Takeover leaves head coach with tension headache

By SCOOP ME UP
Veteran Scum

YSU is now looking for a new football coach after Jim Tressel was injured in a takeover by the YSU ROTC.

The ROTC, headed by Cpt. Frederick Egenberger, took over Stambaugh Stadium and the athletic department on Thursday.

They demanded their budget be increased to equal that of athletics or certain members of the athletic department would be pitched over the side.

Well, Tressel was the first. "We are sick and tired of having our budget cut and being located in that depressing corner of Stambaugh," shouted Egenberger. "The time has come to rebel."

Tressel, who suffered a separated shoulder and messed-up hair from the fall, said he was scared throughout the incident.

"I'm lucky to survive," he said. "It was worse than having Akron beat us."

Tressel told The Scumbar the ROTC had assistance from all balding men in the athletic department.

"They were jealous of my locks," said Tressel. "I thought they would do something really drastic like cut my hair off."

The takeover took place during mid-morning and within 20 minutes the stadium was secured.

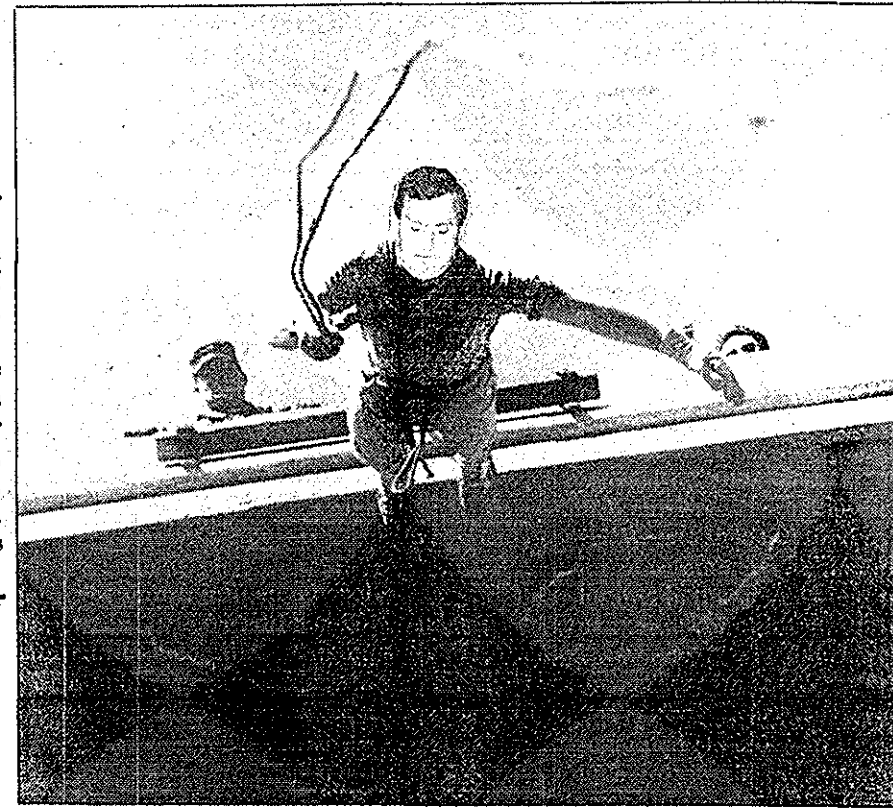

Negotiations broke down after the ROTC said it would settle for Tressel's contract.

"We are smart people," said Egenberger. "We know his contract is worth more than a budget increase."

Dr. Taylor Alderman, chief negotiator for the administration, said it was unlikely there would be a quick settlement.

"We don't deal with people who complain about their budget," said Alderman.

Yeeeeeeeeooooooooooooo: Headcoach Jim Tressel takes a nasty spill off the top of the stadium during a hostile takeover attempt made by the ROTC. When asked how he felt after hitting rock bottom, Tressel replied, "Hey, down wasn't too bad, but the landing was kinda rough."

Neil Knows pole vaulting: Neil D., from Neil D. and the Boyz, shows what he knows in a stop-action scene taken from his upcoming commercial endorsement for Hip Shoes. "This campaign is going nowhere but up," said Neil.

Neil D. knows endorsements

By JORJ KIR

The Scumbar has learned that Neil D., from Neil D. and the Boyz, will soon be making a series of commercials endorsing Hip Shoes.

Kid Nee Bean, president of Hip Shoes, said, from his office in Boston, that his company chose Neil D. because of his recording success.

"He's the hottest item in the business," said Bean. "We only get the best people and he's our man."

"It's like a dream having him as part of the Hip Shoe team," said Bean. "He's good people."

The commercials which are set to air this weekend have Neil D. endorsing the company's new line of shoes for pole vaulting, bowling, long jumping, aerobics, and fishing.

"Yes, Neil Knows pole vaulting," said Bean. "In fact, Neil Knows everything. Watch out Bo."

Bean, who is also part owner of the Boog E tissue company, said negotiations are under way for Neil D. to endorse its product.

"If everything works out, we expect to start shooting a series of Neil Knows Noses commercials," said Bean.

Bean said Neil D.'s contract for Hip Shoes is for two years and stipulates that two-thirds of the profits go to the YSU athletic program.

"Behind that hard image, he is a kind, gentle man who cares about what is important," said Bean. "I'm glad he is our man."

Bean said his company considered hiring former great football coach Jerry Fauwct, but the deal fell through when Fauwct wanted Hip Shoes to compete with the top name companies.

"We may be a small company, but we do not want to make a move like that," said Bean. "Fauwct's a great man, but he would sink this company."

Bean stressed the commercials would not interfere with any of the Boyz's recordings, tour or promotions.

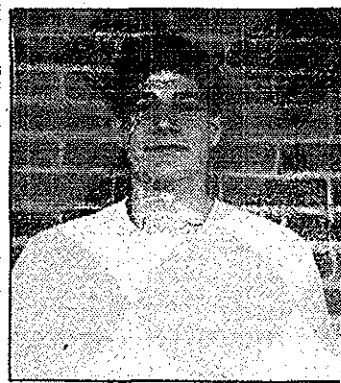

"We at Hip Shoes understand Neil D. must answer his fans' call, so we will not hamper his singing career," said a smiling Bean.

Neil D. could not be reached for comment about his new endorsement contract after The Scumbar reporters left 11 telephone messages.

Bean formerly had controlling power with T.R. Cus Toys before selling out to buy Hip Shoes.

Woman instigates riot with Tangy-Dangy bar

By I. SPY
Scumbar News Hound

A major scuffle in the halls of Kilcawley Center led to hundreds of arrests and plenty of casualties last week thanks to the brave work of the Campus Police.

The person arrested was a Miss Laura "Loa" Dylan-Thomas, a 22-year-old YSU student, who was allegedly the cause of the scuffle.

According to the reports, Dylan-Thomas attacked another student from behind, "banging him again and again on the head with a Tangy-Dangy candybar."

Officers Schute Now and Ask-question Slater reported that the woman was obviously out of control. "She was rammin' his head," said Now, "like she was some sort of mad woman, like she was really p.o.'d, you know what I mean? Like she was pushing See Tangy-Dangy, page 3

By IWANA JAGUAR

Daniel Quail is YSU's first student to enroll in the newly accredited major of under water basket-weaving in the college of arts and sciences.

When asked why he chose this particular field, Quail said, "I wanted to do something where I wouldn't have to breathe but could work with my hands."

Quail finds his classes fulfilling both academically and spiritually. He said, "Yes, it's a tough course load but hey, I love it."

Courses in this major include, basic aquatics, history of wicker, psychology of weaving, studies in the culture of aquatic basketweavers and English 550 and 551.

Quail said that the most difficult thing for him was to learn how to hold his breath for a long amount of time. However, he said that he still has to plug his nose while under water, "but I can weave very well with one hand."

This summer he will be going to Japan's Institute of Water Weavers in order to perfect his craft as well as find peace within himself.

When asked what kinds of careers were available for students in this field Quail said, "I'm sure Sea World has something for me but if not I could always look for a career in

$$$$$ Ask Nancy $$$$$

By Nancy Noltall

Dear Nancy,
Why can't I find a date? I shower weekly, take dance lessons, and shop at Big Lots, and trim my nose hair often. What am I doing wrong?

Troubled in Tuscon

Dear Troubled,
As long as you are not looking for a girl like Paulina or Brooke Shields, I don't know why you can't find a date. It seems to me like you have all the right qualities of a good dating companion. May I suggest wearing an elegant cologne, perhaps "Hi-Karate". You may also want to frequent more hip places such as the bowling alleys. Also look for the girls who wear double digit shoe sizes. Good luck in your dating endeavors.

Dear Nancy,
My boyfriend has this terrible problem. Every time we go out in public he insists on dressing up like a cowboy. I think he thinks it turns me on. He insists on taking me out on dates in his pickup truck, when he has a brand new Corvette that he frequently loans out to his buddies. He wears these ugly boots with spurs and cowhide chaps. And to top it off, he plays Willie Nelson records to get me in the mood. YUK !!
what can I do?

Oh God, he's a country boy.

Dear Suburbia
I too have encountered this dilemma. May I suggest a book that has been a great help to me, Dude Etiquette, By Dawn Marzano. I swear by it.

the edge of P.M.S."

The report stated that after she stopped whomping the man on the head, the man, who asked to remain anonymous, hauled off and belted her one, which then led to a full-blown fistfight.

"Then these two guys came walking outta the Terrace Room with these rifles," claimed Now, "saying they was returnin' them to the ROTC office."

"Well, then, everybody panicked and started running for the door and things got out of hand," he continued. "It was terrible. Everybody pushing everybody else, fists flying everywhere, bruises, cuts. It was a real crying shame."

All in all, the riot lead to 342 arrests, all of which stemmed from the incident with the candy bar.

Dylan-Thomas' only comment was, "Hey, bite my a." I thought I knew him."

Apparently this was not Dylan-Thomas' first offense. A routine background check showed that it is quite common for her to instigate arguments, fights and full-fledged riots.

Neil D. and the Boyz' new album smokes all others

By SUNSHINE DAYDREAMER
Entertainment that trips and skips!!!!

Well, the rockin' and rappin' Neil D. and The Boyz are back and this time they are smokin' up the campus with their latest track, Cuttin' Up—Live and Smokin'.

Yes, the group may look middle-aged, and yes, they may have been hangin' around causing students problems this past year, but somehow The Boyz always seem to come up with rap tunes that keep students coming back for more punishment—I mean fun!!!

Latest singles include: Dorm Room Gals, No Sir Mr. Policeman, Jackin' and Jivin' on the Job, Smokin' in the English Department, and their biggest hit, Fire.

I had the wonderful opportunity to speak with each band member and boy are they something!

Neil D., who sings lead vocals and plays guitar and sax for the band, said that he has been smoking so much lately that he just had to sing about it.

"I just love the feeling of that black smoke in my lungs. What an incredible feeling of relaxation. It's almost like a high. It's definitely better than chocolate," Neil D. said.

As for Jim "Babyface" Tressel, who tries to play drums, said that his favorite rap tune on this album was Dorm Room Gals.

"I've always considered myself a bit of a lady-killer," Tressel said. "The song simply tells about the beauty of young college women around the world, not just in the Youngstown area," Tressel added.

(Tressel sure does look cute in sweatpants! He can sing to me any time he wants!!!)

According to Tressel and Neil D., the band wouldn't exist without their main rapper and number one dude, Phil "Wildman" Hirsch.

Hirsch holds this intense rap band together. He has nerves of steel and a body to die for. Neil D. says that Hirsch has a unique quality of animal magnetism that women kill and sometimes die for.

"There is nothing I would rather be doing than rappin' and rollin' with my buddies," Hirsch said. "It's like I'm young all over again. I have always wanted to rebel against the norm of society and I have finally found a way to do it," Hirsch added.

When asked how much the new track would cost, Neil D. calmly replied: "$692 for the CD (Chillin' Disc). It's the current price of tuition for a quarter. I think that's more than fair."

I don't know about you, but I have a hard time affording a few beers for myself when I go out. How does he expect me to afford a $692 disc?

I guess I'll just have to pass up this great bargain. DAMN!

Well, good luck to Neil D. and The Boyz. They're gonna need it!

Smokin' the joint: Neil D., front man for Neil D. and the Boyz, rouses the crowd into an a capella rendition of "No Sir Mr. Policeman," taken from their new smash album Cuttin' Up Live and Smokin'. The concert, which took place at the Jambar and Grill last week, featured the musical song stylings of the famous back-up singers, "Damn That Jambar Staff."
