Economics convention to make debut at YSU

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

Homecoming will not be the only activity taking place at YSU this weekend. There is also the 49th annual meeting of the Ohio Association of Economists and Political Scientists (OAEPA).

For the first time since the meetings have been held the annual event has been held in Youngstown.

Dr. Yih-Wu Liu, economics, who is one of five officers on the OAEPA, said he proposed the meeting be held in Youngstown. Liu said the meeting usually alternates between the four corners of the state and Columbus.

The meeting begins Friday night with a panel discussion on international trade between the Pacific Basin, Canada and the European Common Market.

Liu said the topics will range from state problems to national and international problems.

A reason for the annual meeting according to Liu is for economists and political scientists to learn and exchange new ideas.

Besides professors giving speeches, students and graduate students will compete in a paper presentation contest. The winner will receive $100.

"The money is the small part," said Liu. "It is the honor of winning the competition. It will enhance their chances for jobs or graduate school."

Liu said he expects about 100 political scientists and economists from Ohio to attend.

Professors from YSU that will speak are: Dr. Keith Lepak, political science; Dr. Tod Porter, economics; Dr. Bill Binning, political science; Dr. Anthony Stocks, economics and Liu.

Frank Gargiulo, sophomore, A&S, will compete in the student competition. Gargiulo's topic is "An Argument for Decentralizing Urban Planning."

Liu said the public may attend the meetings, which are to be held at the Wick-Pollock. Admission for the public is five dollars and YSU students with I.D., two dollars.

Students intend to explore YSU campus, game

By NANCY KERTIS
Jambar Managing Editor

"Exploration: YSU" is being held again this year. Last year over three hundred high school juniors and seniors spent the day on campus in an educational/social experience which included departmental demonstrations, personal discussions with faculty and staff along with admission to the Homecoming Game.

This year, the event will take place on Saturday, Oct. 14, 1989 — Homecoming weekend. Prospective students in their sophomore, junior and senior year will assemble at 9:30 a.m. in Ford Auditorium for an overview of YSU.

From there, they will be escorted on various pre-planned tours which they have selected for themselves. The day will conclude with free admission to the Homecoming game. A target group of 500 students is anticipated.

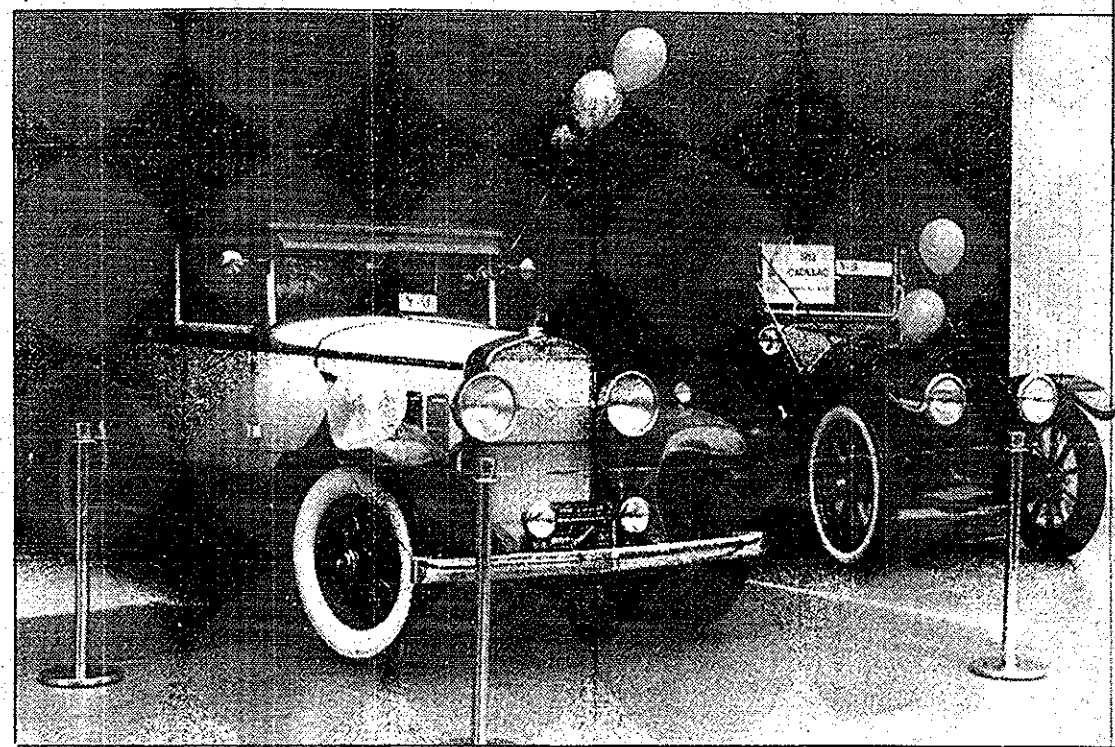

Denise Walters Dobson, Admissions Counselor, and in charge of the event said "Exploration YSU is a great opportunity to give high school students an academic picture of our campus."

Dobson also said "By including participants in the Homecoming ceremonies, we hope to make the event more community oriented."

Return to the roaring '20s

Facts examined in administrative ban on smoking

and GARY HALL
Jambar Editors

The new smoking ban on campus has sparked much controversy in the student body, prompting the organization of protests and the circulation of petitions, yet the facts that led to this decision need to be examined.

According to the Ohio Revised Code, number 3791.031 (volume 4, 1989), it is required that employers in public buildings, which include "university and private buildings," provide non-smoking areas.

However, an outside ventilation consultant from Roth Brothers Contractors and Engineering studied the mechanical prints, theory of operation, air conditioning design manuals and the actual operation of the Variable Air Volume (VAV) system which the University has installed in most of the buildings. His recommendation was as follows:

If smoking areas are required, these areas should have a heating, cooling and ventilation system installed which is separate from the existing central system.

The reason for his recommendation—

New group displays growing concern for environment

By DORRI AGGER
Staff Reporter

A new club on campus, called Students for a Healthier Planet, is dedicated to informing the YSU campus of present environmental issues and concerns as well as bettering the condition of our planet through direct action.

Formed in the spring of this year, the club's goals are to create environmental awareness and have some direct impact on the environment. The idea for the group was sparked by a conservation of natural resources class taken by Rebecca Talley, president; Daniel Greenfield, vice president; and Michele Lukon, secretary. The three students started by working on a recycling project for the class, developed into a group, and have been building on it ever since.

The Students for a Healthier Planet are currently working with Student Government, their advisor, and Dr. Patricia G. Humbertson, geography. Greenfield, a junior, is also involved as a member of the Greenpeace

"The consequences of global neglect will affect us all — either in our lifetime or that of the next generation."

DANIEL GREENFIELD
Vice-president of Students for a Healthier Planet organization, which is a national environmental conservation organization.

The club plans to purchase a rainforest to set aside for preservation, recycle aluminum cans, work with government, and host an 'adventures in nature' project which will include activities such as hiking.

The rainforest will be purchased with money from various fundraising activities. Student Government is going to have an Environmental Awareness week in November to kick off the rainforest project. Symbolic shares of the rainforest will be sold. Each purchaser will be given a rope to tie around the trees on campus. The Students for a Healthier Planet hope that through the media, people will become aware of what the club is doing and realize the need to preserve our rainforest. The money acquired from the fundraising projects will go directly into purchasing acreage in a rainforest in Costa Rica — where there is currently some for sale.

One option the club will consider is to donate the rainforest to YSU with the agreement the YSU will preserve it and use it for biochemical research. The raw materials found there in the plant life and amphibians can be used to find cures for such diseases like AIDS and cancer. If donated, YSU would make the final determination as to what to do with the rainforest. The club has not yet spoken to the University about this possibility.

The Students for a Healthier Planet are currently working in cooperation with Student Government on a project for recycling aluminum cans. The majority of the funds collected from this venture will go to Student Government. "Adventures in nature" will include hikes in Allegheny National Forest and state parks like Beaver Creek State Park. These expeditions will help members gain an appreciation of nature through personal experience.

Another project will be the reclamation of strip mines by planting trees, and replanting trees in area parks.

The club hopes to raise public awareness by writing articles on current detrimental issues in The Jambar, possibly publishing their own newsletter, and eventually may work into a larger scale by submitting articles to the Vindicator and other area newspapers.

The club is seeking new members — anyone with a genuine concern for the environment is welcome. Meetings will be held twice a month. The first meeting was held October 11 in Kilcawley.

Greenfield said the inspiration to join should be "that the consequences of global neglect will affect us all — either in our lifetime or that of the next generation." The club is excited about "the prospect of actually having a direct impact on the environment."

Week dedicated to explaining the effects of alcohol

By DIANE TUCHEK
Staff Reporter

Alcohol as a dangerous, addictive drug and the consequences of its use and misuse will be thoroughly explored during National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week on campus, Oct. 16-20 in Kilcawley Center.

Co-sponsored by Substance Abuse Awareness and Support Group, Substance Abuse Services and Student Government, 13 main events will include speakers, panels, workshops, movies, a debate and a game show in the Pub. The Pub event will be MC'd by DJ's from 95 K-Rock with YSU students as contestants.

The groups' goal is to educate the University community to the pitfalls of regular alcohol use and to the chances of casual use developing into dependency. Information will be offered in different formats.

Music, food lover possibly linked to two thefts in Ward Beecher Hall

By GARY HALL
Jambar News Editor

Food and music were probably two things in mind for the stargazing person(s) responsible for two separate thefts in Ward Beecher Hall, considering the reports at Campus Police.

On Wednesday, Oct. 11, an officer was sent to Room 2014 in Ward Beecher in reference to equipment missing from the planetarium, Room 2001. A professor in the Astronomy department informed the officer that an unknown person or persons had taken a VSR Subwoofer speaker from the catwalk area inside the dome of the planetarium sometime between an unknown date in June and 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, the report said.

The person also stated, the report continued, that the door leading to the catwalk was left unlocked at times, but no signs of forced entry could be found.

In another report, a person employed by the Astronomy department reported to the Campus Police the theft of a black Radio Shack cassette stereo for the car, valued at $180, and some food items (pop, meat) valued at $10.

The person stated that on Monday, Oct. 9 at 11 a.m., he discovered that someone had removed from Room 2005 his personal tape deck which he had place inside the building so that he could fix it when time permitted, the report said.

According to the report, he also stated that he "someone [has been] removing from the icebox in Room 2005 pop and lunch meat."

The theft of the stereo would have occurred sometime between 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 6, and the time of discovery, the report said.

Changes should be made with YSU smoking policy

Since the recent inception of the policy on smoking at YSU, cries of injustice have been heard.

Of the ten designated areas on campus where smoking is permitted, only half can be used by the students of YSU.

A modification of this policy is needed.

The students should have the same rights as the faculty to smoke in these designated areas. This is an equal opportunity university.

Because of this new problem, the administration once again faces a dilemma.

The administration says these areas, that are designated for smokers, have proper ventilation. When each building was constructed, there should have been more ventilation in each building.

Before this policy was enacted, the administration should have done more extensive research.

This policy must be re-evaluated. If the administration does not want to add additional places on campus for smokers because of ventilation problems, then students should be permitted to smoke in all ten areas designated for smoking.

Congress deals with major issue

A Medicaid bill that was narrowly passed by the House of Representatives on Wednesday could be a step in the right direction with the abortion issue.

The bill permits Medicaid to fund for abortions caused by rape or incest. One reason President George Bush may veto the bill is that it would be part of the $156.7 billion appropriation for the departments of Labor, and Health and Human Services.

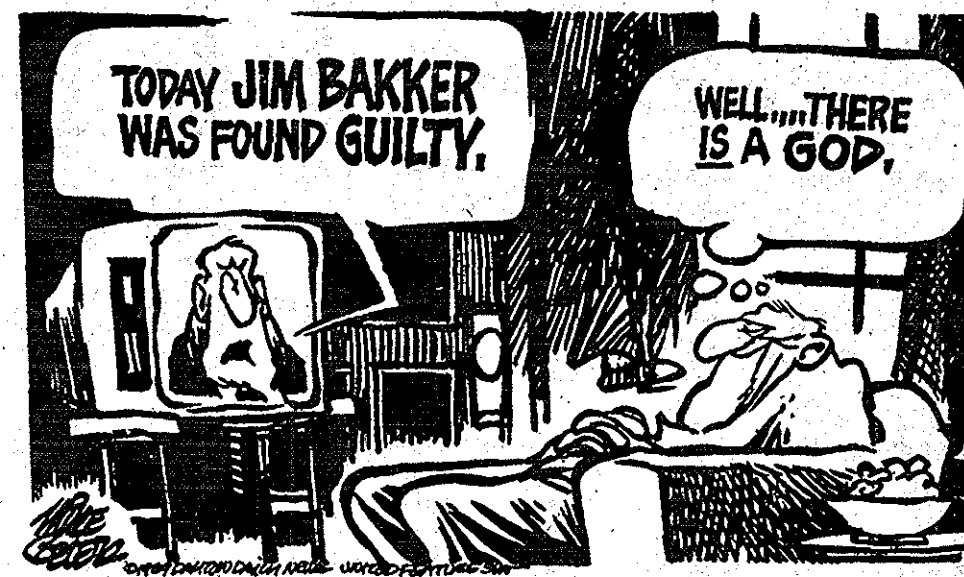

Even if the president vetoes the bill, it was a rare attempt by the national government to initiate action about a controversial issue like abortion.

If this bill becomes law, it would override the Hyde Amendment which limits Medicaid funding of abortions to women whose lives are in danger. The Ohio law is the same as the Hyde Amendment.

The new proposal takes a strong, but unrealistic stance. The problem is that the bill is not realistic, Bush will veto such a large bill.

Before sending the bill to the president, Congress should re-evaluate the proposal. A realistic bill is if Medicaid paid a minimum amount of abortions that come under the terms of this bill. By having Medicaid pay for a certain amount, the money needed for the program will be a little lower.

COMMENTARY

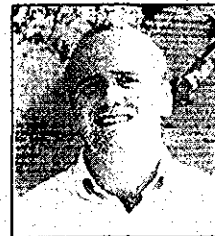

Health nuts at it again and again.

We all get a little cocky in our old age, including me.

Yesterday I was wandering outside past Kilcawley Center's lower level when I noticed the benches were gone-daddy-gone. At that point I thought, hey, here's a column. I thought for sure the health nuts, who restricted the area on campus where smokers were allowed to smoke, played a role in having the benches removed.

I figured I would write another column attacking the health nuts for causing more trouble for the smokers. Plus, I thought another column attacking the health nuts would be easy. Boy was I wrong!

It was at 3 p.m. when I noticed the benches were gone. I left campus after that and didn't return until early yesterday evening. It wasn't until around 8 p.m., just as I was about to write my column attacking the health nuts, that someone told me the benches were back. I had come very close to having egg on my face this morning. I could have imagined the health nuts sitting around laughing at old Tim Leonard. I was a few hours within coming the butt of the health nuts' jokes.

I realize I've been known to step on some toes while I've been writing for The Jambar, but I never realized I have enemies so vicious who would try to embarrass me in front of the whole YSU student body.

Well, I just want all my enemies to know that I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it any more. This is war!

New policy needed for drug issue

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to the editorial concerning drugs published by The Jambar Friday, October 6.

The second paragraph of the article states that the Bush Administration "does not get to the heart of the problem" concerning drugs. This leads the reader to believe that the author will indeed get to the heart of the drug matter, along with some sort of plan, of how to clean it up. Sorry to say, all Jon Allison does is dump on us "a good bit of rhetoric", with no "redefined" strategy on what the country is to do about this epidemic.

All he does is re-emphasize what any current events follower already knows. Nowhere within the editorial does Allison give the reader any idea of what he feels should be done, but rather states again and again what the government is doing wrong.

Furthermore, the asinine statement the "the institution" (whatever that is) does not care about education is incredibly ridiculous. Why does "care" always translate into "money" for Democrats? Why is government always to blame? Maybe if one would take a look in the mirror they will find the reasons why drugs has become a national crisis.

Organization upset with reporter's comments

Dear Editor:

We are disturbed by an unfair (to say the least) portrayal of publications displayed at our table during the Organization Fair in Tuesday's Jambar. Indisputably, it is the necessity of making difficult choices concerning impartial and objective selection and coverage of material and/or events which sets journalism apart from any other profession. It is not only necessary to present a story objectively, it is journalistic integrity which differentiates a good journalist from merely a scribe. A well known authority on the news media, Ted J. Smith III has once said, "When journalism suspends its critical faculties and allows two diametrically opposed political systems to look alike, it is no longer journalism; it is amoral, unthinking media."

Have you remained impartial in your presentation of our "right-wing propaganda?" You have stated that "communism should be regarded as a political affiliation and not as something evil, will you look straight in the eyes of the families of 7 million Ukrainians starved to death by the system you so zealously defend? Will you ever comprehend the horrors to which prisoners in Soviet uranium mines were subjected to? Or, maybe in your self-proclaimed expertise you will explain to us the recent massacre in Beijing? We realize that addressing these issues will be a timely undertaking for Miss Harrington. Unlike you, however, we neither desire, nor expect you to be silent. We encourage you to speak up and voice your opinion.

It may come as a surprise to you that our "extremist and dangerous" literature does not call for "silencing of [either you, or] those threatening" groups. In fact, the ideological precepts of Young Americans for Freedom as articulated by William F. Buckley explicitly assert, among other things, that "foremost among the transcendent values is the individual's use of his God-given free will, whence derives his right to be free from the restrictions of arbitrary force;" that "the Constitution of the United States is the best arrangement yet devised;" that "the genius of the Constitution—the division of powers—is summed up in the clause which reserves primacy to the several states, or to the people, in those spheres not specifically delegated to the Federal Government."

We encourage Miss Harrington to analyze "at least a few of [those] many inconsistencies that plague" our publications. Maybe, you will find that it is according to the FBI, that the Communist Party U.S.A is one of the most "loyal pro-Soviet communist parties in the world today" — hardly the United States' best friend...or, perhaps discover, "Oxfam-America has been politically supportive of the Marxist/Leninist FMLN guerillas of El Salvador?" If you kindly respond to our suggestion of re-reading our intolerable publications, you will notice that our goal is not to deny you or anyone rights, but to encourage you to think and exercise your rights of "a free-thinking individual and as an American" wisely.

Secretary feels students should be heard

Dear Editor:

Although I feel that the University has a right to initiate a smoking policy, the present policy is too restricted and not the policy which was routed in January. If you recall, the "finalized" smoking policy was submitted to Dr. Humphrey by the Tobacco Use and Abuse Committee on November 30, 1988. This policy was routed to faculty, staff, and student government on January 3, 1989, with an invitation for written comment. Since this policy had many designated smoking areas in every major building and the "occupancy rule" in "shared work environments," I made no written comments or objections, since the present policy should have been available for review prior to implementation.

In addition, since the policy was negotiated with OEA, the other three unions should have been consulted. Last, but not least, none of us would be here if it were not for the students. The voice of the students should be heard.

Professor defends colleague's rights for free speech

Dear Editor:

The editorial in the October 10 Jambar from the officers of the YSU College Republicans and the Young Americans for Freedom caught my attention. I was struck by the irony of their statements about one of my colleagues. The irony lies in the fact that these students profess to support freedoms but want to restrict one of our basic freedoms — freedom of speech.

I don't care to enter into the middle of the differences of opinion between these individuals; but I do want to make one observation. My colleague, although disagreeing with these students, would fight for their rights to organize on our campus and profess their ideas publically.

Are these students, professing to support freedoms for Americans, willing to do the same for my colleague? It doesn't seem so from their reactions.

 "Alcohol Abuse and Misuse," and on Tuesday, Browns' linebacker Eddie Johnson will talk on, "Know When to Say When." Both hard-hitting messages will be presented in the Chestnut Room.

Wednesday's panel discussion, "Was It Worth It?" will feature experts in their fields who will present four scenarios that will escalate in seriousness. Panelists will be Judge Anthony Bernard; attorneys Janet Virostek and Ricard F. Schwartz; insurance agent, Karen Connelly and Ohio State Patrol officer, Walter Bradley. The entire process of a DUI arrest will be explained, including replacement costs of public property such as telephone poles and utility lines.

Highlights for Thursday and Friday include a black perspective of alcohol abuse featuring Ron Simmons, a retired administrator from General Motors, a debate among campus faculty members and debate students and a workshop, "Discover the Success in You," designed to help participants develop self-esteem and to discover the good qualities within themselves.

SAASG members say the general public does not understand the problems associated with alcohol, especially students, who think that drinking is part of college life. Many can't stop after college is over, and what began as seemingly harmless fun develops into a lifelong problem.

Those who do become addicted to alcohol have as much responsibility not to drink as a diabetic has to take insulin, SAASG says. They can't hide behind the "disease" aspect and use it as an excuse to drink.

Those who fall prey to alcohol abuse or misuse find that even when they change their lifestyles, SAASG says, there is a lifetime stigma attached to their illness that isn't present for cancer victims, diabetics or heart patients.

SAASG members say the University recognizes the need for support groups such as theirs and endorses that belief by allocating space in a campus building.

 dation was that in YSU's VAV system outside air is pulled in and circulated throughout each room connected to the system. In addition, smokeladen air from designated areas is automatically recycled and circulated along with it.

According to Edmund J. Salata, Executive Director of Facilities, he was well acquainted himself with the ventilation systems, and made recommendations which led to the decision establishing where smokers may or may not light up.

"All of the designated smoking areas specified by President Neil Humphrey do have separately ventilated systems," he said.

According to an officer from the Youngstown Police Department, a person smoking in a clearly marked non-smoking area could be charged with a misdemeanor. The officer said that a person would possibly be fined and/or ticketed.

As most of you know, this year's homecoming dance will be held from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 14 in Kilcawley Center, featuring the band Rumors.

The five man band is originally from the Pittsburgh area and members include: Buddy Schneider, on guitar, keyboard and vocals, Bill Chamberlain & Derek Battista on keyboards and vocals, Joe Delguzzo on bass guitar and vocals, and Jim Looman on drums.

Rumors has been performing together for the past three years.

According to Schneider, the band plays Top 40 dance music from rock-n-roll to Bobby Brown. Schneider also adds that the band has "a massive amount of equipment that produces a high energy, clean balanced sound that is great for dance tunes."

Talk about something different! I attended the Meatloaf concert Tuesday night and what a surprise the event turned out to be.

Meatloaf and the Neverland Express captivated the crowd at the packed Stambaugh Auditorium from the very moment they took the stage.

Everything that Meatloaf and the band did was so extreme and theatrical that it made the evening full of surprise.

"Bat Out of Hell," "Paradise by the Dashboard Light," "Two Outta Three Ain't Bad" and "Took the Words Right Outta My Mouth," were the key songs that brought the crowd to its feet.

The band radiated pure rock-n-roll energy and Meatloaf barely stood still for a moment.

I thought that the intensity of the sounds might be muffled a little because after all, it was a smaller auditorium than most of us are used to seeing concerts in, but that was not the case.

The sound was close to being crystal clear, and the volume can definitely be considered just as loud as an arena concert.

One thing that should definitely not go without mentioning was the performance of Kevin Raleigh — formerly of the Michael Stanley Band. He played approximately eight songs, two of which were tunes from his career with MSB. "He Can't Love You (Like I Love You)" and "Holdin' You Tight," were the two songs that received the most response from the crowd.

He did perform a few songs off his new album Delusions of Grandeur, which included his new hit single "Anyone with a Heart."

I would have to say that the only problem with the concert was the lighting.

The only reason they were a

Tesla and Great White to headline rock concert

By DAWN MARZANO
Jambar Entertainment Editor

Saturday night will be a night of pure rock-n-roll energy when Kent State University plays host to Badlands, Great White, and Tesla at the University's Homecoming Tripleheader.

Tesla is the band that is headlining the event. The group's debut album in 1986, Mechanical Resonance, nearly reached platinum status. Their second album, The Great Radio Controversy, was released in February.

In a recent phone interview with the lead guitarist, of Tesla, Frank Hannon, Hannon said the group is looking forward to playing for a college audience.

"The audience is more attentive," Hannon said. Hannon continued by explaining that the college crowd can "expect an honest rock-n-roll band playing music that they are proud of."

In the past, Tesla has been an opening act for such bands as Def Leppard, David Lee Roth and Poison. Hannon says that the best experience the band received by playing with these groups was getting to play every night and learning to be musically aggressive. "Creativity is what this thing is all about," adds Hannon.

Constantly being on the road can get a little monotonous at times, but it's great to be able to play music, says Hannon.

Besides Hannon, band members of Tesla include: Tommy Skeoch, guitarist, Brian Wheat, bassist, Troy Luccketta, drums, and Jeff Keith, lead singer.

Hannon says that by having two guitarists, Tesla has an advantage over other groups. "You can create dynamics and play off each other. It can be very powerful."

After only two albums and four years together, Hannon says that he didn't expect Tesla to be headlining this soon. And with their rather large following, this won't be the last time they will be in the spotlight.

The Homecoming Tripleheader is set for this Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at KSU Memorial Gym.

Tickets are $13 for the general public and are available at the KSU ticket office and all Ticketron outlets.

YSU basketball begins practice on Sunday

By TIM LEONARD
Staff Reporter

Tomorrow, while many will be concerned with the Penguins' Homecoming game against Northeastern, 14 YSU basketball players will have their thoughts on Sunday when the men's team open practices.

YSU basketball coach John Stroia said the Penguins will start practice at 8 a.m. and follow with another practice at 7:30 p.m.

While three Penguin basketball players were ruled ineligible last month, Stroia has six players returning to the team from last year, including four starters.

The Penguins lost starting center Shane Johnson, who led the team in scoring and rebounding.

Also lost were Kevin Haddock and Vince Marrow.

Stroia said the team has added four players to its roster since last season. They include freshmen Chris Prichard and Mike Sullivan, who decided to attend YSU in late fall, and junior college transfers Alfonso Lurry and Wade Renner. YSU has also added Bob Fick, a 6-foot-8, 218 lb. freshman. Fick, who transferred from Miami University of Ohio, is required to sit out this season.

Lurry, a 5-10 point guard, and Renner, a 6-5 forward, are the two newcomers who should add to the program. Lurry will fight sophomore Marc Vassar, who started the last 26 games of the season last year, while Renner is one of the leading candidates for a starting job at forward.

Stroia said he didn't expect Prichard, a 6-9 center, and Sullivan, a 6-2 off guard from Massillon Jackson High School, to battle for a starting position but both should contribute to the team.

"I don't think you bring freshmen into your program expecting them to be a force the way they were in high school," said Stroia. "That's the biggest adjustment freshmen have to make. The college game is quicker, stronger and bigger than it was in high school."

Last year's returning starters are Todd Lark, a 6-3 guard who started the last eight games in place of Kevin Haddock; Tim Jackson, a 6-4 junior forward, who has started all his games while at YSU; Vassar, a 5-10 sophomore; and Reggie Kemp, a 6-4 swing man.

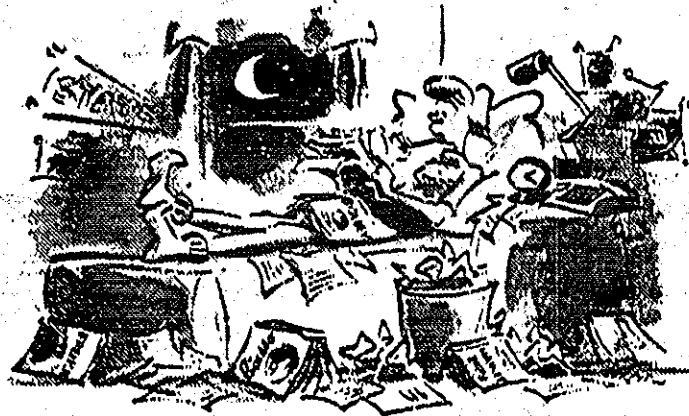

Other returning players are Andra Brown, a 6-4 guard, and Steve Hanousek, a 6-4 senior guard. The Penguins also have four players in camp who sat out last season. They are redshirted freshmen Bob Sahr, a 6-7½ forward, and John Gray, a 6-7 forward, and sophomores Bob Edwards, a 6-7 forward, and Tony Lucas, a 6-5 swing man.

The Penguins open their regular season Nov. 25 at home against Slippery Rock. This year's schedule is much lighter compared to last year's.

"I don't think any Division I schedule is a soft schedule," said Stroia, who took over the YSU basketball program in August after Jim Clemons left for an assistant coaching position with the Chicago Bulls.

"Granted, there isn't three of the big four that we played last year, like Michigan, Clemson and South Carolina, who aren't on this year's schedule, but I think a Division I schedule is a Division I schedule."

How're you going to do it?

Former Penguin grid star will return to NFL

By MOHAN SUBRAMANIAN
Staff Reporter

When Jim Zdelar was drafted in the 10th round of the 1989 NFL draft, most people in Youngstown saw it as the final step in a natural progression. Zdelar, an offensive tackle, was a First Team Division I-AA All-American in 1988. His achievements were a source of pride for all Penguin fans, and we eagerly anticipated watching "Zed" do some damage in the NFL. But on July 19, only 2 1/2 weeks after reporting to training camp, Zdelar was back home. He forfeited his shot at the pros and a $22,000 signing bonus.

We were baffled, shocked, and confused. How, many would say, could he give it up? And some, obviously those that didn't know him, said Zdelar was afraid to play in the NFL.

Zdelar hasn't commented on the reasons for leaving the camp, but now reports that he is going back. Zdelar will report to the Miami Dolphins' off-season camp in February 1990. Both the Dolphins and Zdelar believe that he is ready to play football. It is a day that has been anticipated by all sports fans who believe in second chances and comebacks.

Zdelar cannot play this year because he is on the inactive reserve roster. NFL rules stipulate that IRR players must

"I'm on a mission to play NFL football, and represent YSU."

JIM ZDELAR
Former YSU offensive tackle sit out the season of their activation to the roster. The February camp will last eight to ten weeks. If Zdelar does well, he will be in and out of special training camps until mid-June. These camps are for individual areas (offensive and defensive line), and individual positions (guards and tackles). The final test for Zdelar would be summer training camp for the 1990 season.

"There were a couple of things that came together, and created a lot of pressure," said Zdelar. "I was burnt out from playing, wasn't quite sure if I wanted to play competitively anymore, and I didn't want to let everyone down." Indeed, as the great George Blanda said, "you don't know pressure until you've played in the NFL."

He said that he did still have confidence in himself. "I knew I was good," said Zdelar, "but this is the NFL, you've got to be way better than good to make it." Zdelar felt he just wasn't ready to make the commitment. Not until now.

There were many people who were surprised by Zdelar's decision, but his strongest support came from the Penguin coaching staff, particularly offensive line Coach Ken Conatser. "Coach Conatser was behind me all the way," said Zdelar, "he told me to keep my head and think about my commitment to football." Zdelar went on to give Conatser credit for his outstanding career at YSU saying, "a player is only as good as his coach."

Don Shula, NFL coach, told Zdelar that he "understood the situation, and pressure," that he was under. Coach Shula also told Zdelar that there would be no resentment and he would be welcomed back.

Fellow YSU graduate and former star Cliff Stoudt also had a few words of encouragement for Zdelar. "Cliff told me that it will be good to be protected by a Penguin again," said Zdelar, "he also called my house to check and see how I was doing." Zdelar feels extremely fortunate to be with a quality organization like the Dolphins. "They have been just super, they know I can perform."

There is another piece to this story. They are the most important people in Zdelar's life, his family. "They were very disappointed for me," said Zdelar, "but now that they know I'm ready and dedicated to making it, they couldn't be happier."

I asked Zdelar if there was something he'd like to say to the numerous Penguins fans who are happy to hear of his return. He said "There are so many people I'd like to thank for all their support while I was playing, and through this small crisis. I know you expected a lot from me. I wasn't ready then, but I am now. I'm on a mission to play NFL football, and represent YSU."

Penguins face Huskies in Homecoming Day contest

A 3-2 Penguin football team will be defending a 34-13-1 Homecoming Day record this Saturday against the Huskies from Northeastern University.

Along with their past Homecoming Day performances YSU will be looking to move up on the Division I-AA NCAA weekly poll. When the poll was released this past Monday the Penguins were ranked 18.

According to YSU Head Coach Jim Tressel the Penguins will have to contain the Huskies Wishbone offense if they plan to extend their three game winning streak to four.

Tressel also stated that YSU must stop Northeastern's fullback, Harold Scott, and their quarterback, Dan Daponde, if the Penguins expect to have any success against this team.

Along with a strong offensive attack the Huskies will be bringing a defense that has been consistently holding their opponents to 10 or 11 points a game.

"They're the biggest defense we have faced all season and they play very physical," said Tressel.

The Penguins last season lost to the Huskies by the score of 23-7. With last season's victory by Northeastern, the overall series is tied at 2-2.

Coming into the contest the Penguins are riding on a three game winning streak.

With this in mind and the fact that the Huskies are coming off a 31-28 loss to New Hampshire, the Penguins should have the confidence they need to chalk up their 35th Homecoming Day victory.

The game will be held on "Dike" Beede Field in Stambaugh Stadium on Saturday, Oct. 14. Game time is at 1:00 p.m.
