Events strive for greater understanding of Hispanic culture

YSU to celebrate Hispanic Awareness Week

By NANCY KERTIS
Jambar Managing Editor

"Hispanic Awareness Week will allow Hispanics at YSU to assert themselves as a group on campus," said Mohan Subramanian, Secretary of Minority Affairs.

Subramanian said that the week of activities and lectures is designed to give the YSU community a glimpse at the rich culture and heritage of Youngstown's Hispanic community.

YSU will kick off Hispanic Awareness Week with a host of programs from April 17-21.

The week's activities begin with a showing of Salsa, a film about dancing, at 2:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 17, in the Scarlet Room of Kilcawley Center.

On Wednesday, April 18, a panel discussion about "The Roots of Hispanic-Americans" will begin at 1 p.m. in the lecture room of DeBartolo Hall. A 10-minute film about Spanish contributions to the Hispanic culture will be shown.

Panelists will be Dr. John White, sociology, anthropology and social work, who will discuss the Indian influence in the Hispanic culture; Dr. Amos Beyan, history, who will discuss the American influence; and Dr. Servio T. Becerra discussing the Spanish influence. Dr. George D. Beelen, chair, history, will moderate.

Also Wednesday, YSU officials and students will discuss University services for hispanic students and other minority students during a student/parent dinner and forum at 6 p.m. in Kilcawley Center's Chestnut Room.

The dinner is for invited high school Hispanic students and their parents. Subramanian said their dinner is a good opportunity for us to learn about another culture besides our own.

Displays about Hispanic culture will be in Kilcawley Center on Wednesday through Friday, April 18 through 20.

The week will conclude with an awards dinner for Hispanic students and campus and community leaders on Saturday, April 21, in the Art Gallery of Kilcawley Center.

Teodosio Feliciano, chair of the Ohio Commission on Spanish-Speaking Affairs, will be the guest speaker. The dinner begins at 6 p.m. A dance will follow at 8:30 p.m. in Kilcawley's Chestnut Room.

Stolen items include automobile, condoms

By GARY HALL
Jambar News Editor

A car and condoms were the objects of thefts according to reports filed at the YSU Police Station.

On Wednesday, April 11, a victim of a car theft informed police that his maroon '78 Chevy Monte Carlo, listed in the report with a value of $500, was missing from the M-9 lot located on Walnut Street.

According to the report, the victim stated that he had parked the vehicle in the lot at approximately 10:40 a.m.

Upon returning around 12:55 p.m., the report said, he discovered the automobile missing.

The owner also told the police that his door was locked and the keys were in his possession, the report said, and also that his registration was in the glove compartment.

Items that were in the car at the time of the theft included: a radar detector, valued at $50; miscellaneous tools, $75; motorcycle boots, $125; motorcycle helmet, $118; motorcycle pants, $98; motorcycle shirt, $35;

motorcycle gloves, $30; chest protector, $80; jumper cables; and half a case of 10W40 Valvoline motor oil, $9.

According to a supplement, the vehicle was discovered later that day at approximately 3 p.m., in stripped condition, in the location of Hudson and LaClede by the Youngstown Police Department.

In another report, police were advised on the same day that a condom machine in the second floor men's room of Meshel Hall might have been broken into.

According to the report, the subject who had informed police advised that it looked like the machine had been left unlocked at the top and that a company representative was on the way.

A computer consultant from room 209, the report said, stated that the front of the machine was hanging open and that there were about two 6" to 8" stacks of condoms in the machine.

There was no money in the machine, the report continued, and all but eight packs of condoms were missing.

The condoms reported stolen were valued at $50.

Collegians in Virginia, Rhode Island face nation's heftiest hike

By The College Press Service

In what may be the most drastic tuition hikes in the nation, education leaders in Rhode Island and Virginia at the end of March announced they would hike rates for the 1990-91 school year by as much as 21 percent.

It's still too early to figure a national average for 1990-91 increases, but so far it appears that most collegians will pay an average of about 7 percent more for school next year.

Citing Rhode Island's economic slump, officials there said they will ask students to pay 9 percent more for tuition next year. The money will help make up for $13 million shortfall in state funding for higher education.

Students are willing to accept the higher-than-average hikes, says Mike McGee, a student government leader at the University of Rhode Island. "Those tuition hikes are the maximum amount which we can absorb," he said. "The other problems facing the university are too severe for us to complain about tuition hikes."

Rhode Island collegians, McGee says, worry more about the university being able to recruit students, attract good faculty and secure research funding. "We're more concerned about preserving our education, period."

In Virginia, where legislators recently finalized a 5 percent budget cut in higher education, George Mason University wants to raise its prices 9.4 percent to $2,508 per year. For out-of-state students, tuition and fees may increase by as much as 21.5 percent.

At the University of Virginia, a 9.6 percent hike for residents and a 14.8 percent increase for out-of-state students is under consideration. Students at Norfolk State University are looking at paying 15 percent to 16 percent more next year in tuition.

Professor's book examines operations of The Steel Valley Klan

DR. WILLIAM D. JENKINS, JR.

YSU — The Ku Klux Klan in the Mahoning Valley aimed its prejudiced attacks not against blacks but against immigrants, a YSU professor reports.

Dr. William D. Jenkins Jr., history, reveals the Klan's operations in The Steel Valley Klan: A History of the Ku Klux Klan in the Mahoning Valley of Ohio During the Twenties.

The book, to be published by Kent State University Press, will be available in September.

The Klan's activity in the Valley dates back to the period from 1921 to 1926 and focused on the growing number of immigrants from Italy, Poland, Russia and Hungary. The Irish, many of whom had already settled in the Valley, also were targeted.

"In my book, I talk about how Youngstown is supposed to be more liberal, part of the Western Reserve, and have a strong abolitionist tradition, yet the Klan came here," said Jenkins.

"This wasn't unusual," he added. In fact, the Klan's activities in Youngstown mirrored a national trend of discrimination against immigrants.

Jenkins said Klan members in the Mahoning Valley were primarily Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and Disciples of Christ who tried to impose their morality on the general public.

Klan members fought to maintain Prohibition, which became law in 1919, and to order businesses closed on Sundays. Immigrants opposed both movements, Jenkins said.

The Klan had considerable control, particularly political control, in the Mahoning Valley during the 1920's, Jenkins said. In the non-partisan elections in 1923, the Klan endorsed and helped elect mayors and councilmen in Youngstown, Warren, Girard, Niles and Struthers.

"By endorsing, they sort of acted as a political party, although technically speaking, they were not," the professor said. "I thought initially that there were so many immigrants, there should be no way they (the Klan) could possibly win."

The poorly organized immigrants, however, often failed to vote shortly after arriving in the United States, he said.

Several factors brought about the Klan's downfall in the Valley, said Jenkins.

First, the membership questioned the leadership's use of funds. The Klan membership fee of $10 included $6.50 for each member's hood.

Second, a publication titled "Is Your Neighbor a Kluxer?" identified more than one-third of the Valley's previously anonymous Klan members.

Third, on Nov. 1, 1924, a riot involving Klan members had to be squelched by the National Guard. No one was killed but some were injured.

Local and national sex scandals also contributed to the Klan's demise, Jenkins said. Locally, one Klan leader, who was married, was said to have kept a mistress in a Youngstown hotel. On the national level, Klan leader D. C. Stevenson was won victed of rape and murder in 1925.

International Studies class offers exotic opportunities

By JENNIFER T. KOLLAR
Staff Reporter

Remember all those days sitting in windowless classrooms when you drifted off into a dream-like trance? Visions of exotic peoples and places danced in your head and you saw yourself sipping capuccino on the sidewalk of an outdoor European cafe or standing in front of the Leaning Tower of Pisa?

And suddenly, just as you were about to take another sip of your capuccino, reality grabbed you by the collar and tossed you back into the real world?

Visions of exotic, enchanting, far away places don't have to remain a dream. In fact, if you were to enroll in the Home Economics 895 International Studies class, you may have a chance to get a snapshot of yourself in front of the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

The International Studies class is being offered for the 1990 fall quarter and is open to all YSU students. The class, worth four quarter hours, is headed by Dr. Mary J. Beaubien, chair of the Home Economics department. According to Beaubien's syllabus last year, the class is referred to as "Mobile Global Education."

Students enrolled in the International Studies Class will have an opportunity to travel to Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy, France, Monaco and Switzerland.

The trip is 17 days long and begins August 27 until Sept. 12, 1990. Beaubien calls the tour a "sampler" meaning that students will get to sample a variety of cultures.

Some of the sights the students can expect to see include: a view of the Roman Forum and the Colosseum, morning sightseeing in Florence, Italy and the afternoon on the Italian Riviera. Other highlights include: traveling to the peaks of the French Alps and a day soaking up Parisian life. A tour in Paris will revolve around Notre Dame, the Eiffel Tower and an optional excursion to visit the Palace of Versailles.

Of course there is a price tag attached to this exotic package. According to Beaubien, "with the cost of land travel and air fare, two thousand dollars should get you there and back." Some of the previous and future goals of the European tour set by Beaubien have been to: "expand awareness of our American culture enough to contrast with that of other countries, to stress the interdependence of the nations of the world, and to increase understanding and acceptance of different values, attitudes and behaviors of various countries."

There have been two previous European tours, one in 1984 and one in 1989. The 1989 tour had only two participating students. Beaubien hopes to boost the number of participating students to 15 for the 1990 tour.

Beaubien said that she "wants students to have fun and get a feeling for other cultures," and for "students to come away from the trip feeling like they are citizens of the world."

A pre-trip orientation that includes a European slide show is set for Wednesday, April 25, at 12 p.m. and 4 p.m. in the Art Gallery in Kilcawley Center. All are welcome.

Mother Teresa will be missed

The life-long efforts of a great woman, Mother Teresa, are over. Age and sickness have caught up with Mother Teresa and forced her to resign her post as head of the Missionaries of Charity. She began the religious order in 1950.

The Nobel Peace Prize, which she received in 1979, is only a small token of thanks the world has given her for her hard work among the sick and dying.

Her concern for the underprivileged throughout the world has helped many people receive the attention and medical care they needed to live a healthy life.

The work she has done cannot be fully recognized by receiving a prize or honor.

Even though she can no longer help the sick, the people of the world hope another woman can try to accomplish what Mother Teresa has done.

Parking problem has to be addressed

Once again, the issue of parking needs to be addressed.

University officials are expecting a rise in enrollment for the fall quarter to just over 15,000 students.

Even though some of these students will be living in Lyden House, the new student dormitory, and will not need to drive to the campus everyday, the problem of parking will still be a major issue.

If administration wants more students to attend YSU, then more parking is needed to accommodate all students.

Currently, the M1 deck (Wick Deck) can hold 2,100 vehicles while the M2 deck (Lincoln deck) can hold only 1,225 vehicles. That is clearly not enough parking spaces for YSU students and faculty.

A special committee should be formed to monitor and study the parking situation for a one-year period. During that time, the construction of Lyden House should be completed and not interfere with the research.

Administration should work on the parking problem now without delay.

COMMENTARY

Clean air is more important issue

The U.S. Clean Air Act will inevitably cause a loss of jobs for steelworkers, according to The Plain Dealer, as many as 3 million in the midwest.

These steelworkers are up in arms and are looking for a compromise that will still reduce the number of pollutants entering the air but allow people to keep their jobs.

Unfortunately, these requests are unrealistic. I can understand the plight of these workers; they are victims of our society. I feel for the many who will lose their jobs.

However, requesting that the U.S. government loosen its belt on the Clean Air Act is ludicrous. This would only lead to a prolonging of the effects of the pollutants on the air. Not to mention that it would also merely prolong a loss of jobs for steelworkers.

Logically, the amounts of pollution entering the air have to be drastically reduced. If we undermine the goal of the Clean Air Act now, we will have to make up for it later. And later, people will still lose their jobs.

However, these steelworkers will not be the only people who will pay. Utility rates are predicted to increase by 50 percent for industry and 20 percent for residential use. We will all be paying.

And we should be mad. All of these problems stem from a lack of foresight. We allowed ourselves to become a heavy-industry, disposable society. We have all enjoyed the luxuries and now

Drunken driving bill explained

Think about this. What if you locked your car keys in a drawer and couldn't drive for two weeks? How much would it affect your life? It'd be pretty tough, wouldn't it? That's what people are going to have to think about when they drink and drive.

A piece of legislation I sponsored, Ohio Senate Bill 131, (S.

131) brings tough new restrictions to strengthen Ohio's drunken driving laws. It has been a long process, but last week the General Assembly sent the bill to the governor to be signed into law.

S. 131 attacks the drunken driving issue on a number of fronts, rather than focusing on just one or two aspects of the problem. This bill sends a clear signal that Ohio lawmakers are serious about reducing the number of alcohol-related accidents on our highways.

For instance, the financial penalty for driving under the influence has been stiffened. Now, a first-time offender could be required to pay up to $1,000 for an OMVI violation, while the maximum penalty for a fourth-time offender could be as high as $10,000. Not too many people have that kind of money to throw around.

Another key component of the bill restricts occupational driving privileges during court-ordered license suspension. That means a first-time offender it is time to make up for all that we have taken for granted.

Now, in a moment of panic we are trying to save the planet that we are well on our way to destroying. These efforts should be applauded, not shot down, like the recycling bill was for the state of Ohio.

Efforts to repair, or at least do less harm to the environment can no longer be overlooked.

Sure, some things are going to cost more and too many people are going to lose their jobs. This is nothing but a shameful situation that could have and should have been avoided.

Now it is too late. The time for decisions is past, they have already been made. Now it is time for action from everyone and support from everyone.

It's too bad that people only become concerned about environmental issues when it affects their pocketbook.

Ohio

wouldn't be able to drive to work for 15 days. For a second-time offender, the suspension would be twice that. If you're caught a third-time, it's six months. After that, the court must impose a three-year occupational driving privilege suspension, and it has the option of suspending your license for life.

The bill also permits a court, under certain circumstances four or more offenses, to order that any vehicle the offender operates equipped with an ignition interlock device. Additionally, the General Assembly has established misdemeanor penalties for anyone caught driving during a court-ordered suspension, including the forced immobilization of the offender's vehicle, also known as "booting."

If a person refuses to take a chemical test to measure their blood alcohol content, they can be slapped with as much as five-year license suspension, depending on how many times they have refused those tests.

Minors who get caught driving with only a .02 blood alcohol content immediately have their license suspended for 60 days. And they could spend five days in a juvenile detention facility. The bill also goes after anyone under 21 who uses a fake ID to buy alcohol with some heavy fines and possible loss of license.

Not only would fourth-time offenders lose their license and be subject to as much as $10,000 fines, they could also go to jail for at least 60 days. The state will be providing minimum-security jail space for those folks who just don't get the message.

S. 131 also puts some of the money received from fines toward mandatory alcohol-treatment programs for repeat offenders.

Statistics show that each year in Ohio, more than 30,000 accidents, and as many as 800 fatalities are caused by intoxicated drivers. Testimony during hearings on S. 131 claimed two of every five people will be involved in an alcohol-related crash. With such staggering numbers, we all probably know of someone who has been hurt or killed by drunken drivers.

Ohio law has always dealt severely with drunken killers of the road. S. 131 creates the new offense of aggravated vehicular assault, which allows prosecutors to seek felony convictions, even on first offense for people who cause serious injuries while driving recklessly.

No law is a panacea. I am not suggesting our highways will be rid of this terrible menace as a result of our new OMVI law. Change can only occur when people act responsibly by obeying the law.

It is not the goal of the legislature to stop people from drinking. We simply want to stop them from taking a casual attitude toward operating a machine that hurls several tons of steel down a public highway at 60 mph after they've had a drink or two. Our goal is to make people stop drinking and driving.

GEORGE F. WILL / WASHINGTON POST

Remembering Bob Feller's dominance on the mound brings back memories

Van Meter, Iowa, has 747 residents and no traffic light. In the 1930s it had about 300 residents and was a good place to grow up, listening to a Des Moines sportscaster named Dutch Reagan and watching trains rumble west carrying beams from Indiana steel mills, the beams bearing banners proclaiming their destination: "The Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco." One Van Meter boy was bound for glory, and got a fistful of it 50 years ago, this week on Chicago's south side.

Correct thinkers think that "baseball trivia" is an oxymoron: Nothing about baseball is trivial. But connoisseurs of, shall we say, arcaica adore this question: Name the occasion when every player on a major league team had precisely the same batting average before and after the game.

It was April 16, 1940, when Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians pitched a no-hitter against the White Sox on opening day. All the White Sox were batting .000 before and after the game.

Feller, a baseball prodigy, was a major leaguer before he was old enough to shave, the only major leaguer who returned to his hotel to do high-school homework. On July 6, 1936, after his junior year and four months before his 18th birthday, he pitched for the Indians in an exhibition against the St. Louis Cardinals. His first pitch was a called strike. The batter turned to the catcher and said: "Let me out of here in one piece." The batter had just seen—sort of—the fastball that later would cause a batter (Hall of Fame wit and pitcher Lefty Gomez) to say, after taking a called third strike with his bat on his shoulder, "That one sounded a little low."

In September, 1936, before returning to high school for his senior year, the 17-year-old "phenom" broke the American League single-game record and tied Dizzy Dean's major league record by striking out 18 Philadelphia Athletics, thereby becoming the only pitcher ever to achieve as many strikeouts in a game as he was years old. This and the rest of Feller's career, recounted in his memoir Now Pitching: Bob Feller (with Bill Gilbert), illustrates the axiom, "As the twig is bent..."

In the movie Field of Dreams (and the novel on which it is based, W.P. Kinsella's Shoeless Joe), an Iowa farmer and baseball fanatic hears a voice from the sky say, "Build it and he will come." The farmer inexplicably but correctly intuitively this message to mean that if he builds a ballpark, Shoeless Joe Jackson will return from the dead.

The farmer does, and Joe does, saying "This must be heaven." The farmer says, "No. It's Iowa."

No, this is Iowa: Bob Feller's father, a farmer, built his son a ballpark—felled trees, leveled a pasture, erected bleachers. He even switched other fields from corn to wheat because wheat took less time to harvest, leaving more time for baseball.

Feller, with Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio (they were 20, 21, and 24 respectively in 1939) were baseball's golden trio on the eve of the war that was to consume what could have been their most productive years. After Pearl Harbor, Feller immediately enlisted in the Navy, chafed under a stateside assignment with a physical-fitness program, then became chief of an anti-aircraft gun crew on the battleship U.S.S. Alabama, which had a population about ten times that of Van Meters. In two years, the Alabama steamed 175,000 miles and won eight battle stars for participating in eight Pacific landings.

Feller won 100 games at a younger age than anyone else ever had. He had 108 when he enlisted, at an age when Cy Young, baseball's winningest pitcher (511) had won none and Walter Johnson, the second winningest (417) had just 57. The war probably cost Feller at least 100 wins. Even so, he had more "low hit" games (15—three no-hitters and 12 one-hitters) than anyone until passed by the Ranger's Nolan Ryan (16—five no-hitters and 11 one-hitters). Ryan had had 192 more starts than Feller had.

Ted Williams, baseball's best pure hitter, ever, said of Feller:

"That was the test. Three days before he pitched, I would start thinking about Robert Feller, Bob Feller. I'd sit in my room thinking and seeing him, thinking about him all the time... Allie Reynolds of the Yankees was tough and I might think of him for about two hours before a game, but Robert Feller, I'd think about him for three days."

That is a compliment as elegant as Williams' swing.

Student on the Move

Student finds freedom in education

By SUSAN KORDA
Assistant Copy Editor

After talking with Yousef Adhami, I sat back and thought about how fortunate I was to be a free American.

Yousef, a freshman majoring in civil engineering, said that Americans don't realize how good they have it.

"In my country, if you don't have money you don't get educated," he said.

Yousef is from Palestine. I admitted to him that I wasn't very familiar with its customs so he proceeded to fill me in.

Yousef spoke of the unavailability of education and the shockingly young age people begin to work.

"I worked at the age of seven with my grandfather," he said. He said that there is no drug problem in his country and the only exposure about the problem they get is from television.

"We hear on television that Americans have problems with drugs," he said.

Yousef said that Americans don't know a lot about foreigners.

"The only thing we don't have is freedom," he said.

Yousef equates his "new found" freedom with his opportunity to receive an education here at YSU.

Yousef sees himself as an exception compared to some foreign students who come to America to do anything but study.

Yousef said that some foreign students do not use the opportunity available to them to receive an education.

Although this is discouraging to him, he continues to study with little or no time for extracurricular activities.

When Yousef and his family arrived here four and a half years ago he was determined to take advantage of the opportunities presented to him.

Yousef continues to face obstacles both on campus and in everyday life.

The message I received from Yousef during our conversation was subtle yet became more clear later on.

Our freedom to be educated is indeed a gift that should not be returned unopened.

Programs address familial issue

YSU — Many of us are aware that the definition of the family has changed radically from the ideal Mom, Dad and two-point-three children in the 1950s.

A growing population of blended families, one-parent families and other forms of family relationships unique to this new cultural group, has created a whole new set of problems and needs.

The Newman Catholic Student Association have planned a series of evening programs on step-parenting that address these issues.

The first of four sessions begins on Tuesday, April 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Kilcawley Center, Buckeye Suite.

For more information, please call the Newman Center at 747-9202.

Dana presents 6th annual New Music Festival

YSU — YSU's Dana School of Music will present the New Music Festival VI from April 18-20.

"Music and Technology" is the theme of this year's festival, which features "Akoustikos," an experience in music and space by Morris Knight, and the opening of the Dana Recording Project, both at the Butler Institute of American Art.

Guest speakers from throughout Canada and the United States include Peter Ware of Toronto, composer/publisher, demonstrating computer notation, and Dr. Raoul Ronson of New York, record producer/publisher, discussing recording techniques.

"Music is getting increasingly more sophisticated, and we want to get ourselves familiar with the latest technology," said Dr. Robert Rollin, music, event coordinator.

Dana faculty, students and ensembles will conduct a series of eight concerts during the festival, including the premieres of works of junior William Young, senior Mirek Kukielka, and Dr. Edward J. Largent, Jr., music. The New York University Contemporary Players will also perform.

The festival was organized by an interdisciplinary committee of Dana faculty members, along with faculty and administrative representatives from the William Rayen School of Engineering, the department of mathematical and computer sciences, the department of philosophy and religious studies, and YSU Modern Dance.

It is sponsored by YSU, the Dana School of Music, New Music Society and Student Government in conjunction with the Butler Institute of American Art and the American New Music Consortium.

Latest concerts announced for spring, summer line-up

Sinead O'Connor will make her Cleveland debut at the Cleveland Music Hall at 8 p.m. Friday, May 18 and Rush will return to the Richfield Coliseum at 8 p.m. Friday, June 8.

Reserved seats for the O'Connor concert are $17.50 in advance and $19 the day of the show. The tickets will go on sale this Friday, April 13.

Ms. O'Connor, a native of Ireland, gained notoriety back in 1986 when she released a movie soundtrack with U2's The Edge. Subsequently she landed a recording contract with Chrysalis Records which released her debut LP in late 1987.

With MTV airplay and college radio support, Sinead became an instant alternative favorite. Early 1988 saw her on the road with a supporting cast that included ex-Smiths, Mike Joyce and Andy Rourke. The initial tour only stopped in major east and west coast markets.

Her newest album, I Do Not Want What I Haven't Got, includes the hot single, "Nothing Compares 2 U." The single is No. 9 on Billboard's Hot 100 after four sort weeks, which is why the album debuted at No. 24.

Critics say her appeal reaches across the board and is unequalled by most artists. Her video is in heavy rotation on both VH-1 and MTV.

Tickets for the Rush concert are $20 and they go on sale this Saturday, April 14.

Rush, a long-time favorite of Northeastern Ohio, returns with a new record company and a new album. Their Atlantic Records release, Presto, has been on the Billboard Charts for 20 straight weeks.

The new material is some of the band's most sophisticated to date. Songs like, "Show Me Don't Tell Me" and the title track "Presto," prove that Alex, Geddy and Neil have not lost pace with the ever-changing world of rock and roll.

Considered to be three of the best musicians in one band, Rush became popular locally in the early 80's. Their trademark, cutting edge rock, produced hits that included "Spirit of the Radio," "Tom Sawyer" and "Manhattan Project."

Both the O'Connor and Rush concerts were arranged by Belkin Productions, which also will present Company of Wolves in concert at Peabody's Down Under at 9 p.m. Sunday, April 29.

Opening the show is Salty Dog. Tickets for this all ages show are $10 in advance and $12 the day of the show.

2nd annual art exhibit set for Youngstown Playhouse

YOUNGSTOWN — The Youngstown Playhouse Youth Theatre announces the second annual art exhibition and competition for area students during the run of the new musical, Alice in Wonderland, May 10-20.

The theme of the exhibit, which is open to the children in grades K-8, is "It's A Wonder!" Participants may submit their paintings, drawings, and sketches about wonderful people, places and things, both real and imaginary at the Youngstown Playhouse, 600 Playhouse Lane, (off Glenwood Avenue) 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

The deadline is Monday, May 7. All entries must be ready for hanging — on poster board, matted, or framed — and labeled with the student's name, age, grade, school and telephone number on the back of the work. The "It's A Wonder!" exhibit will hang in the Playhouse lobby.

Judging by a special Playhouse Committee will take place on Wednesday, May 9, with first, second and third prizes awarded in each of three categories; K-3rd grades, 4th-6th grades and 7th-8th grades.

First prize winners will receive two season tickets to '90-'91 Playhouse Youth Theatre series. Second prize winners will receive one season ticket, and third prize winners will receive two gift tickets to their choice of one show from the '90-'91 season.

Entrants must pick up their work May 21 to 25. For further information, please call the Playhouse at 788-8739.

Ballet theatre Ohio presents comic ballet, Coppelia

Ballet Theatre Ohio announced that tickets have just gone on sale for the third production in its 1989-90 season: Coppelia, a comic three-act ballet.

BTO's full-scale, professional production will be performed on Friday, May 11 and Saturday, May 12 at Packard Music Hall in Warren.

Danced to a well-known score by composer Leo Delibes, the ballet tells the story of a doll that looks so life-like, she seems real to several villagers in a quaint 19th century European town.

When the happy-go-lucky peasant Franz takes more than a passing interest in the new "girl" in town, his betrothed, Swanilda, sets out to protect her interest.

Area school children will have the opportunity to learn more about the Coppelia story by participating in BTO's "Living Doll" Writing Contest. Details will be announced soon in local media.

Created in the 1870s, Cop- pelia was the first ballet to incorporate ethnic folk dance; BTO's production features a mazurka and czardas. Costumes and sets also reflect the colorful European folk theme.

All shows begin at 8 p.m. Tickets can be purchased by calling Ballet Theatre Ohio at 399-8106 in the Warren telephone area, or 1-800-448-7661.

Tickets are regularly priced at $15, $12.50 and $10. Discount coupons are also available at all Trumbull and Mahoning County Burger Kings that offers the bearer $2 off any ticket.

YSU faculty releases music discs

YSU — Music performed by YSU's Dana School of Music faculty and students is available on compact discs through a program designed to recruit students and to provide an opportunity for scholarly research.

The Dana Recording Project has produced six compact discs. Three have been released. American Choral Music features the Dana Chorale, under the direction of Dr. C. Wade Randon, music, and guest conductor Gregg Smith of the Gregg Smith Singers. Pianist Roman V. Rudnytsky, music, performs on "Pianistic Portraits." William By Slocum, music, plays French horn in "The Expressive Horn," accompanied by Randall Fusco, professor of music at Hiram College.

Three additional compact discs featuring the Dana Faculty Woodwind Quintet, James Umble on alto saxophone, and John Turk on tuba, will be available soon.

Donald W. Byo, director of the Dana School of Music, said the project began in the fall of 1985.

"We were looking for a way to recruit students and to enhance YSU's image as a culturally rich institution of higher education," Byo said.

"We have excellent performers here, but we can't take them everywhere," he added.

The project also provides an opportunity for faculty to enhance their scholarly research.

"This is their research and scholarship," Byo said. "A recording is tantamount to a book."

The first three discs were recorded in Bliss Hall and were engineered by David Hancock of New York. Raoul Ronson, owner of Sessaw Music Publishing Co. of New York, served as project consultant.

Susan Russo, art, designed the disc inserts. YSU funded the project.

The discs are on sale for $12.95 at the Dana School of Music in Bliss Hall, ext. 3636. The Butler Institute of American Art will sell the discs beginning with the opening of the Dana New Music Festival on April 18.

YSU baseball team out hits Ohio State, 15-12

The Jambar — Wednesday afternoon YSU's baseball team turned back the Buckeyes of Ohio State University 15-12.

The Penguins were lead, in this first meeting between the two schools, by the hitting of Chris Durkin and Brian Myers as they both hit two homers apiece.

Playing center field on defence, Durkin hit a two run homer in the third inning and a three run blast in the fourth to put the Penguins ahead for good at 8-5. Durkin went four for five on the day and drove in a total of six runs. Myers connected on a solo home run early in the game and had a two-run shot in the eighth to put YSU out in front 15-9. Myers finished three for five pulling in three RBI's.

Also contributing to the 15-12 score were Brian Funge (a double and a single), Bob Janeda (two doubles and a two run homer) and John Dennis who scored three times.

The Penguins will be playing four games this weekend at Akron in the Akron Invitational.

Wayne Stanley to coach at YSU

YSU — Wayne Stanley, a former four-year letterman and quarterback for the Iowa State University Cyclones, has been named as the new running backs coach at YSU, announced Head Football Coach Jim Tressel.

"It's exciting for the Penguins to have a coach of Stanley's experience added to our staff," Tressel said. "He is a welcome addition," he added.

A native of Belle Glade, Fla., he was a four-year letterman for the Iowa State University Cyclones (1972 to 1976), earning a B.S. in physical education in 1977.

He was an assistant coach with the Cyclones in 1977 and 1978, moving to Ohio State University in the same capacity from 1979 to 1984. He most recently was an Independent Insurance Broker.

He was the starting quarterback and co-captain of the 1976 Iowa State team (coached by former Buckeye mentor Earle Bruce) that posted an 8-3-0 overall ledger, including a 37-28 win over Nebraska. Under Stanley's signal calling, the Cyclones set school records in total offense (439.6 yards per game), touchdowns (49), first downs (261), touchdown passes (20) and rushing yards (2,970) during his senior year.

He is Iowa State's seventh leading all-time passer with 2,671 career yards, is second on the ISU career chart for touchdown passes thrown with 25, ranks ninth in career pass completions with 180 and is ninth in career total offensive yards with 3,326. He also threw four touchdown passes against Air Force in 1976.

WAYNE STANLEY

Penguins have first scrimmage in the snow

By TIM LEONARD
Staff Reporter

What was suppose to be a spring practice scrimmage yesterday afternoon turned into a winter practice scrimmage for the YSU football team as the temperature dipped into the low 30s and snow swirled around Stambaugh Stadium.

The scrimmage started with the sun shining, but once the snow started falling less than an hour into the scrimmage, it was the YSU defense who began to dominate as they defeated the YSU offense, 38-31.

The YSU coaching staff awarded different amounts of points for certain achievements — such as touchdowns, interceptions, first downs, fumble recoveries, etc.

The defense fell behind 24-3, but started its comeback after a Tony Tellington interception.

YSU defensive back Pete Rektis also contributed an interception to the defensive team's effort. Rektis' interception came late in the scrimmage off a Ray Isaac pass.

Tressel said the key to the scrimmage was the turnovers. "The score was 24-3 when the defense came up with the (Tellington interception), and then they end up winning the game. Turnovers are the key to football," said Tressel.

Of the defense, Tressel said, "I was a little disappointed that there were so many big plays (early in the scrimmage), which led to the 24-3 (deficit). But I think the first defensive team played pretty decent."

The YSU offense jump out to the 24-3 lead off the running of tailback Tamron Smith, who rushed 14 yards for a touchdown. The 5-foot-8 Smith, who is a freshman from Youngtown South High School, is battling tailback Archie Herring and Michael Ghent for playing time at the position.

"(Smith) has a lot of raw ability. He really does. He needs a lot of refinement. But Tamron Smith can be one heck of a ball player," said Tressel.

Shortly after Smith's touchdown, the offense added their only other score on a 38-yard touchdown pass to Andre Ballinger from quarterback Frank Edie.

Edie, a senior who backed up Isaac last season at quarterback, impressed his head coach.

"When he was in there, they scored twice," said Tressel. "That's the mark of a quarterback — if he can move the team down the field."

This spring, the Penguins have switched Leo Hawkins to fullback after he shared the tailback position with Herring last season. Hawkins, however, was injured during the first series of plays and missed the rest of the scrimmage.

Hawkins is battling sophomore Lou Sfara and junior Rod Smith for the fullback position.

Tressel receives coaching honor

YSU Head Football Coach Jim Tressel has been selected to receive the National Football Foundation NEO Chapter's college coach-of-the-year award at its annual scholar-athlete awards banquet on May 9.

Notre Dame's Luo Holtz will serve as guest speaker.

Tressel and his Penguins traveled to the NCAA Division I-AA quarterfinals last fall and finished off the season with a 9-4 record bringing Tressel's career record at YSU to 23-24.

With Tressel at the helm YSU has traveled to the playoffs twice in the past three years and are currently preparing to begin a new decade coming off their most successful season in the last 10 years.

YSU's 9-4 1989 season represents the third winningest season in the Penguins' 50-year history.

The banquet will be held at Swingo's at the Satler in downtown Cleveland.

Feeling right at home: YSU's football team ran into a little snow during their first scrimmage of spring drills Thursday afternoon. The Penguins are currently preparing for their annual Red-White Spring Game. This year's game will be held on May 3.

Softball cancelled

The YSU women's softball game against Clarion University for Thursday afternoon was cancelled due to rain.

The team will be facing the University of Akron today at Akron.

YSU basketball signs three new recruits for '90-91

The YSU basketball program signed not one, not two, but, yes, three athletes to letters-of-intent.

Wednesday, which was the first day of national letter-of-intent signings, the Penguins signed the two they were expecting to sign—6-foot-1 Mike Alcorn and 6-1 Lacy Jones.

But yesterday evening the Penguins received a bonus player by signing Edgar Ward, a 6-7 forward who played two years of basketball at the University of Mississippi.

Ward is a Chicago native who attended South Suburban Junior College in Chicago. Ward did not, however, play basketball while attending the junior college. So he has two years of basketball eligibility left and will could play as soon as next season.

YSU Head Basketball Coach John Stroia, who is presently in Chicago (after signing Ward), was unavailable for comment, but Assistant Coach Chris Stokes said, "(Ward) could potentially be our best player."

Stokes said Ward, who average 11 minutes per game during his two years at Ole Miss, is capable of playing the post position as well as both strong and small forward.

While at Mississippi, Ward averaged 2.1 ppg his freshman year and 1.0 ppg his sophomore. Ward averaged 17 ppg and 12 rpg his senior year in high school.

Of the other two signings, Jones is said to be a possible candidate for a starting position next season. Prior to signing Jones, a point guard from Ottawa Hills

High School in Grand Rapids, Mich., Stroia said that if he signed Jones to a letter-of-intent, then he hoped to see Jones starting at the point position for the Penguins and move Marc Vassar to the off-guard position.

Jones averaged 21.0 ppg as a senior and dished out 12.2 assists. He was an All-City selection his junior and senior seasons and a Honorable Mention All-State selection his senior year.
