

ACLU warns Coffelt about destroying files

By JOE ZABEL

The central Ohio office for the American Civil Liberties Union has sent a telegram to President John Coffelt warning him that destruction of the security files—which he plans by Nov. 20—might be construed as an obstruction of justice.

Dr. Lewis Rosenthal, chairperson of the Youngstown chapter of the ACLU, who was not involved in the issuance of the statement, said the telegram "appears" to be contradicting the request of the Ohio Education Association that the files be destroyed.

The telegram resulted from a meeting in Columbus of the board of directors of the Ohio ACLU. Benson A. Wolman, a board member, said the Columbus office plans to help the Youngstown chapter in dealing with the security files.

The telegram said that the ACLU has heard from people who may have been referred to in the security files. Dr. Alice Budge, English, said she is one of those referred to.

The telegram expressed appreciation of Coffelt's response to the security files issue. It said, however, that it was insufficient in three areas.

First, the board felt Coffelt should send a certified letter to all those whose names appeared in the file, informing them of the file's existence.

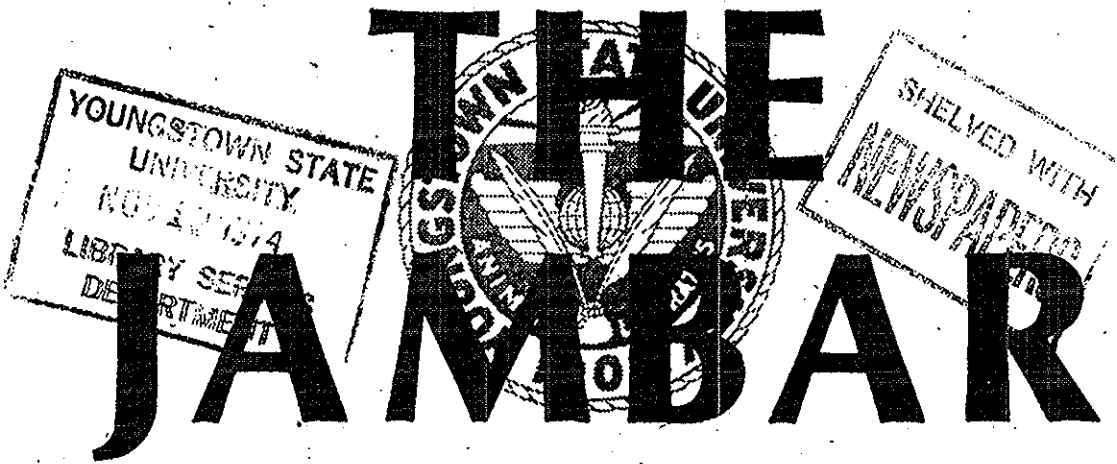

Secondly, it felt Coffelt should take responsibility for securing the return of missing files.

Thirdly, it felt the security office should turn over individual files to the subjects, rather than merely allowing them to see their files.

The board has authorized its legal counsel to investigate the situation.

The telegram warned that destruction of the files on the planned date of Nov. 20 could be viewed as an obstruction of justice. It referred to the existence of the files as "a substantial infringement upon the freedoms of association and expression" and said the files "exercise a chilling effect" upon those freedoms.

The telegram was signed by

Students will have voice in faculty evaluations

The faculty evaluation committee has issued a preliminary report to the administration and the Ohio Education Association executive committee. The report proposes that the faculty evaluation include an evaluation by students in each instructor's class.

The student section of the evaluation could count for as high as 60 per cent of the total evaluation, and would not count less than 40 per cent, according to the preliminary report.

The report also recommends the creation of a new type of student handbook.

The preliminary report has been issued in order to provide the committee with wider feedback regarding the needs and desires of the faculty and the administration. Dr. Jim Morrison, co-chairperson of the committee, says that a final report should be ready in three or four weeks.

The report divides faculty evaluation into three areas: teaching ability, university service, and scholarship. The weight of teaching ability would be 50-80 percent. The weight of the two other areas would be between 10 per cent and 40 per cent each.

The evaluation of teaching ability, according to the report, would consist of an evaluation by students and an evaluation by colleagues. The student rating would never consist of less than two-thirds or of more than four-fifths.

The student evaluation will consist of a questionnaire handed out to students in the class of the individual being evaluated. In a version of this questionnaire seen by The Jambar before the preliminary report was issued, the questions were divided into two sections. One asked questions such as "Did you take this course because it is a requirement?" and "Is this course in your major?" These questions would provide information about the student's reason for taking the course.

The second section consisting of five questions, evaluated the instructor. One dealt with the

VP Edgar addresses Council, says need grievance procedure

Vice President for Academic Affairs Dr. Earl Edgar said yesterday he sees the need for a student grievance procedure but added he regrets he "will have little chance of hearing about many of the student problems the way the grievance procedure plan is presently structured."

He made the statement during an appearance at yesterday's Student Council meeting.

The grievance procedure was summarized for Edgar by Student Council Chairperson Ed Sturgeon, who explained that a student with a grievance should first confront the instructor involved with the issue, and if no settlement can be worked out between the two, the student should present the issue in writing to the chairperson of his department.

If the student is still dissatisfied with the decision, he could take the issue to the dean of his school.

The dean of the school would be given 10 days to act on the grievance, and if the student was still dissatisfied with the decision, the grievance would be turned over to a sub-committee of the Senate or a special student affairs committee.

Edgar also cleared up several questions about required classes that are canceled when graduating seniors are in them.

Edgar stated that a student has several options in this event, one of which would be to bring the matter to academic affairs and see if special permission could be received to continue the class.

Another course the student could pursue, said Edgar, would be to talk to the chairperson of his department or the dean in his school and see if another course could be substituted for the requirement.

A student could also look into the possibility of taking the course in a conference session, if an instructor would agree to teach it. Edgar stated that in all of these cases the problem would have to be a special case and these options would not allow students to avoid certain requirements.

In regard to the matter of any and all files on students within the University, Dean Charles McBriarty told members of Council that he was chairperson

Will face Delaware---

YSU is in NCAA play-offs

by Dave Harasym

The 1974 Penguins, one of the most successful football teams in the school's history with an 8-1 record, have been picked to play the University of Delaware in the first round of the NCAA Division II post-season play-offs, announced Dr. Lawrence Looby, YSU acting athletic director, in a press conference late yesterday.

This is the first time any YSU team has been offered a post-season play-off bid.

Looby read the official acceptance letter on behalf of YSU: "Dr. Coffelt has authorized me to announce that the NCAA has offered a Division II football berth to YSU and that YSU has accepted. I was informed of the selection at 1:30 p.m. by Tom Jernstedt of NCAA and we are pleased to be among eight finalists selected. We are looking forward to November 30 and playing the University of Delaware."

Delaware's record this season is 9-1.

The winner of the YSU-Delaware game will play the winner of the Alcorn A and M University of Nevada at Las Vegas game at the Grantland Rice Bowl in Baton Rouge, La. Dec. 7.

An elated Coach Rey Dempsey, in his second year here, said, "This is one of the greatest things ever to happen. I am tickled and thrilled, and I know my players are too. I sent my players letters during the summer stating that we felt that we could make a post-season play-off and we made that our goal. They felt it was a realistic goal and we made it happen."

Dempsey said that Delaware is the best-coached team in the country. "They are a technically sound football team that makes few mistakes. They'll be tough to beat."

Dempsey added that he is not going to prepare any differently for the game with Delaware. "We are going to try to get as many Delaware films as we can. And we are going to trade films with Delaware according to any NCAA guidelines."

Max Judeh, frosh soccer-style kicker, believes that YSU can beat Delaware. "Akron was defeated by Delaware 14-0, and we defeated Akron 30-0."

Dempsey, when asked about the lack of support for the team, said, "I have to be frank, the

General fee committee approved by new student affairs group

The Student Affairs Committee to the Board of Trustees, formed last spring quarter to provide a vehicle for student input to the Trustees, discussed in their last session the general fee, the opening of Beeghly Center on Sundays, the keeping of academic and security files on students, and the campus parking situation.

No specific proposals were made at the meeting, but the general consensus by the Committee in regards to the general fee was that the budget sub-committee on the allocation of the general fee should satisfy any student concerns in regards to the matter.

The Trustees committee also decided that the two student members of the committee, Ed Sturgeon, chairperson of Student Council, and former Student Government President Joe Simko, would be responsible for future committee meetings and would decide when they would be held and what would be on the agenda.

Sturgeon stated that at the next meeting the Committee would discuss the need for development of a student grievance procedure and, perhaps, the newly-revised Student Government Constitution, if it were finished at this time.

The Student Affairs Committee was formed as a compromise measure to intermittent lobbying by students last year for representation on the Board of Trustees. At that time, Trustee Ann Isroff explained that the Board formed the Committee as an alternative to non-voting student membership on the Board because "In the long run there would be much better interchange," and because most of the "real actions" of the Board transpire in committee.

Student members were then appointed to the Board by then-chairperson of the Board, Att. John Newman. Sturgeon stated that YSU President Coffelt recommended that he and Simko be appointed to the committee on the basis that they were in a position to be the most knowledgeable about student interests and concerns and would receive most of the complaints students have.

The appointments to the Committee were made for one year, and Sturgeon stated that the students most likely to be on the Committee were student officers that were not graduating and had a year of eligibility.

In regard to what the Committee will concern itself with in the future, Sturgeon said, "The committee will act as a liaison between students and the Board of Trustees and will charge itself with discussing issues that are of immediate concern to the student body." Sturgeon quoted Coffelt as saying that the Committee should not concern itself with administrative procedures.

Other members appointed to the Student Affairs Committee are Al Shipka, present chairperson of the Committee; Ann Isroff, present chairperson of the Board of Trustees; Atty. John Newman; Dr. Bertie Burrows, and Edward DeBartolo Jr.

The Committee plans to meet again shortly after the Nov. 23 meeting of the Board of Trustees.

YAF will feature Evans on "Politics of Surrender"

The YSU Young Americans for Freedom will feature M. Stanton Evans, noted editor of the Indianapolis News who will speak on the "The Politics of Surrender" at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21 in Schwebel auditorium.

The lecture is part of a seminar entitled "Superiority, Sufficiency, or Suicide: An Examination of American Defense Policy."

Evans also serves as a columnist for National Review and is heard three times weekly on the CBS radio commentary Spectrum. His columns are often printed in The Youngstown Vindicator as well as a number of other local papers.

Evans' distinguished literary career began at Yale University, where he was editor of comment magazine and served as feature editor of The Yale Daily News. After writing for the conservative weekly, Human Events, he moved to Indianapolis to occupy his current position.

He is chairperson of the American Conservative Union and

ACLU

Howard R. Besser, chairperson of the Ohio ACLU, and by Wolman.

In an interview with The Jambar, Wolman said the ACLU hopes to avoid litigation, but added if Coffelt doesn't heed the ACLU's suggestions, the actions involved might be subject to litigation.

Referring to the second area of so-called insufficiency in Coffelt's response, Wolman stressed the importance of locating all the files. He said it would be very difficult to find a remedy for people who were on the original list but whose files are now missing. This difficulty, Wolman said, would be especially acute in any attempts to recall information which may have been shared with other agencies.

Ten thousand people dies of starvation each week in Africa, Asia, and Latin America. About one-half billion people are suffering from some form of starvation in the world.

In Africa's Sahel region, 10 million people still suffer from malnutrition that resulted from a record 6-year drought. In Honduras, Burma, Burundi, Rwanda, the Sudan, and Yemen, the hunger situation is almost as grave. And if a world-wide failure of crops came about—not a very remote possibility considering the earth's changing climate—a world-wide rescue mission may not have enough muscle to aid starvation victims in India, China, or any other large country suffering crop failure.

The present world food crisis is due to many things: a changing world climate that wreaks havoc with crops, higher oil prices that raises costs on petroleum-derived insecticides, herbicides, and nitrogen-based fertilizers, and a world growth rate of 200,000 people a day.

The world food crisis should be viewed as totally alarming development by developed countries. Mass starvation and death, first of all, create political instability on a large scale and cause upheavals which usually affect developed nations sooner or later.

Then there is the question of our overabundance when compared to the rest of the world's lack. We are morally responsible to the point of cutting down our own consumption (we have not reached that point yet) to alleviate the suffering of masses of humanity.

There are two courses of action, however, that we can take right now. The first entails writing to your congressperson, asking him or her to support increased aid to the starving nations. The second involves direct action on a personal level. Oxfam-America, part of the International Relief Agency, suggests that Americans do not eat at all on Thursday, Nov. 21. Aside from the moral aspects of such an action, the faster could donate the money he saves from not eating to a relief organization.

Feedback

Compliments YSU Orchestra

To the editor of The Jambar:

May I say "Bravo for the Dana Orchestra!" The members of the Orchestra should be proud of their outstanding performance Monday, November 11 at Stambaugh Auditorium. Dr. William Slocum, conductor; Walter Mayhall, soloist, and every member of the group deserve credit for an outstanding musical treat. Slocum had complete control of the young musicians, displaying profound understanding and an exciting interpretation of each composer. Mayhall demonstrated fine virtuosity and excellent expression. Above all, the young musicians reflected devotion to the music and discipline in their performance.

YSU can be proud to have such a fine orchestra on its campus.

Criticizes 'self-deluded' thinking

To the editor of The Jambar:

With an air of invincible ignorance this past Friday, one of the numberless frosh of YSU displayed his complete misunderstanding of national defense policies. Rather than comment on the substantive issues of the national security debate, he chose to dismiss the facts and deal with his own peculiar brand of self-delusion.

Due to the fact that Young Americans for Freedom and presumably everyone else do not want World War III, we believe that students have a right to see and hear both sides of the military spending controversy.

Many of the more vocal members of the university community are prone to espouse only the liberal, antidefense rhetoric. In such a climate, rational discussion of our current defense policies is often replaced by irrational, anti-military cliches.

As Alexander Solzhenitsyn stated so succinctly, "No, it is not any difficulties of perception that the West is suffering, but a desire not to know, an emotional preference for the pleasant over the unpleasant. Such an attitude is governed by the spirit of Munich."

For those students who do wish to know the truth, as unpleasant as it may be, an excellent opportunity exists this week. Young Americans for Freedom is presenting a seminar from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21 in Schwebel Auditorium. Noted authorities, such as M. Stanton Evans and Steven Mayerhoffer, will speak and answer your questions about national security.

We challenge all members of the university community who pay lip service to the idea of maintaining an "open mind" to attend the YAF seminar.

Says new budget deserves support

To the editor of The Jambar:

The Ohio Board of Regents has proposed a budget for higher education with substantially increased subsidy support while maintaining student fees at current levels. The proposed funding level for the 1975-77 biennium is 70 per cent above the level of the 1973-75 biennium. This budget incorporates many of the recommendations of AAUP and other faculty, students and institutional organizations made directly to the Citizens' Task Force on Higher Education and the Board of Regents. While there are reservations about some particular details in the budget, the budget as a whole deserves our vigorous and outspoken support as being in the best interest of YSU and its students and faculty. At present, it appears to be the only likely vehicle to repair the inflation-caused erosion of faculty salaries.

As political matters now stand, unless we can change some attitudes, there is no present likelihood that this budget will be approved at anything like the proposed funding level. Governor John Gilligan, at the Oct. 26 meeting of the Ohio Conference AAUP, indicated that he could support only 45 per cent to 65 per cent of the proposed funding increase. Our friends in the General Assembly have not made any public statement in support of the proposed funding level. Many of them are less enthusiastic about substantial appropriation increases for higher education.

Faculty, students, and alumni should support the spending level of the proposed budget by letting their legislators know that this funding is necessary for obtaining quality higher education for the students of Ohio. The YSU Chapter of AAUP at its Nov. 8 chapter meeting unanimously endorsed the spending level of the proposed budget and has communicated this support to our area legislators. I urge other faculty, students, and alumni to do likewise.

Input: Palestinian problems

Once again history repeats itself. In 1948 the Zionist leaders pled their case and, under pressure from the U.S., Israel was recognized as a state in the world community. The recognition of Israel by the U.N. was a major victory for Israel since it gave her the legitimacy she lacked as a state. Once that recognition was secured, Israel felt that she was no longer accountable to the U.N. and the rest of the world, for that matter. Ever since that recognition, Israel has rejected all U.N. resolutions which would ease the Palestinian problem created by legitimatizing Israel as a political entity in the Middle East. How quickly Israel and her supporters forget this recent history.

In the past few weeks, the news media in the U.S. facilitated a vicious campaign instigated by Israel and her Zionist supporters against the invitation of the Palestinian Liberation Organization delegate to address the U.N. General Assembly on the Palestinian problem. All sorts of rationales were given to justify this campaign, but the one reason the Zionist capitalized on was terrorism. If Israel does not want the U.N. to give legitimacy to the PLO on the premise of terrorism, then Israel should be expelled from the U.N. on the account of the terrorism of which she is guilty. Israel's creation was achieved by terrorizing the Palestinians through a series of massacres such as the one in the village of Dir Yassin and in other towns in Palestine. Are we to assume that the Israeli people should be given privileges and the legitimacy no other nation enjoys?

If Israel's objection to the presence of the Palestinian Liberation Organization in the U.N. stems from a desire for peace, this rationale is illogically formulated and deliberately twisted. In 1948 Israel destroyed the Middle East peace when she evicted the Palestinian people from their homes and country. It was Israel who prolonged the destitution of the Palestinian problem, and now she wants the U.N. to do the same. On the other hand, the Palestinians, who were victimized by Israel, were the ones who proposed a workable solution aimed at establishing a state where the Palestinians and the Israelis can live together in peace and tranquillity. It was Israel who flatly rejected that proposal, thus preventing peace from becoming a reality in the Middle East. Does Israel have a monopoly over those who should discuss the Palestinian problem? If the PLO is not invited to participate in discussing their national rights, then who is to be invited?

It is grossly misleading to view the Middle East conflict as a terrorism problem or territorial dispute. The essence of the problem is a conflict between a system of values based on the supremacy of human integration and a system of primitive concepts the Zionist enclave upholds. The PLO advances the issues of peace and human rights for self-determination while Zionism, which Israel represents, advocates the concepts of human disintegration, exclusiveness, and racism. The crux of the Middle East conflict is that Israel vehemently opposes the recognition of the national rights of the Palestinians to their country, which she has occupied since 1948. Not only that, but Israel does not want the U.N. to regard the Palestinians as humans entitled to live on equal basis with those of other nations.

If this attitude, which prevailed in this last campaign, materializes, it could jeopardize any chance of a peaceful settlement in the Middle East conflict. If Israel and the U.N. reject the proposed solution to the Palestinian problem, the Palestinians should not be blamed if chances for peace are lost forever. The Palestinian Liberation Organization's delegate came to the U.N. seeking the support of the world community in choosing the olive branch instead of the gun, in attempting to achieve peace in the Middle East, which is intricately interwoven in world-wide peace.

Review: Slow Flux

by Steve Furgas

Old fans may find Steppenwolf's new album Slow Flux a disappointment. Lacking in the forcefulness seen in previous albums Monster and Steppenwolf 7. However, the album does have merit.

John Kay, original lead singer, still comes across with his low, hard, bullfrog voice which commands attention if not respect. The other two original members, Goldy McJohn (organ) and Jerry Edmonton (percussion), show restraint in comparison to their performances on the first album, Born To Be Wild. Bass player since the time of Monster George Biondo also shows more control than on earlier albums. Bobby Cochran, newcomer to the group, is masterful on lead guitars but does not stand out; the really good thing about this album is that no one artist stands out. Rather than having one member featured and the rest playing background the members of Steppenwolf combined their talents to produce a tight, unified sound, an asset to any rock group.

Thematically, the group is still the same. Smokey Factory Blues restates Steppenwolf's rejection of materialism: "I was born a lover not a worker/Money doesn't smell like sweet perfume." The themes of the disillusionments of youth and of political corruption echo the themes of Monster in Children of the Night: "Here to claim forgotten dreams. Too late, too late." The most intense attack on the political system comes in "Justice Don't Be Slow." The song features Richard Nixon's resignation speech with jackel howls in the background. The lyrics "Well now that you've caught your tormentor/He still won't admit to his sin" emphasize Steppenwolf's belief in the hypocrisy of American politics.

The restraint shown in the Slow Flux does not make the album better or worse than any previous album. It does make the album different, a variation of the Steppenwolf style of hard rock. It is a variation worth hearing.

YSU places 140 student teachers in district schools this quarter

The fall quarter student teaching program at YSU has 140 senior education students assigned to 80 schools in 33 school districts.

The school districts include nine in Pennsylvania and 24 in Ohio.

"Traditionally, fall quarter is the lightest assignment quarter of the academic year," reported Dr. Wilbert M. Hammack, director of student teaching. "The prospective number of student teachers for winter and spring quarters are respectively 150 and 210. This is a probable total of 500 student teachers for the 1974-75 academic year."

Hammack explained that the declining number of children in attendance in the elementary and secondary schools "warrants a reduction in the total number of new teachers annually. This reduction is a self-selection process at YSU." The probable 500 student teachers this year is a decrease of 19 per cent over the 1973-74 total.

Directed student teaching is a 10-week field experience course which enables the student teacher to follow the cooperating teacher's daily schedule, share teaching responsibilities and develop lesson plans.

Each student teacher has had at least 60 hours of previous directed observation and participation in an inner city and a rural or suburban school.

"Placement of student teachers is made on the basis of many factors," explained Hammack. The key factor is the availability of a cooperating teacher who satisfies the YSU "Criteria to Identify Cooperating Teachers" as established by the educational community cooperating with student teachers through their Advisory Committee on Student Teaching.

Student teaching provides opportunities to apply techniques and methods learned in courses to actual classroom teaching situations. Student teachers' responsibilities to pupils increase as the quarter progresses.

Quality of work is monitored and all classroom teaching must be satisfactory at all times or the work may be discontinued. Weekly seminars are required and attendance is mandatory.

Additional courses are scheduled only with approval, since the program requires the presence of the student teacher in the classroom for the whole day during each school day of the quarter.

YSU shuts out Akron; 8th win for Penguins

by Dave Harasym

A crowd of 5,500 fans saw YSU shut out arch-rival Akron University 30-0 at Rayen Stadium Saturday.

The victory was the Penguins' eighth win in nine games, tying the 1947 team record for most victories in a season.

The win gave YSU strong hopes for a bid in the NCAA Division II post-season playoff bowl in the mid-west.

The Penguins took the opening kick-off and drove 87 yards, with John Kinch carrying for the TD. Max Judeh kicked the extra point, and the Penguins led 7-0 with 11:02 showing in the first quarter.

YSU's second touchdown was set up on a fumble recovery by Felix Radon at Akron's 47-yardline. Three plays later, Kinch scored his second TD, with 8:06 left in the first quarter. Judeh hit on the extra point attempt, and YSU led 14-0.

Before the first half ended YSU scored again, when Kinch drove in for his third TD with 10:39 showing on the clock. Judeh's extra point attempt was wide, but YSU led 20-0 at the end of the first half.

At the half, Kinch and Dave Garden had gained more than 100 yards. Garden had 156 yards, while Kinch had 124 yards. Late in the first quarter Kinch broke the season rushing mark of 1,010 yards set in 1960 by Frank Horvath. Kinch now has a total of 1,045 yards for the season, setting a new school record. Kinch also holds the record of most rushing attempts in a season, 224, surpassing Garden's record of 187 rushing attempts in a season.

YSU's fourth touchdown drive did not occur until the fourth quarter, when Mike Sullivan recovered a fumble on Akron's 10-yard line. Nine plays later, Cliff Stoudt picked up the rolling ball after losing the snap and found Dave Ferguson wide open in the endzone to make a TD pass with 9:22 left in the quarter. Judeh hit the extra point attempt, and YSU took a commanding 27-0 lead.

Seconds later, the Penguins came right back, when Ted Sveda recovered Tom Hight's kick off at Akron's 18-yard line. YSU was unable to capitalize when Judeh missed a 34-yard field goal.

YSU's final points came late in the fourth quarter on a 32-yard field goal by Judeh, which was set up by a fumble recovery by Jerry Tuscano at YSU's 6-yard line. The fumble recovery thwarted another possible Akron TD drive.

YSU took advantage of eight Akron turnovers to keep the Zips off of the scoreboard.

The defense recovered five fumbles and intercepted three passes. Felix Radon had a great day as he intercepted two passes and recovered a fumble. Sullivan, Svada, Tuscano, and Jules Lehman all recovered fumbles. Al Campman, recovering from a serious back injury, added one more interception, to bring his total to five this year.

Kinch picked up 157 yards and three of YSU's four touchdowns on his way to the new rushing record.

Garden led the rushers with 166 yards on 16 carries. Most of Garden's runs were long; his longest of the day was an 80-yard sprint late in the first quarter.

Stoudt was 6 of 11 and one interception for 59 yards and one TD.

Stoudt's primary receivers were Russ Musiel, who caught three passes for 28 yards, and Ferguson who caught three passes for 32 yards and a TD.

The final statistics tell the story: YSU led in four of the six major categories.

The Penguins had 27 first downs to Akron's 16. YSU led in net yards gained rushing, with 380 to the Zips' 146 yards. The Penguins also led in total offense, with 439 yards to Akron's 296 yards.

instructor's knowledge of the course material. Another dealt with his ability to communicate that material and give assignments clearly. A third dealt with his receptiveness to different viewpoints and his encouragement of class participation. A fourth asked the student to determine how friendly the teacher was, and what his attitude was toward students.

These responses would take the form of "A" through "F" grades.

A fifth question asked the students to rate the teacher in comparison to other teachers he has taken.

The preliminary report does not specify whether the results of the student questionnaires will be made available to the students.

It did however propose the compilation of a new form of student handbook in which factual information regarding the objectives, structure, and content of courses which an instructor plans to teach would be obtained from that instructor and published. The handbook would be made available to students on a regular basis.

The committee is a product of last year's contract negotiations between the OEA and the administration. It consists of equal numbers of seats for students, faculty, and administrators.

Intramurals

The university intramural championship was decided this weekend as Theta Chi defeated the Buckeyes 20-19 to repeat as champions.

The Quantas Bears lost the "protest" game to the Buckeyes 13-0 but managed to defeat Alpha Phi Delta 13-7 to take third place.

The final standings in the all-university finals are as follows: first place, Theta Chi; second place, Buckeyes; third place, Quantas Bears, and fourth place, Alpha Phi Delta.
