently contains facilities for 69 women since its opening on January 1.

The charge is $300.00 per quarter ($275.00 for the summer quarter) and includes 21 meals per week in the building's cafeteria.

Besides the cafeteria, which is open to the public, residents are provided with two lounges, a recreation room with a color television set, and a coin-operated laundry.

Irons are available on each floor for the convenience of the residents. Each room houses two coeds, and there are two bathrooms with showers on each floor.

Rooms are now available and applications are being accepted.

According to Mr. Dale Lane, manager of the Lincoln Towers cafeteria, "Most university housing facilities come just up to State standards, but Lincoln Towers goes far above them."

Special dinners are served, including a steak dinner every Saturday night, as well as occasional special buffets.

PLAYHOUSE

"Philadelphia, Here I Come", the hit comedy from Dublin, opens at The Youngstown Playhouse for an unusual two-week run at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, January 30, and will play Tuesdays through Sundays.

The Brian Friel comedy, guest directed by Jack Harpman, employs an interesting device to illuminate the character of Gareth O'Donnell, the young Irishman who plans to leave his home in the village of Ballybeg, County Donegal, and start a new life in Philadelphia.

Two actors, Allan Rodgers as the Public Gareth and Hank Gardner as the Private Gareth, play the role simultaneously while all the other characters are aware only of the public man.

"Philadelphia" will play straight through, Tuesdays through Sundays, for 2 weeks, unlike the usual 3-weekend Playhouse run. Curtain time is 8:30 nightly except for the first Sunday, February 4, when it's 7:30; and the final Sunday, February 11, when it's 2:30. Single admissions are $3.50 on Saturdays, $3 for all other performances, and $1 for students except on Saturdays.

Reservations may be made at The Playhouse box office, 788-8739, open daily from 11 to 6.

TOW-AWAY

The City has announced that it "wants its money" and, so, beginning next Thursday and continuing until the police tire of the game called "tow-the-student's car", students will emerge from their classes to find their cars gone.

Towing the cars of students who have ignored their parking tickets, states Bailiff Thomas DiBernardi, is "the only way"

But the question is where this "way" leads.

It is the only way to punish the few who are unlucky enough to have their license plates spotted as one of the offenders.

It is the only way to penalize those who have gotten tickets in the last two years and are still enrolled in the University.

And it may even be the only way to force the money out of the few students whose cars are towed.

But it is not the way to stop the problem.

This tow-away tactic has been tried before. It has undoubtedly failed to stop illegal parking, and, according to Mr. DiBernardi's records, it has only gotten the city a very small percentage of the missing revenue.

The practice of towing away cars on sight is haphazard at best, ludicrously unfair at its worst.

The city has acquired a reputation for not tracking down the out-of-state car for a parking ticket. It is up to Mr. DiBernardi, and the men above and below him in the rather mysterious echelons of city and county government, to dispel this rumor.

But the way to do this is not to prosecute an individual for a minor offense of two years ago.

Punishment for breaking the law must be unyielding, but only if it is quick.

Mr. DiBernardi states that he wrote to Harrisburg, Pa. three months ago for a book of motor vehicle registrations. He received no reply.

Obviously someone in Harrisburg neglected his duty. But just as obviously it is no hardship to write a second letter, and if necessary, a third.

With such a book, those who didn't pay their parking tickets would be dealt with quickly and effectively. Punishment would be universally effective, not based on chance.

But for now, the few dollars which would be paid by those unlucky enough to have their car spotted by a policeman should be forgotten.

Mr. DiBernardi should equip his office with the necessary materials to keep track of who the violators are. He should indeed write another letter to the Pennsylvania authorities for a registration book.

And he should then commence with quick and effective law enforcement, and do so, then, with our blessing.

—DBM

FULLER

You may have noticed, in these last two issues, articles publicizing the coming of R. Buckminster Fuller to this campus.

Contrary to popular opinion, there are people who care that he is coming. Some students may even get up enough interest to ask were he is speaking.

You need not be reminded again this year about your overwhelming lack of attendance on previous occasions.

It would not help to say that Fuller is a gifted speaker. It would not help to say that he invented the geodistic dome. It would not help to say that he is the holder of at least a dozen degrees. All this has been said before.

Perhaps if he offered door prizes his lecture will be attended; or maybe he knows a few off-color jokes. Maybe he could speak at the fraternity dance that will probably be held on the same night.

It is important for any speaker on this campus to have a gimmick. You see, our student body cannot be easily fooled. They will not attend a lecture on the mere merits of the speaker alone. They want to know what else he can do.

They want to be sure that their valuable time is not wasted. They cannot be bothered with world-renown speakers if all they can do is speak.

Since Fuller will not offer door prizes, tell dirty stories, or speak at the fraternity dance, our clever student body probably won't be there.

All this has been said two weeks in advance in the hopes that you will prove this writer to be wrong. Should all of you attend, he stands corrected.

The Minotaur Speaks

The Protracted Essence Of Non-Being In A Secular Philosophy

What with the current controversy raging over the Philosophy Department of Youngstown University, I thought it might be wise to devote at least part of this column to a clarification; to lend lucidity, as it were, to an already confused issue.

An issue which has, no doubt, plagued the minds of all the students, and has been a source of constant worry to the student body at large, as opposed to the student body at small.

To get down to the basic issue, it seems as though the entire morass, if I may be so bold, crystallizes in the area of orientation.

I take pains to point out that I am not discussing Freshman orientation, but rather philosophical orientation, from the points of view, or frame of reference, as it were, of phenomenology, epistemology, logic, linguistic analysis, metaphysics and sodomy.

This, of course, depends upon one's inherent knowledge of the subject (whether it be immediate or produced by some agent extrinsic to the perceiver) and, without such knowledge, we are left with a painful abyss of intelligible mis-information of the worst sort.

This situation can initially be best remedied by a profound, in-depth, study of the problem, completely analyzing the locus of our inquiry with stern decision, made with the greatest accuracy and backed up with a degree of courage.

Of course, in order to fully comprehend and grasp the issue at hand, it is first necessary to acquaint ourselves and become conversant with at least a peripheral knowledge of the august works (as opposed to the September or July works) of Maritain, Husserl, Sartre, Cassirer, Ayer, Whitehead, Russell, Carnap, Dewey, James, Marcel, Kant, Hegel, Spinoza, Pierce, Royce, Marx, Berkeley, Aristotle, Plato, Thales, Heraclitus, Parmenides, Licippus, Anaxagoras, Anaximander, Zeno, Empedocles, and Joey Bishop.

Now that you have gained, through diligent study, at least a passing knowledge of the aforementioned genius, you will want to have them interpreted by some of the leading philosophical personalities of our day.

On the one hand, you will receive free of charge, a complete negation of what you have learned, with the possible exception of Alfred North Whitehead, whom you will revere and love and worship, under penalty of immediate academic negation. On the other hand, we may find a modicum of moderately oriented realism.

No matter which path you take, however, you are almost assured of coming to grips, as opposed to coming to grips, with the stated problem, the protracted essence of non-being in a secular philosophy.

Now, if we face this problem, which is hardly taken seriously outside certain circles, we find ourselves in something of a philosophical quandary.

If we are to approach the problem from the standpoint or frame of reference, as it were, of modern, analytic nonsense, we find that our initial premise is tautological, and, according to Ayer (see Language, Truth, and Logic, p. 28) anything which begins with a tautology must subsequently end with a tautology, therefore rendering itself, by its own inability to participate in objectivity, in a limbo between the real and unreal.

Are we clear so far? Fine! The "other" approach will produce for us, perhaps, a deeper understanding, since it accepts the notion of non-being, even though it is only the absence of perfection (which is totally denied by the other people).

In order to deal with the problem at all, it is first necessary to accept the basic idea as a first principle, which can easily be accomplished by the latter philosophical system (as opposed to the former . . . I take pains to be as precise as possible since we are dealing in a highly controversial area of thought).

Now that we have successfully objectified the problem and established a foundation from which to build an enduring and valid answer, carefully weaving objectivity into the fabric of our final conclusions, whilst not manifesting too much bias, we shall proceed to answer our question.

Here is the answer:
YES!!!

All of which is conclusive proof that the current problem raging in the philosophy department is neither current, a problem, a rage, or a matter directly related to philosophy.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of the Jambar:

It is hard to believe that a university would spend thousands of dollars for "instant grass" and "penguin food", but yet allow its graduating seniors to take job interviews in the cellar of an old building. However, this is the case at Youngstown State University. The present facilities in the Placement Office are appalling. The low ceilings and crumbling whitewashed walls of the conference room are a disgrace to this institution. These poor conditions discredit our school in the eyes of company representatives, and seriously limit job opportunities for seniors. Many companies will not come here because of existing facilities, and visiting companies complain about unsatisfactory conditions.

Mr. Minotti and his staff are well qualified, but they need modern facilities to perform with maximum efficiency. Promises of a new Placement Office have been made by the administration, but the students of Youngstown State University need results, not promises.

James Kenney
 Senior Engineering

To the Editor of the Jambar:

After attending the folk-ecumenical Mass this past Sunday at St. Joseph's Newman Center, I must congratulate first the Newman Club for backing such a responsible cause and secondly, Rev. Cantrell. I won't ponder on the idea of the Mass—being a catholic myself, I probably could not stand on the outside and credit or discredit this part of the service. For this reason I would like to throw credit only on Rev. Cantrell.

I have been fortunate in the past to have had a brief contact with the Rev. through the C.R.Y. program and was greatly impressed by his insight and sincerity. For the few handfuls of participants at the evening service, it was an opportunity to observe more closely this dedicated man.

Rev. Cantrell gave the Homily and his talk was well orientated to today's college students and their basic problems. Considering other sermons which I have heard, his was neither long nor short but with a fine tone of deliverance.

Our hat goes off to this Christian humanitarian with hopes that we will be able to watch him at work again soon.
