Alleged stabbing incident proven to be fake

By CHARLIE DEITCH
News Editor

The YSU student who reported on April 27 that she had been stabbed in the Lincoln Avenue parking deck pleaded no contest and was found guilty on a charge of obstruction of an official police investigation yesterday, according to Jeff Limbian, Youngstown assistant prosecutor.

Debra Lynn McCambridge, 35, of East Palestine, was sentenced by Judge Andrew Polivischak to pay a $100 fine, serve 180 days in the city jail and attend counseling sessions.

The jail time was suspended upon successful completion of one year of probation.

Limbian said McCambridge provided YSU police Lieutenant Greg Clemente with "false and misleading information" throughout the investigation that ran from April 27 to May 24.

According to Clemente, the information that was falsely provided revolved around her entire report.

Clemente said that on May 24, McCambridge told him that the wound was self-inflicted and that it was not a planned action.

Clemente said police found in her car a single-edged razor with dried blood on it and a towel between the front seats with blood spots on it.

Clemente said he was suspicious of the claim from the first day of the investigation. He said at that time, the wound appeared to be more of a slice than a stab.

According to Clemente, McCambridge told him that she was assaulted by a white male on the morning of April 27 at 7:45 a.m. in the Lincoln Avenue parking deck.

She was treated for a stab wound in her lower right abdomen at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Clemente stressed that, when confronted with the evidence, McCambridge cooperated fully at the end of the investigation although she told him she does not know why she wounded herself.

Limbian said that he is pleased with the sentence.

"I feel the sentence was appropriate in light of the fact that she did not have a past criminal record," Limbian said. "I think it is more appropriate that she received counseling."

YSU-ADC named best chapter

ADC members at a vigil

By JAMES SICILIANO
Staff Reporter

National honors and recognition have again come to YSU and some very special students. And the awards will keep coming.

The YSU student chapter of the American Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee (ADC) came away from its annual convention in Washington D.C. being named the best student chapter in the country.

The National Convention, held this year from April 22 to 25, was its 10th and was well represented by YSU.

The President of YSU's chapter, Sahar Mawlawi, senior, A&S, opened this chapter in the spring of 1992, and has distinguished herself along the way as being named the recipient of YSU's Edna K. McDonald Cultural Awareness Award in recognition for being the, "outstanding individual who has made a lasting contribution to encourage and increase awareness of cultural diversity at YSU."

And to top things off, YSU's ADC chapter will be presented The Nova award on May 27 here on campus for being the most promising new organization.

Mawlawi was born in Lebanon and lived in Switzerland for 10 years before moving to Youngstown two years ago. Mawlawi is majoring in Foreign Languages and speaks French, German and Italian. "My dad moved from his job in Saudi Arabia, so the whole family moved here also," Mawlawi said.

On the ADC and the National award Mawlawi said, "This is a National Organization; it was founded in 1980 by Senator James Abourez in response to discrimination against Arab people and negative stereotyping. There are National offices in Washington D.C. and in almost every state there is a community chapter, so we are one of the 22 student chapters across the country."

June interviews set for Student Affairs finalists

YSU — Three candidates for the position of vice president for student affairs will visit the YSU campus for two-day interviews early in June.

Interviews are being arranged for Dr. Jack Taylor, assistant vice president for multicultural affairs at Bowling Green State University; Dr. Raymond E. Dye, vice president for student affairs at San Francisco State University, and Dr. George D. Taylor, vice president for student affairs at California State University in Los Angeles.

Dr. David Sweetkind, dean of YSU's College of Fine and Performing Arts and chair of the search committee, said the names of 10 candidates, out of the 72 applicants who expressed an interest in the position, were advanced to YSU's President, Leslie H. Cochran.

Dr. Sweetkind noted that of the nine male candidates who were advanced as acceptable for further consideration, five were African-American.

He said one female candidate was also advanced for further consideration.

The three candidates who have been invited for an interview, stated President Cochran, "have the best level of experience and preparation."

Cochran emphasized that two of the three candidates are currently vice presidents and that the other candidate is an assistant vice president at Bowling Green State University.

Cochran indicated that he was pleased that the strongest candidates also "support an institutional priority to attract an African-American to a senior level position at YSU."

Cochran added that he is particularly impressed by the candidates' experience at institutions similar to YSU.

Cochran also indicated that there is a possibility that other candidates might be invited to campus for an interview. He noted that such a decision would depend upon the assessment of the first three candidates who have been selected for an interview.

For Dr. George D. Taylor, who earned his Ed.D. from Illinois State University, and for Dye, who earned his Ph.D. from the State University of New York at Buffalo, the YSU position offers an opportunity to leave the troubled California public higher education system and re-establish earlier ties to the Midwest.

For Dr. Jack Taylor, who earned his Ph.D. from Bowling Green State University, the YSU position offers a natural and progressive move among Ohio's public universities.

Not getting a new car for graduation?

Here's the next best thing:

No money down, deferred first payment and $400 cash back from Ford Motor Company

Let's face it, not many students can count on a new car for a graduation present. But you can count on the Ford and Mercury College Graduate Purchase Program for some help. With it, there's no down payment on eligible new Ford and Mercury vehicles if you qualify and finance through Ford Credit. You may even get the benefit of a deferred 1st payment (in states where allowed). You'll also get a $400 cash incentive regardless of whether you buy or lease. You can opt to use it toward your purchase or lease, or just keep the cash.

You may qualify for the program if you earn a bachelor or advanced degree between January 1, 1993 and December 31, 1993, or are a graduate student enrolled during the same period.

Simply visit your local Ford or Mercury dealership or call 1-800-321-1536 for more information.

NOTICE

The final issue of The Jambar for the academic year will be distributed next Friday.

The Jambar will not resume publication until summer quarter.

 The students making the trip to Washington were: Suhad Hadi, Seadah Hadi, Kasra Rafia and Samer Mawlawi, along with their advisors: Dr. Robert Weaver, sociology, and Dr. Nawal Annar, criminal justice. The local committee didn't know previous to the trip that they had won first place. "They called us and said we were one of the five finalists, so please be there in case (we won). They knew from the beginning, but they wanted it to be a surprise for us," Mawlawi said. The ADC office here has to do a report every two weeks on what they've done, every letter they've written and all correspondence from other organizations. They then make a copy and send it to the National office. "You cannot just be on your own and use their name. They always have to know what you are doing. You are following their law and their ideas," said Mawlawi. The National organization has a newspaper called the ADC Times and through it, people learn what ADC is doing throughout the entire country. They learn what the community chapter and the student chapters are doing and what issues the Arab-Americans are confronting right now. Mawlawi continued, "The organization is open to any students and we are proud to say that we are not only Arab in this organization; we have African-Americans, Asians, Spanish and Iranians, so it's really a mix. It's not only Arab; we are not isolating ourselves." "The main goal, of course, is to fight discrimination against Arabs, but also against any other ethnic group, or one minority under attack, we will also be under attack one day. We are trying to preserve a positive image and promote the rich Arab culture and heritage."

Farewell, goodbye...we're outta here!

To a few good friends

Jennifer T. Kollar

I am standing alone at the intersection of life. The light is yellow. I realize that as soon as the light turns from yellow to green, I will be free to continue down the road of life. It is now my choice of how far to go. To all the people who have made my travels down the road a little less bumpy:

The 1992-93 staff: I can only say it's been one hell of a year!!! You all have been the best writers, reporters, editors, compositors, photographers, receptionists and office manager an Editor-in-Chief could ever have. The Jambar has become stronger and better thanks to all of you.

The Jambar Brat Pack: Susan Korda and Nancy Kertis, former Jambar editors, if it weren't for you two, I would have lost my sanity a year ago. It just goes to show that you can never leave The Jambar behind -- no matter how hard you try.

Mrs. Carolyn Martindale, Dr. Bill Mullen and Dr. Taylor Alderman--wherever you are: I thank the three of you for your professional wisdom, patience and advice. I learned so much from each of you. I only hope I have absorbed it all. Thank you.

Joe DeMay: To the News Schmendrick-in-Help. You came to us as an orphan on our doorstep and we adopted you immediately. Since then, you have become a part of The Jambar family. I always knew you had a nose for news...I mean a nose for news. Good luck and ask YSU as many questions as you can.

Donna Hecker: Having you around was better than having five dictionaries, 10 Thesauruses and the AP Stylebook. I thank you for peering over my shoulder and helping me look and sound as articulate in print as I try to be in person.

Sherri Shaulis: We've been through so much and we have done a great job. I'm surprised I never became a chain smoker. Some say that an Editor-in-Chief is only as good as his or her News Editor and Managing Editor. You were the best at both.

Mike "Yonkstown" Yonkura: You're alright, especially for a guy from Cleveland!!! You definitely weren't a mistake-from-the-lake. Thanks for your off-beat comedy. You'll always have the original chewiest earlobes around.

Barb "Barbweiser" Soloman: Fellow chickster. We shared so many Motown Mondays together. Do you feel 10 years older and 50 years wiser??? I know I do. Thank God we still look good!! If you ever decide to write a "Why Life's Not Fair" book, I know it would make the Bestseller's List and I know of two people who would buy it hot off the press. Here's to the chickies!!! It's sad to see an end to our era!! From here we can only move on to better and bigger things.

Charlie Deitch: To my "Head News Schmendrick and my Right Hand Man." To the most sincere, dependable and honest man I know (aside from my father, of course) I can't even begin to tell you how many times I should have said thank you. You were ALWAYS there for me--through the best and worst of times. If there was a model for hard work, dedication and commitment, you would be the one. I'm glad I could teach you the little bit I know. It's people like you, Charlie, that make life easy. It's people like you that make me want to stand up for what's right and correct the wrong. I only wish I could have done more for both you and Barb. It was an honor to stand up for you and I would do it all over again if called upon. Just remember that if I ever win the lottery and start up my own newspaper, you can be sure I'd call you up in a heartbeat to be on my staff. Your theme song of the year: "Stand By Me." Nuff said.

Dave Burnbrier: Unofficial Jambar bodyguard. I know if someone asked you: "Would you have gotten involved with Jennifer if you knew ahead that you would have to deal with the stress and headaches that go along when you hang out with the Editor-in-Chief," the answer would be "yes." Thanks for all the support. I'm taking your advice. I have begun "looking out for Number 1." When the days were entirely too long, I knew I could count on you to take me out for a drink, tell me a one-liner and just make me smile. "Hey, Boo Boo...but Yogi, the Ranger will catch us." Love ya!

Mom, Dad, Mark and Todd: You all have been wonderful for listening to ALL the Jambar dilemmas over dinner. Mark, you better still read the paper after I'm gone. And, yes Todd, we won't be discussing the paper for much longer. Mom--no more late nights. You can finally sleep in peace. Dad, all I can say is that you should have been an attorney! Thank you both for believing in me every step of the way and for teaching me that hard work really can pay off for some in the end.

The Jambar: If only your office walls could talk...May future staffs be good to you, learn about you and love you as much as I have.

Finally, I'm leaving, friends. But, I'm not really leaving for we are all together traveling down the same road of life, but in different directions. Maybe some day at a red light I will see a familiar face and laugh, cry or reminisce. I will always look forward and I will always look back. The past is now part of me and as I continue upon that road I have started to travel, I hope to meet you all again at another time, another place, another crossing.

Words of wisdom from the edge...

DONNA HECKER

As graduation nears within days, I don't want to be remembered for a few last words, but to remember others with a few words.

First, I would like to thank my husband, who was forced to endure, for the past four years, all-night cramming sessions, helping me with a foreign language that he had never actually seen in writing and for listening to every single Advanced Writing paper until he could honestly say: "Yes, darling, you got your point across."

Next, I would like to thank my family for supporting me emotionally and financially to ensure that this day became a reality and not just a far off dream.

Extra, extra special thanks to my mom for helping me with EVERYTHING! She knows exactly what I mean. And to my sister, Sherri, I honestly hope you find the same happiness that I've found over these past 27 years.

This list would not be complete without thanking my dear friend, Melanie, for her miraculous "never-melting ear" and companionship and my best friend, Rhonda, who has tolerated me for the past 15 years and assured me, on many occasions, that "A lot of people get their degrees at the age of 27."

It also seems natural and right to thank the members of The Jambar. To Jennifer T. Kollar, editor-in-chief, for teaching me, slowly, but surely, that patience and tolerance are highly-respected virtues and not detestable obstacles. And to the staff as a whole who always checked my copy to make sure that I had attention-grabbing leads and crisp, concise conclusions. And to Charlie Deitch, news editor, for including me ALWAYS! (Of course, after finding out who all was going!)

To Sherri Shaulis, managing editor, for encouraging me to apply and helping me copyedit and for being my relationship soul sister.

To Barb Soloman, entertainment editor, who was always considerate in aiding me in my fight for low-cal and fat-free foods by never being hungry for lunch until five minutes after I had left the office.

To Mike Yonkura, sports editor, for making me confident enough to enjoy sports and bold enough to use the terminology in my own writing.

To Sales Manager Yolanda King for reminding me that you need to give in order to receive and that it's all well worth it.

My Assistant Copy Editor Marvin Rivers for putting up with me and my annoying persistence for perfection. I want him to know that I tried to instill in him the same professional loyalty and perfection for journalism that I feel made me a successful copy editor.

To Advertising Manager Ginny McKinley for reminding me that innocence is sweet and I wish I still had it.

To Matt Deutsch I'd like to say that after copyediting your work for the past year, you have never ceased to amaze me with your rhetoric and style and best of all, humor. Your writing has improved and I wish you luck in your collegiate future.

And to Faith for introducing me to Pearl Jam, Nirvana, Sugar and Lush...I never would've imagined I'd actually know the words to some of the songs.

To Susan Scaggs for being my "personal secretary." And to Olga for giving me advice I really wish I would've taken.

I couldn't leave this recognition list without thanking Sue. She has always backed me up and made me feel very special.

Since it is the end of my educational career, for now, and the end of this commentary, it is fitting to now thank my professors in the English department. All of my professors did a fine job of molding me into a dedicated, professional writer. However, there are two professors who deserve to be recognized by name: Dr. Sandra Stephan and Mrs. Carolyn Martindale. These professors never failed to convince me, knowingly or not, that I was a better writer than I gave myself credit for; instilled in me strength and courage; and who have made me proud to have chosen the professional writing field as my passion.

If I ever become half of the educators, writers and human beings that these people are, I will consider my life well-lived.

Lastly, to Dr. Mullen, our advisor. I haven't always agreed with you about the decisions you've made, but I respect the fact that you haven't always agreed with my decisions but allowed me the freedom to experiment and face the consequences.

Farewell, goodbye...we're outta here!

To those staying behind, this one's for you

Sherri L. Shaulis

Well, it's just about over. After five years in this place, I'm almost too afraid to leave.

Almost...but not quite.

Anyway, it's become a bit of a tradition for those who are not returning to The Jambar to write farewell commentaries to say goodbye and offer thanks. Being the slave to tradition that I am, here goes.

My family: Huge thanks go to my mom, who definitely deserves them. You were the one who let me barge into your room at 3 a.m. at least once every quarter bawling my eyes out and wanting to quit school and work at McDonald's for the rest of my life. Thank you for listening to me, keeping me on track and supplying the tissues.

My brother also deserves a note of thanks. If nothing else, you have always been my best friend. If no one else was around to help, you were always there. I'm really going to miss our late-night talks about life and making fun of everyone who deserved to be made fun of. (Oh, sorry! Was that out loud?)

I love you both very much and I owe everything that I've accomplished so far in my life to your faith in and support for me.

Sherry Merritt: My little sister! You've helped me to enjoy my last weeks in this place. I hope your years will be just as enjoyable. Only two more years until we hit Buffalo!

Bege K. Bowers and Carolyn Martindale: You both were the biggest influence in my journalism training here. Not only did you take an interest in my school work, but also in me. You both made me feel like a true individual who could make a stand on her own and be heard.

Bege, I especially want to thank you for your help, understanding and patience after the death of my father. You helped me to cope. I will never forget you.

Carolyn, I probably owe my career to you. You always kept me informed of all of the opportunities that were out there for me and helped me whenever I called you.

What I wish for you both is that all of your other students realize just how special you two are as both instructors and people.

Susan Korda and Kelly Lanterman: You two gave me my first real taste of journalism as the "lowly" assistant copy editor last year. I thank you both for not executing the "hatchet" on me!

Jenn Kollar: The Editor-in-Chief schmendrick! I think we did a fine job this year that's gonna be tough to live up to! We've weathered the storm (Tempest!), and come out on top. You deserve to be very proud of yourself and what you have accomplished. You are definitely entitled to the best in life (including Yogi), so go get it! You've really got the news for nose!

Charlie Deitch: Besides myself, one of the only other people who has that taste for blood. Hold on to that and everything will eventually fall into place. People will begin to recognize your talent and potential and take you on rather than cast you aside. Hang in there! You have been my support system from day one. I can count on you for anything, and you will come through for me. I hate to see how much you have to fight for the positions you deserve, but it's made you stronger and wiser. It will all pay off eventually.

Barbie Soloman: Sweetie, not only will your day eventually come along, but your man also! I've had the chance to see you grow up from high school to now, and you certainly have made some great strides in your life. You are very strong-willed, but you know your boundaries. That is a great talent to possess. I wish you all the best no matter what happens. Close the door, I think I'm gonna cry!

Donna Hecker: Admit it. In the beginning, we both thought we were going to kill each other. But once we found out we were pretty much in the same boat, we learned to cope together. You have become a good friend over the past year. I know there is no need to wish you good luck because I know that if there's a job opening within a 100-mile radius, you're gonna find it!

Faith Puskas: I wish you all the strength, love and patience you can handle. Even though I won't be in the office anymore, I am always there if you need me. You'll do a fine job no matter what it is you attempt, I know. I'm gonna miss you, Face.

The remaining Jambar staff: You know who you are! This year alone, I've seen so many people come and go through this office, both good and bad. In whatever you choose to do, just make sure you know what you're getting yourself into and then do it well.

Michelle Donley: We've become such good friends in such a short amount of time. If it weren't for you, I'd probably still be in the same miserable situation I was when we met. Thank you, and here's to hoping we'll soon be working together and smoking out on the docks again!

Members of Student Government: Especially Bill Burley, Pat Billett, Dave Hall, Malik Mostella, Shannon Sweeney, Scott Schulick and Jeff Vanik. You guys really kept me on my toes this year, but it was all a great, learning experience. Bill and Pat, you guys did a great job. You made it easy to keep personal conversations apart from business ones. Just finish out those last classes and then get out there and lead in the "real world." Scott and Dave, carry on in the same professional manner that was established between everyone this year, and you'll do fine. Just remember how to use "off the record"!

I had every intent of making this a funny commentary, but if I learned anything, it's that things don't always work out the way you plan them to.

To anyone I forgot, forgive me. There are several people on campus who already know how I feel about them, so there's no need for me to ramble on to them!

And to all students returning next year, good luck. Trust me, you'll need it. Danke Schon, Jambar!

Breaking up is hard to do

Michael Yonkura

Well, I thought the day would never come, but it's almost here. I finally have the chance to graduate and it does feel oh so good.

These last two years have been especially gratifying for me. Working at The Jambar was rewarding in so many ways. It has certainly been a great experience and it's one that I'll never forget.

I have a ton of people to thank, so here we go...

Cecelia Yonkura, a.k.a. Mom: My mom has been my strength all these years. She's had to be both parents ever since my dad died 11 years ago. She has quite literally done a hell of a job raising four kids, including our family's first college grad (That'll be me on June 19).

Nate Vistucis: My best friend for over 11 years. He's been unbelievably supportive of my drive to get a degree. Now he's going to have to get used to me again as I move back to Cleveland. Good luck...

Everyone involved with Jambar Sports: If I don't get a chance to say it later, let me say thank you to everyone up in the athletic department, especially the coaches and players.

I also want to thank all the sports media who helped along this green reporter. In no particular order, thank you to Bobby, Jim, Dana, Mike (get well soon), Pat, Jim, Steve, Denny, Mikey D. and my homeboy Chuck Galeti, who I understand, is eating up a storm in Cleveland (Some things never change).

Thank you also go out to all my staff reporters over the last two years. That's "Wheels", Cindy, Dennis, Bob, Steph and anyone else I forgot about.

And, now to my illustrious colleagues...

Jennifer Kollar: Jen, it's been a long two years together, but we finally made it. You're a wonderful writer and a super boss. Now you'll have to find somebody else's earlobes to play with. (Don't be jealous, Yogil)

Sherril Shaulis: To one of the best writers I have come across in a long time. I guarantee you're going to be a great success one of these days. (Maybe the next Lewis Grizzard?)

Charlie Deitch: There's a saying I just made up that goes: you'll ultimately get your just desserts. If you don't get it for next year, be patient. You're going to get what you deserve. (You can't be abused by the system forever, you know)

Pia Brady: We have had our share of problems, but I hope we can be friends. I know with a lot of hard work, you'll be a success at whatever you want to be.

Matt Deutsch: To the tallest Assistant News Editor I've ever met. Thanks for all the cool baseball articles and for being our "ringer" in basketball.

Donna Hecker: We need more perfectionists like you in this profession. Keep up the good work and thanks for not making me the Dan Quayle spelling champ of The Jambar.

Marvin Rivers: It's been less than a year, but I hope you got the chance to see a bunch of crazy people in action. Keep making those movies, Spikel

Barb Solomon: I may miss you the most because I had the most fun picking on you! Seriously though, I've seen you grow up a lot over the past two years and I think you'll make a great journalist one day. (CLOSE THE DOOR!)

Ginny McKinley: To the best

Ad person we've had at The Jambar. If you were here longer, you definitely could have replaced Barb as the one we pick on most. But then again, it might be a little too easy.

Yolanda King: To one of the coolest people on the staff. Again, it's too bad you weren't here longer because you've been a God-send. Keep rooting for David Justice.

So that I don't miss anyone, here's a big thank you to anyone I've left out, including last year's Jambar staff.

It's been a great two years, YSU. Now, like the great Groucho Marx once said, "Hello, I must be going."

Have a cool summer and maybe one day you can visit "Yonks" town.

HELP WANTED

Spotlight on Bliss

They're coming to America in opera, Ellis Island

The opera Beside the Golden Door: The Legend of Ellis Island will be staged at 8 p.m., May 27-29, and June 3-5, at the University Theater in Bliss Hall on the YSU campus.

It is the University's final stage production for the 1992-93 season and is being presented by the YSU Theater and the Dana School of Music.

The opera takes a moving look at the courage and fortitude of European immigrants "yearning to be free," as they made their journey to America.

It was written eight years ago by the nationally-acclaimed composer Cary Ratcliff. The libretto is by Robert Koch.

Other students in the production include Kelly Krepin, Michael Lipsostad, Sarah Lynch, Bridget Meehan, Mariah

Mihos, Kelly Rider, Keith Rising, Mary Ann Tishov, Valeria Al Ughrin, David Venerose Jr., Candice A. Weber, Jonathan L. Wilkins and Heidi Will.

The production is under the stage direction of Dr. Allan Mosher, F&PA, director of the Dana Opera Theater. He will be assisted by musical director Dr. William B. Slocum, F&PA.

Mosher and Slocum will be assisted by vocal coach/accompanist Donna Nichols, a limited-service instructor. The scenery and lighting was designed by E.A. Vicol, a professor of communication and theater. The technical director is Todd W. Dicken, a YSU Theater staff member.

A "First Nighter's Buffet" will be held on opening night, May 27, at the Wicker Basket in YSU's Kilcawley Center. The price for the buffet is $9 per person.

Advanced reservations for the production are necessary. Reservation can be made by calling the University Theater Box Office at 742-3105. General admission is $7. Special rates are available for non-University students, senior citizens and groups. YSU students can make free reservations with a valid I.D.

Parking is available, with a fee, in the Wick Avenue parking deck, and in the surface lot in the Spring Street area. The Spotlight Arena Theater and Kilcawley Center are handicapped accessible.

Up and coming opera singer makes her stage debut this weekend

By MICHAEL CERVONE
Staff Reporter

A new spirit has overcome this year's opera season at the Dana School of Music. The company has a new director, a new opera for its spring production and a talented young soprano in one of the opera's pivotal roles.

Carla Jacobs, sophomore, F&PA, will be making her YSU theater stage debut as Melina Jerevan in Cary Ratcliff's Beside the Golden Door: The Legend of Ellis Island, which will be presented from May 27 to June 5 in Bliss Recital Hall. The YSU performances of the opera will be the work's second run since its inception eight years ago.

Jacob's new role is an addition to an already impressive set of credentials for the 20-year-old soprano. Jacobs recently won first place in the Sophomore division of the National Association of Teachers of Singing competition last April in Cleveland.

Jacobs knows there is a long road ahead, but is dedicated to accomplishing her dream of working with a large opera company...

"I couldn't believe I won," said Jacobs. "When they didn't mention my name for second, I began to cry."

The singer can also claim a list of roles from several musicals that she performed during her junior high and high school years. Jacobs played a collection of supporting roles in Annie, Lily of Carnival and Patti Simcox in Grease. Plus, she received a first place victory in the Ohio Teens for Christ competition in 1990.

Jacobs said that the teen competition was one of her most memorable moments because she had the opportunity to sing in front of almost 6,000 people.

While working on the production of Annie during her eighth grade year, Jacobs met up with tenor Bill Ambert, who began her formal study of voice. After studying with Ambert, she studied with the internationally known mezzo-soprano Debra Dunne and with YSU graduate Mark Spondike.

Jacobs is currently studying with YSU faculty member Rosemary Raridon. Raridon is also a soprano.

The professional performance of grand opera is certainly in Jacobs' plans for the future. She would especially like to sing some of the Mozart opera roles because those are her favorites.

"I would have to say that The Magic Flute is my favorite," she said. "But I would also like to sing Susanna [from The Marriage of Figaro]."

Jacobs knows there is a long road ahead, but is dedicated to accomplishing her dream of working with a large opera company, whether it be here in the United States or in Europe.

She said, "I think if I work really hard, then I will have a good chance at that."

Tickets for the opera production can be obtained by calling the theater ticket office at 742-3105.

PLAY REVIEW

Nunsense is non-stop fun from beginning to end

By BARBARA SOLOMAN
Entertainment Editor

Nunsense — it's a habit-forming good time. The latest production on stage at the Youngstown Playhouse, Nunsense, written by Dan Goggin, is nonstop fun from beginning to end.

Under the direction of Eduard Fuller, the six-member cast sparkles in their individual roles and together they shine on stage.

The adventures begin when the remaining six nuns of the Little Sisters of Hoboken Convent put on a variety show complete with singing, dancing and audience participation to raise money to bury the remaining nuns who die from a fatal vichyssoise supper made by Sister Julia, Child of God, played by Sis Soller.

In charge of the whole operation is Sister Regina, the Mother Superior, played by Paula Rose McConnell. McConnell gives a performance that is outstanding. She is so full of spunk and enthusiasm, that she has the entire audience in hysterics at all her adventures. The best part is when one of the other nuns found glue in the girl's locker room. In Sister Regina's attempt to figure out what it is, she inhales a little too much. The slapstick humor that McConnell gives in this part is great — it's true comedy.

Second in charge, (something the audience is reminded of throughout the play) is Sister Mary Hubert, played by Lois E. Thornton. She gives plenty of soul to her performance, standing out especially in the number "Holier Than Thou," the song with a gospel-sounding feel and so much energy that the audience is clapping along at the end.

With her squeaky voice and naivete, Arlene Smith Ivan as Sister Mary Amnesia comes through with a performance that almost makes her seem like the little sister among all the others. She really puts on a show especially when she sings "I Could've Gone to Nashville" complete with cowboy hat and rhinestone gloves.

The youngest of the group is Sister Mary Leo, played by Tara Generalovich, whose main mission is to be the first nun to do ballet in a tutu. With her young charm and spunk, Generalovich presents an earnest performance.

Then there is Sister Robert Anne (Regina Rees) whose biggest problem is that she's the understudy until she belts out her best number "I Want to be a Star."

And, of course, we can't forget Sister Julia and her killer cooking. One time she presents a lesson on cooking with the BVM (that's Blessed Virgin Mary for you non-Catholics) complete with a recipe for Hosty Toasties Last Supper appetizers that serve 13!

A complete set-up of a grade school gymnasium, designed by scenic designer Paul Kimpel, includes everything right down to markings of the basketball court on the floor.

Musical accompaniment by John Simsic, Alan Maschera and

1992-93: The Year in Pictures

ALL PHOTOS BY CHARLIE DEITCH
(The story depicts the photos counter clockwise)

YSU sports certainly had an interesting '92-93 year. There were good moments and some low ones, but a lot of photo opportunities made themselves available to me and my Cannon.

On Oct. 9, YSU suffered the loss of not only a fine volleyball coach, but a kind and wonderful man named John McKenna. The YSU community lost a friend in McKenna. Rest in peace, Coach Mac.

YSU's basketball teams saw a lot of excitement and changes in their first year of Mid-Continent Conference (MCC) play.

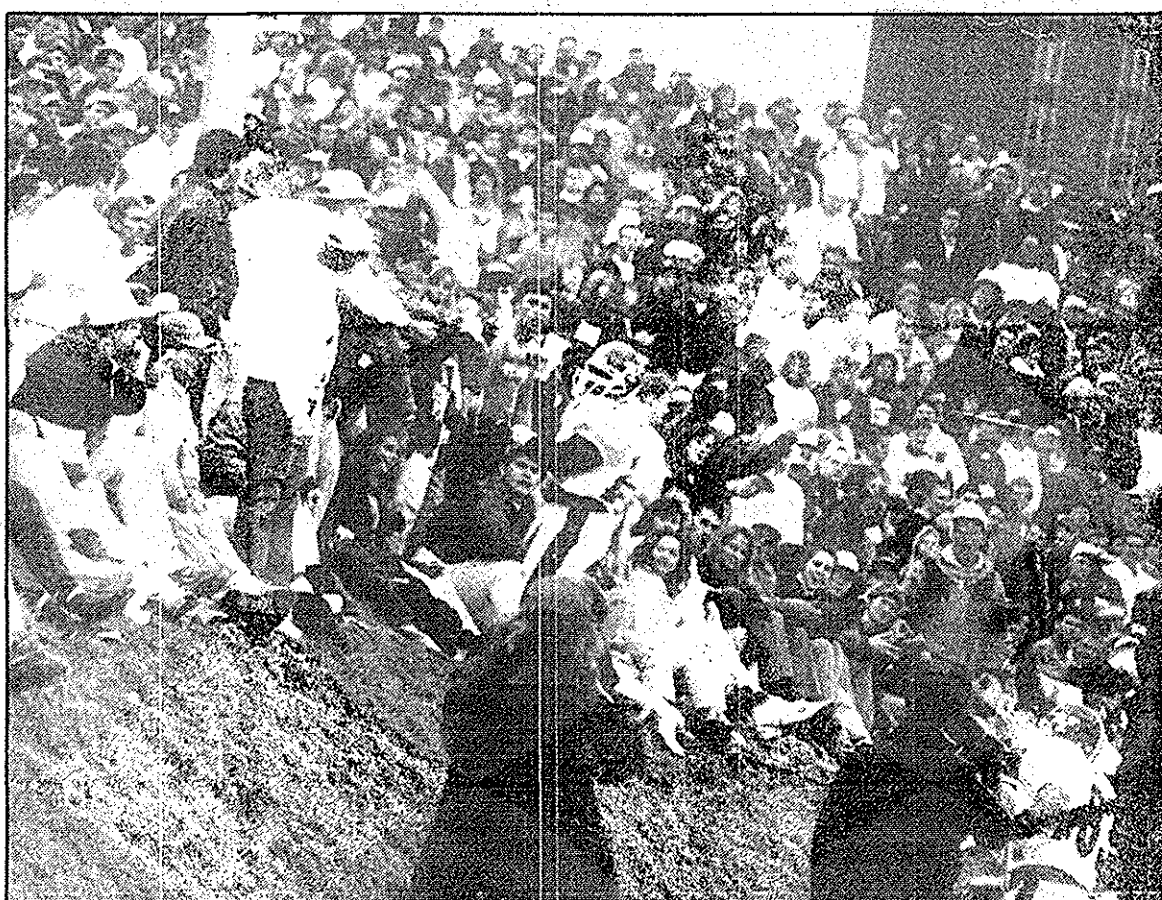

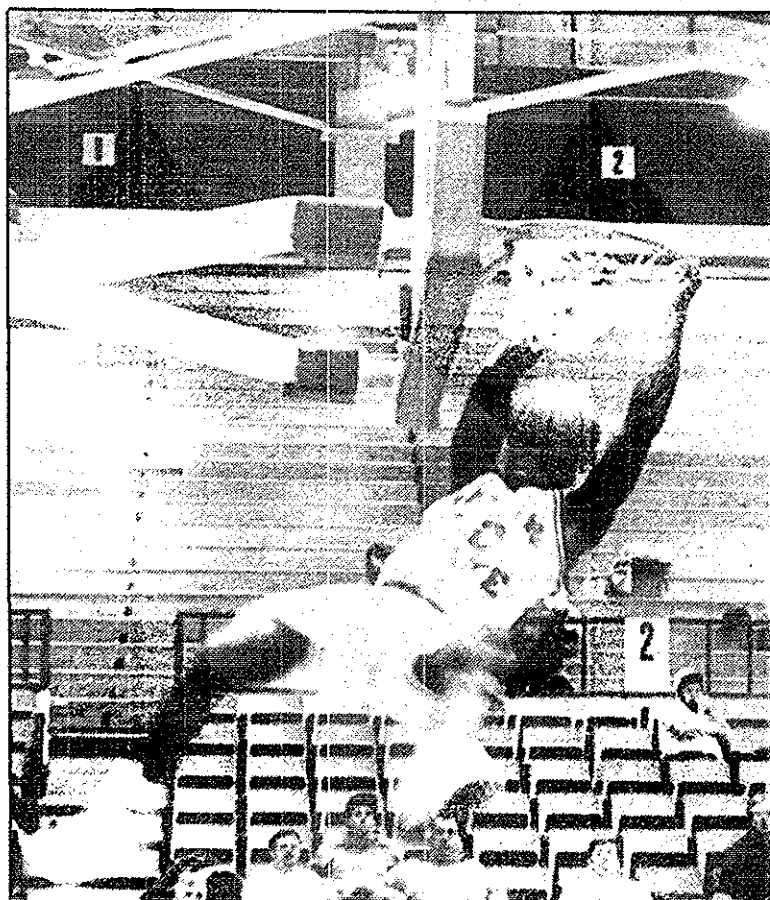

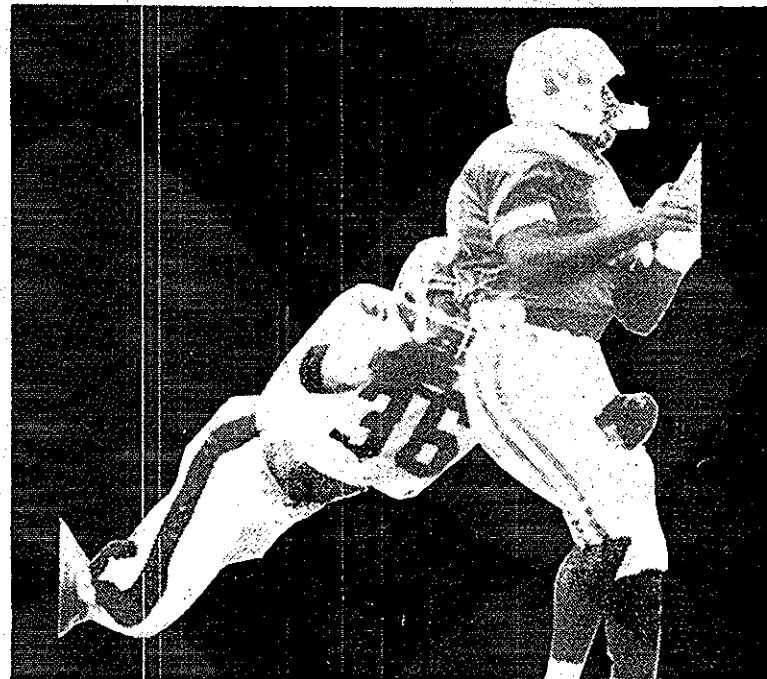

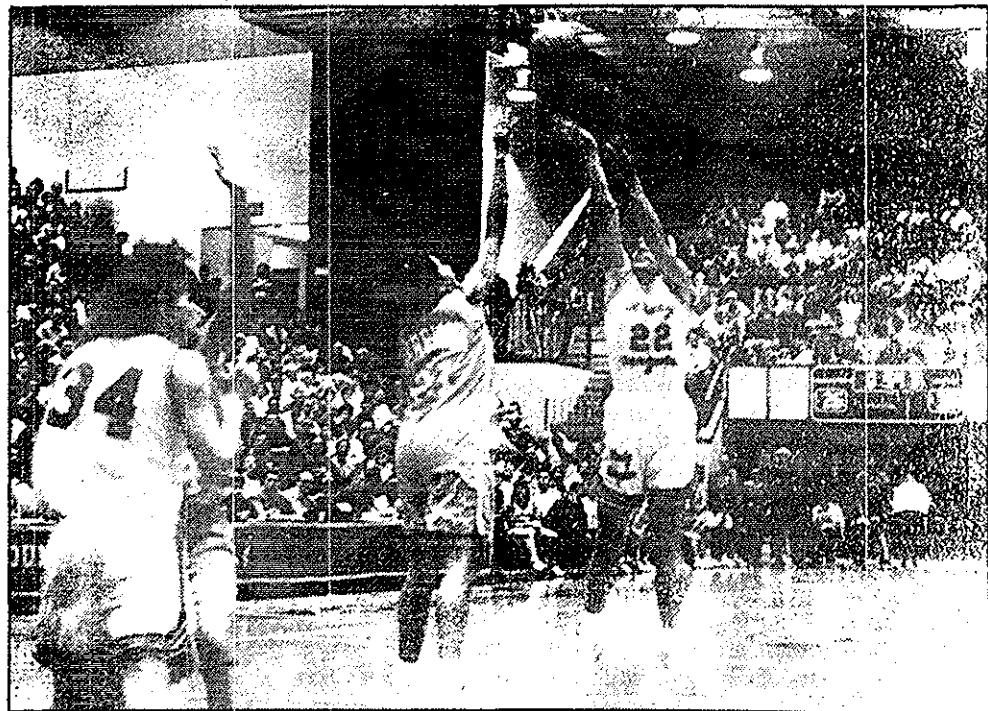

Another somber moment also occurred in men's basketball when Head Coach John Stroia's contract was not renewed. Anyone who attended Stroia's final press conference cannot question his love for YSU basketball.

Women's basketball packed the "Ice Box" this winter when Tennessee came to play the Lady Pens. YSU seniors Rachel Cowley and Tiffany Adams lead a fine performance, despite losing to the Lady Vols.

Although the men's team suffered a hard season, seniors Jerome Sims and Reggie Kemp showed off plenty of world-class moves. Thanks Jerome for giving me my first dunk.

Finally, the YSU football team had a great season in the defense of its National title. A lot of moments stand out, but Tamron Smith rushing the crowd during the comeback and Jeff Powers saying howdy to Michael Payton will stay in my mind forever.

DiGregorio signs two; Track team breaks 20 school records

Women's Basketball

YSU — The YSU women's basketball team announced the signing of two recruits Tuesday to national letters-of-intent.

Carrie Lynn Kelly, a 6'2" center from Uniontown, Pa., (Geibel High School) signed one of the national letters-of-intent.

Kelly graduated from Geibel averaging 11 points, 14 rebounds and seven blocked shots as a senior.

"We are extremely happy to have an athlete such as [Kelly] coming into our program," said YSU Head Coach Ed DiGregorio. "Down the road she is going to be a key member of this team."

The other recruit is Lauren Blausner, a 5'11" forward from Cranberry, Pa., (Cranberry High School). She helped her high school team to their second, straight state title this past season with a 31-1 record.

Blausner averaged 12.9 points, 7.8 rebounds and three assists per game last year.

"I cannot tell you how happy I am that [Blausner] has decided to attend YSU in the fall," said DiGregorio. "She has all the tools to become an excellent collegiate player."

Track

YSU's outdoor track team ended one of its most memorable seasons ever, breaking 49 school records throughout the course of the year. The indoor team also shattered numerous records, with 20 of the 30 events having new Penguin standards. The women's outdoor team was most impressive this season as it broke 23 records over the course of the season. Seven of the 19 events now have school records from the 1993 season.

Senior Becky Rudzik holds individual outdoor records in the 800, 1,500, 3,000 and 5,000 meter runs. The 800, 1,500 and 5,000 meter runs were all broken in 1993.

Rudzik also holds records in two relay events, the 4x400 meter (with Dawn Oddo, Stacie Bender and Lisa Clegg) and the 4x800 meter (with Becki Yeany, Tracy Stein and Amy Palmiero).

Oddo also broke records this year for the women in the 400m hurdles (1:06.16) and the heptathlon (3,992 points).

Julie Williamson, who consistently finished in the top two all season in the discus, was named women's outdoor MVP.

On the men's side, 11 events gained new standards. Senior Jay "the Grandfather" Payne set new records in three events this year, including the 110m high hurdles (14.0 seconds) and the 4x400m relay (with Jamal Smith, David Smith and Bruce Alexander).

Payne also holds outdoor school marks in the 4x100m relay and the 400m hurdles, plus four indoor records.

David Smith and Alexander each broke three school records this year. Smith's records are in the 200 and 400m and the 4x400m relay while Alexander took records in the 800m and the 4x400 and 4x800m relays.

David Smith was named MVP for the men's outdoor team.

The standards have been set. Dawn Oddo flies in the long jump. She and her track teammates helped to break records in 20 track and field events in the 1993 outdoor season.

They call the game a war -- a 50-yard indoor war to be exact. It's time for fans to be thunderstruck with the Arena Football League (AFL) and the Cleveland Thunderbolts.

Arena football can be best described as regular football with the hits of ice hockey and the scoring of basketball. The smaller than regular football field and a continually running clock favor the offense.

Arena football is played indoors on a 50-yard field that is half as wide as a regular football field. The goal posts are also narrowed to nine feet across with rebounding nets on either side. Any ball that bounces off the nets, such as a missed field goal, remains live and can be recovered by either team.

Each team fields eight-man squads with most of the players playing both sides of the ball. Only the kicker, quarterback and defensive specialist stay on side of the ball.

Salary for AFL players are $500 per game with a $150 bonus for each victory. Cleveland's entry into the AFL is the Thunderbolts, owned by Youngstown businessman John Kuczek.

Trying to improve on its 4-6 record in 1992, Cleveland acquired former YSU quarterback Ray Isaac and ex-Ohio State quarterback Greg Frey, who played in the World League's Ohio Glory.

The team is coached by second-year coach, Dave Whinham. Whinham has been an assistant with the Detroit Drive's two AFL Championship team's in 1988 and 1990 and was the strength and conditioning coach for the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

Whinham said that last year's 4-6 playoff team wanted to set a standard by making the playoffs.

"[Last season] we didn't feel that we stacked up team for team with the elite of the league," said Whinham.

Whinham said that the passing game needed improvement from last year. He considered 1992 as a learning experience for the wide receivers.

"They aren't rookies anymore," said Whinham. "They know their way around the league."

Whinham, however, expressed a concern with injuries, especially in the defensive backfield and offensive center.

"We're pressing a couple of guys into service who aren't natural centers," said Whinham.

Whinham feels that as a whole, the Thunderbolts have as good a chance as any other team in the league to win the AFL Championship.

"If we can fill those voids [at defensive back and center] we have a good chance to be an excellent team."

Whinham said that arena football is a great product for the fans.

"We don't have the name recognition like the NBA or NFL, but dollar for dollar and play for play, we're the most exciting pro sport going," said Whinham.

The Thunderbolts will play their first home game of 1992 tonight at 7:30 p.m. when they take on the Arizona Rattlers at the Richfield Coliseum. Tickets are $20, $15 and $10 and are available at all TicketMaster locations or by calling (216) 351-BOLT.
