Phone line lets students voice issues to Stu Gov

By FAITH PUSKAS
Managing Editor

Student Government is doing something new to help students feel more in touch with their University and its administration. It's called "The Squak Box."

"The Squak Box" is a 24-hour comment and information line. The number is 742-3592. Students can call to get information about current happenings on campus or they can leave a message which is 100 percent guaranteed of a response within 24 hours.

"When a student leaves a question and their phone number on 'The Squak Box,' I look up the information and call them back," said Mary Noble, secretary of Non-traditional Student Services.

Calls left by anonymous persons are answered through The Jambar classifieds.

The service was founded by Noble and Lynn Haug, program coordinator. Its purpose is to try to fill the gaps left by the recent cutbacks and the elimination of many evening student services, although the service is for the representation of all students.

The service will also be used to conduct student interest surveys. Advertisements will be placed in The Jambar each week to raise issues of interest to students and to encourage them to call and tell Student Government what they think. Issues raised by the students will also be discussed.

A few words to the wise: "The Squak Box" is an answering machine with informative messages and a chance for students to voice their opinions. Please do not expect to talk to someone live.

According to Noble, this appears to be the one drawback of the service. But, the machine is capable of giving the date and time of each call which helps them to give prompt answers.

What students can expect is a friendly voice telling about current events on campus and asking them to leave a question or comment.

"Some people have a hard time talking to a machine, but they will get used to it," she said.

The times at which you can call "The Squak Box" are unlimited. The line is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"They [students] can call in the middle of the night," said Noble. The service has been getting calls and already has many satisfied customers.

Campus faculty to explore Columbus

By MATTHEW DEUTSCH
Assistant News Editor

The 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus's voyage to the New World is fast approaching. To help commemorate the event, the YSU College of Arts and Sciences is holding a faculty forum titled "Columbus: Hero or Rogue?" The forum will take place at 3 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 12 in DeBartolo Hall, 500 years to the day that Columbus made his discovery.

Four faculty members will explore the facets of Columbus's voyage and his contributions to society. Warren Young, physics and astronomy, will discuss the reasons behind Columbus's journey and why Columbus thought he had landed in Japan; Ronald Shaklee, geography, will discuss the controversy surrounding the exact landing site; George Beelen, history, will look at Columbus's place in history; and John White, sociology, anthropology and social work, will probe the exchange of plants, animals and diseases between the Old and New Worlds.

"I'm going to talk about what led him to the notion that he could achieve his objective and about his mistaken attempts at measuring latitude and longitude," said Young, who recently had an article about Columbus in Star Date magazine. In the article, Dr. Young points out that "Columbus and his contemporaries navigated by dead reckoning rather than celestial navigation," and that although he "was no astronomer...he more than made up for this deficiency by being a superb sailor."

Beelen, whose field is Latin American history, will place

Columbus in the context of history. "Arrogant Europe used him as a model of what could be accomplished," said Beelen, who also stated that people's opinion of Columbus has taken almost a 180 degree turn over the last few years.

At first, all manner of complimentary things were done in Columbus's honor. "King's College was renamed Columbia University," said Beelen. "Then there's the District of Columbia, Columbus Circle in Central Park and the Knights of Columbus." Beelen also points out that our country was almost named the United States of Columbus.

Recently though, people have viewed Columbus as the perpetrator of genocide, since almost 90 percent of the Indians in the New World were gone within a century. Some were killed off, some died of disease and some were absorbed. Beelen thinks, however, that it was not genocide.

"Genocide is a systematic, calculated way of killing people," he said, "and I don't think that was Columbus's intention."

A 30-minute question and answer period will follow the presentations. The forum is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

For more information, call 742-3616.

Thrills and chills come to campus in movie form

By MATTHEW DEUTSCH
Assistant News Editor

The students on campus who like horror films will be happy to hear what Student Government is doing. All during the month of October, a series of Screen-n-Scream Horror Flicks will be shown in the Pub.

"These films are part of the events we have planned leading up to Homecoming," said Bill Burley, Student Government president. "We wanted to have something for the night students on campus, too." This year, Homecoming falls on Halloween, Saturday, Oct. 31.

No particular formula was used to select the films, but a poll was taken of Student Government members and other students. Consequently, the titles which were chosen represent some of the most popular horror films of the last few years. The times that the movies will play are as follows: 11 a.m., 2 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Thursday Oct. 15, The Lost Boys
Thursday Oct. 22, The Serpent and the Rainbow
Tuesday Oct. 27 Cape Fear and The Silence of the Lambs

Thursday Oct. 29 The Addams Family.

Other events that have been scheduled for this quarter by Student Government include an event with the Penguins on the grass field behind Beeghly Center on Saturday, Oct. 10 and in the near future Student Government will sponsor "Into the Streets," an event designed to help clean up the downtown area. This project will be done in conjunction with other student organizations. From Nov. 17 through Nov. 19, Student Government will host the annual "Great American Smokeout."

For additional information on any of these events, call the Student Government Office at 742-3591.

Student Government is vital to us all Actions speak louder than words. So far, the two past Student Government Presidents, (Brian Fry and Scott "Cus" Smith), have started a strong trend where the needs of the students come first.

Student Government President Bill Burley is no different from his predecessors. Burley appears to be a leader who has loads of charisma and is determined to continue the traditions set by Fry and Smith to be an advocate and a voice for YSU students.

Requiring Student Government representatives to serve their office hours in the college they represent was designed with students in mind. Instead of students going out to look for their representatives in order to ask them a question, or tell them what's on their mind, the representatives will always be available to them.

This was quite an impressive move. It's kind of like a doctor making housecalls, even if you're on your deathbed it is highly unlikely, especially in our society.

Of course, not all the credit should go to Burley because his right-hand man is on the ball this fall. A few Mondays ago, Billet asked the representatives to come to the next meeting with issues and ideas that students feel Student Government should address.

In addition, Student Government is targeting Ohio Governor George Voinovich by sending him a videotape entitled, "The YSU Message." The tape asked YSU students to voice their concerns over the budget cuts.

Again, this is another strong indication that the Burley/Billet administration is interested in knowing what the students are thinking and how the administration is more than willing to go straight to the top to fight for the students.

Student Government is vital to us all. Every day students grumble and complain about parking, tuition increases, lab fees, YSU's almost non-existent social life, etc.

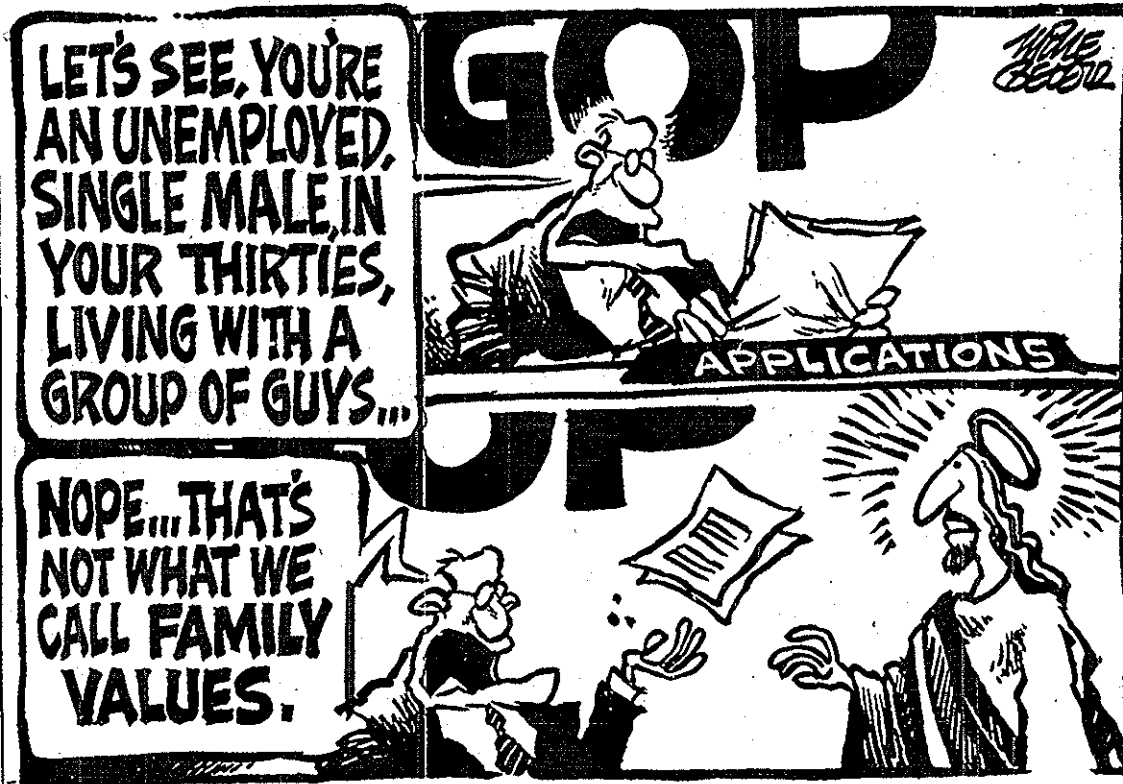

But we also hear great solutions to these problems and new ideas for bettering this institution. We all complain and we do it quite well; unfortunately, that's all we do.

Some believe Student Government can't really do anything, or they believe it's a joke.

Student Government is our official channel. We have the power to put the students who best represent our ideas and beliefs in and to boot them out when they fail.

Student Government is vital to our academic future. If we don't care enough about ourselves then no one else will. If you think Student Government is a joke then that is what you must think about your future at this University.

It all starts with you. And if no one is interested, thank goodness there are a few good people like Burley and Billet and the rest of the representatives who are willing to fight for you.

Ride a bike to campus

Dear Editor:

At the conclusion of your editorial "Parking Deck Blues" of Oct. 2, 1992, you state: "Makes you wish you rode a bike to school instead."

I have been bicycling to YSU since 1968, and let me assure you that biking to campus not only saves me time, but also saves wear and tear on my car and I benefit from the daily exercise. Moreover, I do not have to gripe about the lack of parking spaces.

I encourage faculty, staff and students to bicycle to campus and realize all the benefits I have enjoyed for 24 years. Do yourself one more favor before hopping on your bike and heading for campus: buy a helmet and protect the brain that you have worked so hard to develop.

Rock the Vote concert is success

Dear Editor,

This is an open letter of gratitude to those who attended, and who helped make the Rock the Vote concert at Cedars Lounge in Youngstown Saturday, Sept. 26, such a huge success.

Profits from the concert were sent to the Rainforest Action Network, and the Mahoning Valley Food Bank received nearly 400 non-perishable food items. This donation amounted to 330 pounds of goods.

The voter registration drive gained over 40 new participants in Mahoning and Trumbull counties. Opinion pieces, literature on H. Ross Perot and pamphlets with information on Democratic candidates were provided by the Mahoning County Democratic Committee.

Republican party representatives were unable to attend. A special thanks goes to those persons who donated their time to make this benefit a success, including the deputy registrars from Mahoning and Trumbull counties, technical crew, Cedars club owner Tom Simon and five bands—The Heretics, Coin Monster, Reclining Nude, Over Your Head and The Skinks. In our own way, we all make a difference.

Campus Escort Services undergo changes in 1992-93 school year

By CHRIS MORIARTY
Staff Reporter

Do you know what the escort service is? Do you know what duties the service performs? Dr. Van Siatris, Assistant Director of Admissions, heads the escort service from the basement of Dana Hall.

Siatris explains that over 90 percent of the service deals with handicapped students of the YSU community. Anyone can use the escort service, because funds are allocated through the student general fee.

"The students have been trained to work with the handicapped students," said Siatris.

Between 12 and 14 students employed by the escort service are available to handle the needs of the students. Siatris said,

"They begin to escort at 7 a.m., and they continue until 11 p.m., Monday thru Thursday and on Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. They will escort off-campus to certain areas. For off-campus duties, two escorts will be provided per student."

Siatris said that except for minor cutbacks, the budget has remained fairly constant. The staff has not been reduced and remains as strong as ever.

Students who want to work as escorts must be in good academic standing, must have an interest in helping people and must be full time students, Siatris said.

Ralph Blanco, chief dispatcher, makes the schedule and said "the hardest quarter to schedule is the fall because we're working out the rough edges."

Blanco gives a few tips to students using the escort service.

"Call and schedule ahead of time if possible. This way you can be assured that we will be able to have escorts available to serve you," said Blanco. "If you can't call ahead, call on your break between classes so that the escort can meet you on time," Blanco suggested. Siatris said,

"Escorts are briefed by Campus Police as to potential dangers lurking on campus and what to do about them." The escorts are easily recognizable. They wear name badges and carry flashlights after dark. In rainy weather they carry umbrellas and ponchos. If you need the escort service, don't hesitate to call extension 1515 from any campus phone.

Native Americans visit campus to share history

YSU — Soft yellow leather with long fringes, turquoise jewelry, beadwork and feathers were abundant on the YSU campus yesterday during a day-long Native American Cultural Exposition.

Less visible, but also present, were messages about Native peoples' long residence in the Americas, their care for the land and its creatures and their many complex cultures.

About 300 area school children and numerous members of the YSU community learned about Native American crafts and customs during the program.

Present were about 100 speakers, vendors, artists and performers to campus to present a variety of events. Most of the participants were from Ohio, some came from Pennsylvania, while others came from as far away as Canada. Speakers also included several YSU faculty members.

Events included a display and sale of Native jewelry, books and crafts in Kilcawley Center; continuous demonstrations of leather-tanning, bead-working, pottery-making and flute-making and other crafts in Bliss Hall; a traditional lodge, or tepee, on the campus core; and much, much more.

Organizers of the event were the Native American Cultural Exchange Committee of Warren and Multi-Cultural Student Services. Sponsors included the Ohio Arts Council, Ohio Humanities Council, the Youngstown Peace Council and Student Government.

Youngstown State University Presents
Skeggs Lecturer
Edwin Meese III
Monday, Oct. 12, 1992 — 7:30 p.m.
Kilcawley Center — Chestnut Room

From his days as a district attorney in California to his three and a half years as United States Attorney General, Edwin Meese III has left his mark on American public life.

A graduate of Yale University and the University of California, Meese advanced as a public official to become California Governor Ronald Reagan's chief assistant. In 1975, he became vice president of Rohr Industries, a leader in aerospace and transportation technology. Following a stint in private law practice, Meese served on the faculty at the University of San Diego, where he also directed the Center for Criminal Justice Policy and Management.

During the first two years of the Reagan administration, it was Ed Meese who was considered the President's top domestic affairs advisor. Under his direction, the domestic Policy Council aimed for new goals and attempted new methods of achieving its objectives on such pressing issues as AIDS, welfare reform, crime control and the drug abuse policy. In 1985, Meese was appointed U.S. Attorney General. During his term as head of the Justice Department, the federal government began a period of unprecedented cooperation with local and state law enforcement officials, as well as authorities from other countries. As a result of these programs, espionage prosecution resulted in dozens of high-level arrests, including those of John Walker and Jonathan Pollard. The West united against international terrorist activity and the child pornography industry was effectively curtailed.

The lecture is free and open to the public. Seating is available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Guests may park in the Wick Avenue parking deck for a charge of $2.

New exhibit at McDonough is more than just sculptures

By BARBARA SOLOMAN
Entertainment Editor

The first curatorial exhibit now on display at the McDonough Museum of Art is the African Sculptural Traditions Exhibit.

The exhibit runs until Nov. 28 and features many activities, lectures and workshops.

Besides all the events in conjunction with the exhibit, the sight of the exhibit itself is worth the venture down to the McDonough. The project fills the entire museum and is divided into six sections -- Beginnings, Socialization, Mastery of the Universe, Passions, Realm of Death and Spirit World.

There are displays of various other African necessities as well as sculptures, including vests, masks and necklaces.

The masks are extremely unique. Many were initiation and ritual wares and others were those from the spirit world.

The Maboom mask was made of paint, cloth, wood and beads. It is colorful and at the same time, scary. The Mm'wo female spirit mask and full costume was beautiful. It was embroidered, not done in beads as the majority of the pieces on display were. It was full of color and designs that looked liked suns and horizons.

The male spirit costume is almost the same without the brightness of the colors. The tones are more dull, but it is still very unique.

Another aspect of the exhibit is the priest and hunter vests. These are interestingly patterned with designs made of beads and sea shells. The darker one also has pieces of metal and bells that are aligned along the bottom. The beads in both of them are used to form patterns and designs such as birds and faces.

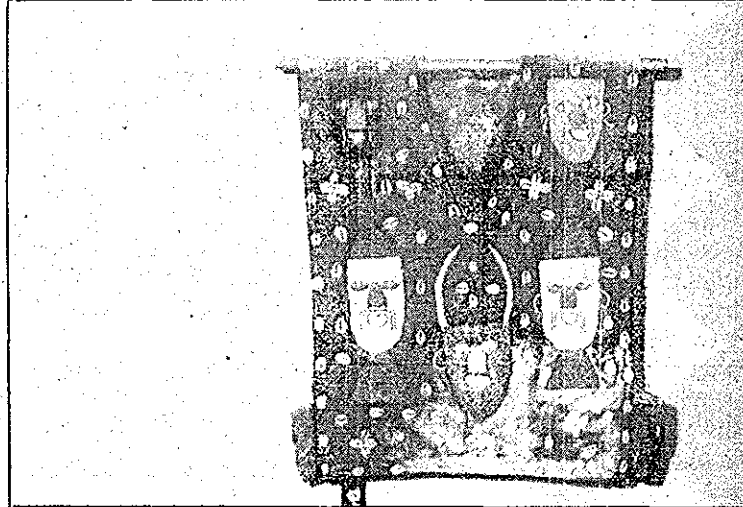

The sculptures on display are a very exciting sight, ranging in sizes. Some of them represent the family and others represent the spirit world. The Family Tree Sculpture is the one I thought was very different. It was made from wood, pigment and metal. There is one main head and others branch out from it. The symbolism behind the sculpture is not obvious to the lay person's eye, but probably very interesting.

Another sculpture that got my attention was the Akua ba Statue. The huge flat head dominated the figure and the body, which was very long and narrow, made up the rest.

There are so many more interesting pieces that make up this exhibit; so many that it is hard to discuss them all in one story, but if you wander down it will be worth it.

Frantic Flattops bring their rock-a-billy sound back to area

By BARBARA SOLOMAN
Entertainment Editor

They're back! The Frantic Flattops are back in Youngstown with their roadhouse rock-a-billy sound. The guys will be playing at the Penguin Pub tomorrow night with their new drummer, Too Tall Paul Vezelis.

The Flattops, consisting of Frantic Frank DeBlase, vocals and guitar; Hot Rod Mike Graham on upright bass; and the drummer Vezelis, have toured extensively over the past few months and signed with Rockabilly Record Company in Denver. They plan to release their first album at the end of October.

"The unique sound of rock-a-billy stems back to the '40s to the big band era," said DeBlase. "It's got a swing sound to it."

DeBlase also said that the shows are wild and very dance oriented. The crowd is composed of a variety of people of all ages.

The last time the band was at the Penguin Pub in January, the place was packed and now the Flattops are looking forward to their return visit tomorrow.

"Youngstown is our favorite place to play," said DeBlase. "It's wild."

Dana announces fall organ recital on Sunday at St. John's

YSU's Dana Concert Series will present Dr. Ronald L. Gould in an organ recital at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11 in St. John's Episcopal Church.

The music will include three selections by Johann Sebastian Bach: the Ricercare in Six Voices from The Musical Offering, the Tocatta, Adagio and Fugue in C Major and the Passacaglia in C Minor.

Music by 20th-century composers will be played also. The pieces are Nova by Myron Roberts; the Adagio for Strings by Samuel Barber in the organ arrangement by William Strickland; Prelude from Suite, Op. 5 by Maurice Durufle and a Gospel Prelude on "Jesus Loves Me" by William Bolcom.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Redbirds set to swoop in on the "Ice Palace"

By MICHAEL YONKURA
Sports Editor

After beating Indiana State from the Gateway Conference last Saturday in Terre Haute, 30-24, YSU is primed and ready for its next foe.

That foe is the Illinois State Redbirds, another Gateway Conference member. They fly into the "Ice Palace" tomorrow night.

Head coach Jim Tressel said he is looking forward to his 4-1 team playing ISU for several reasons.

"This is going to be an interesting game for us," said Tressel. "It's at this point that the top-caliber teams begin to play flawless football and we need to achieve that."

This is also a particularly special game for YSU Defensive Coordinator, Jon Heacock. His brother, Jim, is the head coach of the Redbirds.

Jim is also looking forward to facing his brother tomorrow, as well as YSU.

"I have a tremendous amount of respect for Jon and the program as a whole," said Heacock. "Our job for (tomorrow) is to respect them, but to also make them respect us."

The Redbirds come into tomorrow's game with a 2-3 record, including last week's 41-14 loss to the number one team in Division I-AA, Northern Iowa. According to Jim Heacock, that score was a lot closer than it seemed.

"We held Northern Iowa to 79 yards rushing," said Heacock. "We gave up a touchdown from a fumble and one from a punt return."

"One of the things we'll have to correct against YSU are mistakes like these," said Heacock.

One of the main weapons YSU will have to look out for is senior running back Toby Davis. In 1991, he averaged over 4 1/2 yards a carry in rushing for 1169 yards. He already has 737 yards rushing in only five games.

"He's a big, physical type of runner," said Tressel. "He's in the same category of runner as Christian Okoye."

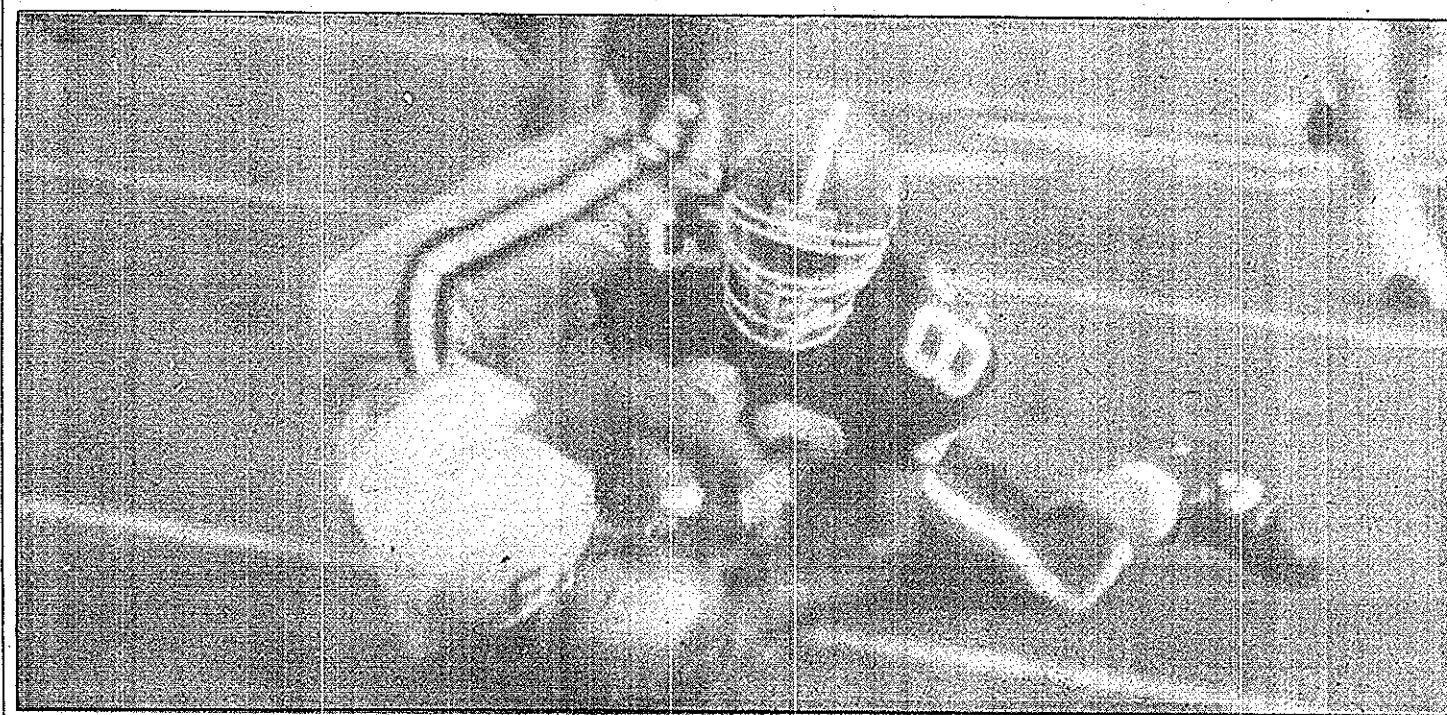

Davis's backup, freshman Keith Goodnight, is the team's second leading rusher.

YSU's regular quarterback, senior Adrian Wilson (a Mt. Gilead, Ohio, product), is out for the season with a broken collar bone. His replacement, sophomore Danny Barnett, has had two of his eight pass attempts intercepted this year.

The defense lost most of its starters from 1991 to graduation and sports a young core this year with only two seniors starting. The Redbird defense is led by linebackers Mike Williams and Chris Stevens.

Much like Indiana State, the Redbirds have an outstanding kicker/punter in senior Cameron Bair, who averages about 39 net yards a punt.

Kick-off between YSU and Illinois State is slated for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night at the "Ice Palace."

Down in a heap. Junior tight end John Quintana and a recent YSU opponent both go down with the ball. Quintana and company will try and keep the ball away from Illinois State tomorrow at the "Ice Palace."

Spikers comeback efforts fall short against CSU

By MICHAEL YONKURA
Sports Editor

It was the comeback that never was.

Down two sets to none against Cleveland State, the YSU volleyball team battled back to win the next two sets before dropping the fifth and decisive set. The final score was 15-10, 15-10, 11-15, 6-15 and 12-15.

Despite the loss, YSU head coach Joe Conroy remained positive.

"This was another good experience for us," said Conroy about his young Lady Penguin squad. "This is the best communication we've had from the squad this year."

That good communication, however, may not have arrived until the third set. YSU stayed close to the Lady Vikings throughout the first two sets, but CSU kept the lead with well-placed spikes and strong serving.

At one point during the second set, YSU was ahead 5-2. CSU answered with four straight points of its own and never looked back.

With their backs to the wall, the Lady Penguins staged an exciting comeback. In set three, both teams exchanged the lead several times until sophomore Tina Gregory, set-up junior Anne Buterbaugh for two straight kills to put YSU up for good, 12-11. Freshman Janie Cebula served an ace to take the third set.

The fourth set saw the Lady Penguins jump all over CSU early as they took an 11-4 lead. Sophomore Stephanie Bulicz gave YSU the set-winning kill.

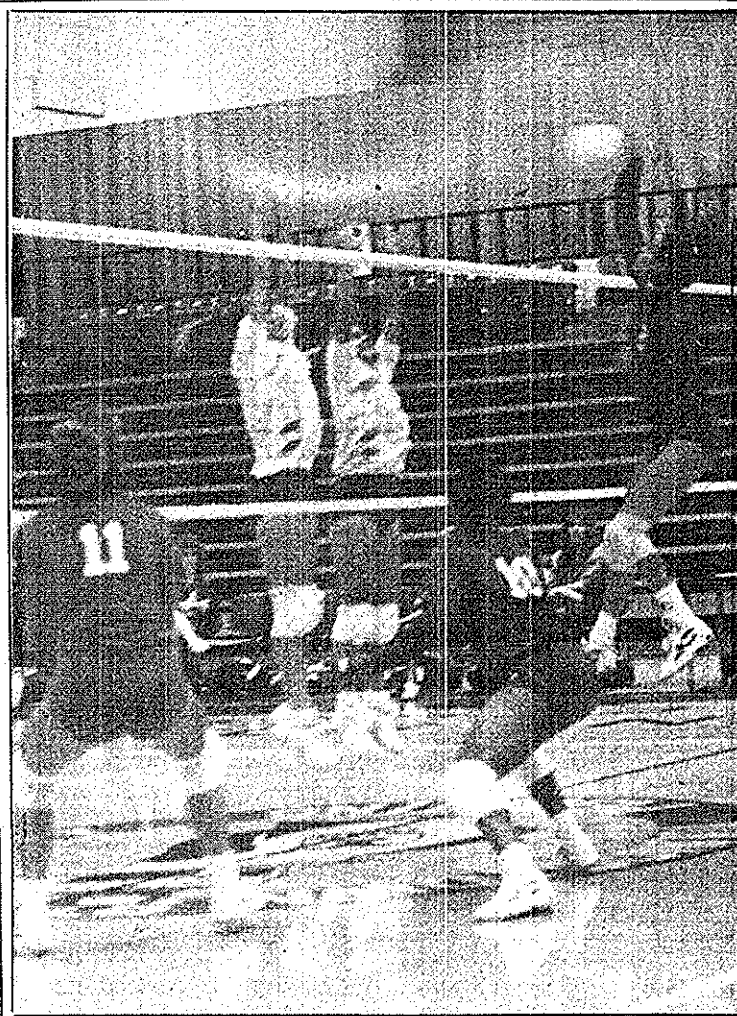

The fifth set, decided by rally points, started with CSU taking a 1-0 lead. YSU soon took control and kept the Lady Vikings at bay with its aggressive play.

Then, with the score 12-9, CSU rallied back to take the last six points to win the set and the match.

Despite the loss, Conroy was not disappointed with YSU's performance.

"We did a lot of things well for such a young team," said Conroy. "We opened up CSU's outside lanes once we established our offense in the middle. We also changed our blocking formations. I think the team responded well to all the changes we made."

YSU now falls to 3-6 on the season and 0-5 in Mid-Continent Conference play. It will host two more MCC games this weekend in the Beeghly Center. Tonight it faces Illinois/Chicago at 7 p.m., and tomorrow it plays against Valparaiso University at 3 p.m.

Up and over. Junior Anne Buterbaugh goes high in the air to drive the ball over two defending blockers. YSU lost a heart-breaking match to Cleveland State Tuesday after coming back from a two-sets-to-nothing deficit.
