Candidates await election results on friendly terms

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

A rare scene took place in Kilcawley Center on Monday when both candidates running for Student Government President sat together as they campaigned. Presidential candidate Istvan Domonkos and incumbent Brian Fry both said they feel confident about winning.

"I feel real confident," said Domonkos. "All in all everything is great."

"I'm reasonably confident, but not overly confident," said Fry.

Both said they feel there is no reason to attack the other candidate.

"Brian [Fry] and I are getting along," said Domonkos. "There is no reason to get at each other's throats."

Fry said he agreed that there is no animosity among the two.

"Steve [Domonkos] and I basically shared the same office [space] this year, so there is no sense in cutting throats," said Fry. "We both have respect for each other and may the best man win."

Dr. Bassam Deeb, assistant to the vice-president of student services and part of the election committee, said early results indicate that voter turn-out is higher than last year.

"So far there have been more people voting," said Deeb.

Domonkos and Fry said the different issues on this year's ballot may have been a major factor as to why voter turn-out is up.

"I think the issue of day care has brought a lot of people out," said Domonkos.

"A lot of controversial issues this year have raised the awareness of people on campus," said Fry.

Domonkos said the busiest time for voter turn-out was between the hours of 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Deeb said the winner will not be announced until sometime Wednesday afternoon.

"We expect to announce a winner on Wednesday," said Deeb. "Only if we start getting write-in candidates will that hinder the announcement."

Both candidates said they hate to wait until Wednesday to find out who won.

"I'm keeping busy by going to different buildings [campaigning]," said Domonkos. "It's a long, consuming process."

Fry said he was slightly nervous while campaigning.

"I'm just trying to keep moving," said Fry. "I'm tired, but I try and keep myself active."

Both candidates painted The Rock together Monday morning to show fairness and integrity in the campaign.

Domonkos said they flipped a coin to see who would get what side.

'Penguinistics' offers fun, frolic

YSU — "Penguinistics," described as three "holistic frolics," emerged as the winner of the New Games Contest sponsored by the Creativity Committee for Holistic Health Month.

The winning entry, which will be played starting at noon on Wednesday, May 9 at the campus core, was submitted by the members of the Creative Design Class under Dr. Joseph Altinger, math and computer science, and Dr. Salvatore Pansino, engineering.

According to the creators, the games are a "holistic, poleistic, amazing, amusing penguin frolic" and players "will waddle their way through" the three events.

Frolic One is called "Blow Your Own Fortune," a game of personal respiratory proficiency. Players will receive balloons containing, "mystic, all-knowing, very true, calculated from planetary alignments plus a generous modicum of Penguin Pie" information, and must inflate the balloons to the bursting point to discover one's destiny.

Frolic Two is called "Chilly Chuckles," also known as "Create a Punch Line." Imaginative, "oft totally plagiarized, twisted, creative drawings will be supplied" for the purpose of penning "your own pent up (or down) pensive, penguinatic expressions."

Frolic Three is called "Hearctic Trails." The most physically active of the three, the game requires players to traverse a sidewalk path made of red, black or white squares. The catch is you must either hop on your left foot or hop on your right foot, depending upon the color drawn.

The three events were designed by the class with a focus on health and fun. Class members will conduct the games.

As winner of the contest, the Creative Design Class will receive a cash award of $40.

Month of May to focus on health

Today is the first day of Holistic Health Month. Special committees were created last year by the University to review the current wellness of YSU students, staff and faculty.

The focus of Holistic Health Month at YSU is on six states of wellness: physical, emotional, spiritual, intellectual, occupational and social.

The concept of Holistic Health has evolved because there has been a dramatic shift in major health problems from those caused by infectious agents to those that result from unhealthy lifestyles and societal problems.

Many conditions such as cardiovascular disease, cancer and violence are among the type most likely to be preventable by education and lifestyle modification.

Holistic Health seeks to promote lifestyles that maximize the potential and harmony of the body, mind and spirit.

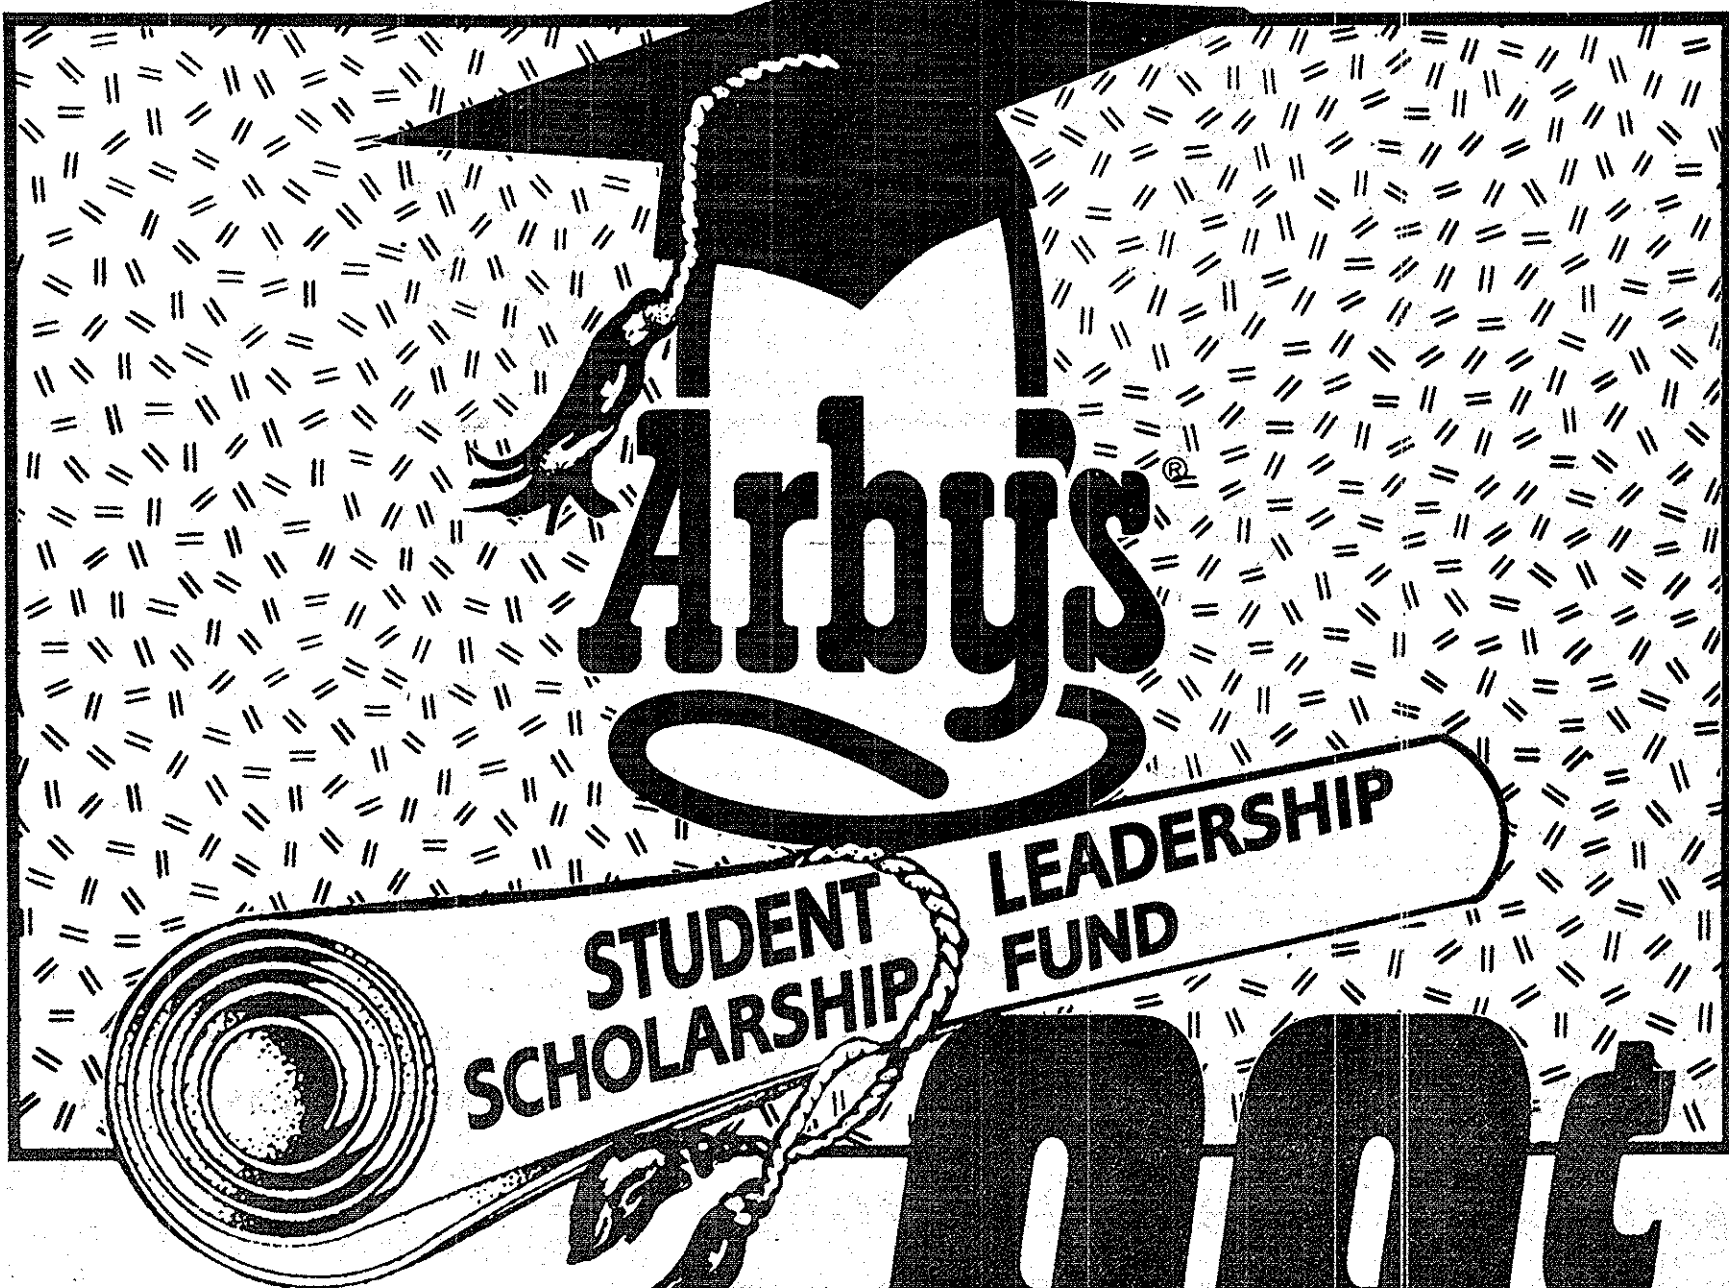

Educational events and films are being scheduled throughout the month of May in Kilcawley Center.

Sub-committee releases results of substance abuse survey

By MIRIAM KLEIN
Jambar Copy Editor

The Substance Abuse Sub-Committee, one of ten sub-committees formed by the Holistic Health Committee to review health issues that affect students, faculty and staff at YSU for Holistic Health Month, recently released the results of a survey of campus wellness and substance abuse.

Dr. Joyce Segreto, psychology, said that the sub-committees will all research aspects of total well-being which includes the physical, emotional, intellectual, spiritual, social and occupational.

Respondants to the Substance Abuse Sub-Committee's survey involved 894 YSU students (57.5 percent female and 42.5 percent male) and 551 full-time (57 percent female and 43 percent male) staff, administrators and faculty at YSU. The survey was distributed to 2000 students and 1200 full-time personnel.

Students and personnel responses in fitness and nutrition and emotional social sections of the questionnaire were for the most part positive. Yet, 32.2 percent of the students and 39.1 percent of the personnel said relaxation time was not a part of their routine.

The substance abuse percentages for students revealed that while use of other substances besides alcohol was minimal, there should be some concern over the pattern of alcohol usage. The majority of YSU students are below the drinking age.

*6.3 percent reported drinking daily,

*47.5 reported drinking at least once a week,

*20.1 percent get drunk on a monthly basis.

*9.4 percent get drunk on a weekly basis.

The number of drinks consumed by students during any one drinking period was:

*10 or more, 28.8 percent,

*7 to 9, 17.4 percent,

*4 to 6, 21.1 percent.

Almost half (44.1 percent) reported driving a motor vehicle shortly after three or more drinks.

Personnel reported less frequent drinking and less problem drinking. In fact 79.5 percent reported never getting drunk in the past year.

Jain Savage, coordinator for Substance Abuse Services, said the drinking statistics among the students reflects a need for more emphasis on educating students about the dangers of alcohol. "We're not saying not to drink at all, but to do so moderately and know your limit," she said.

Robert Robinson, YSU Campus Police, said "Criminal activity is on the rise," adding that normally good people are arrested for crimes committed under the influence of alcohol.

Segreto said all the committees under the Holistic Health Committee will probably come together to recommend that YSU fund additional resources — perhaps a Wellness Center — and health education for its staff and students.

It's a joke

Bart becomes a brat to principal

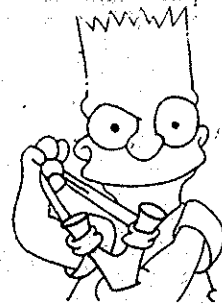

The newest cartoon fad, Bart Simpson, has become a thorn in the side of the principal of Lutz Elementary School in Ballville Township, Ohio.

Principal Bill Krumnow has ordered students not to wear any more Bart T-shirts. Krumnow said that the cartoon character promotes incompetence and brags about being an under-achiever. All of these contradict the school's goals, said Krumnow.

If Krumnow bans Bart T-shirts, then he should also ban other shirts promoting violence, sex, and alcohol abuse.

Would he rather have his students wear a Bart or a Guns-n-Roses T-shirt?

Krumnow's idea of banning Bart will not be effective if he does not enforce a ban on other T-shirts that make light of serious social problems.

Krumnow's new rule is about as funny as Bart.

Bart Simpson is probably not going to replace parental guidance. I doubt a cartoon character would influence children to become under-achievers.

Still time for students to vote and make a difference at YSU

There is still time for YSU students to make their voices heard at the polls. Today is the last day to vote in the Student Government elections.

Just a meager 1,000 students cast their votes in last year's election.

If YSU is to become a more active campus community, then it must start today by voting.

Voting polls will be open all day in Kilcauley Center and Jones Hall until the evening when the poll will be moved to the Maag Library.

The process of voting takes less than five minutes, so it is hardly an inconvenience.

The Jambar urges all students to do their part and vote for the candidates of their choice.

Your vote will make a difference.

COMMENTARIES

Earth Day should be every day

Another Earth Day has come and gone and the only question I have left to ask is: how many people are still in the "Save the Earth" spirit?

Since its beginning in 1970, Earth Day has carried with it the tremendous ability to rouse people's spirits to convert to recycling, conservation and to devote time to the overall desperate struggle to save our planet.

But it seems like every year, come Monday morning when the masses get up to go to work or school, the spirits of the day before are back at rest.

Like a new year's resolution, people quickly forget and continue to toss away that styrofoam plate that once held their breakfast, leave the water running while they brush their teeth, rev the engine of a pollution-causing auto and so on and so on.

Don't get me wrong, I don't see Earth Day as a bad thing. Yet I have to wonder why there's only one single declared "Earth Day" of the year? The Earth is here everyday for us, so why shouldn't we be here everyday for the Earth?

Gary Hall

According to the March 26 issue of The New American, the first Earth Day focused national attention on environmental problems. That year, an estimated 20 million Americans participated — "almost all of them motivated by a sincere desire to improve or safeguard the environment."

The organizers for this past week's event, it said, hoped that it would have a "galvanizing effect greater than that of Earth Day 1970." Said Christina Desser, the executive director of Earth Day 1990, "Whereas 1970 awakened people to the issues, 1990 needs to make the environment the screen through which all other

I don't waste my time on the phone

I just want to know why anyone would call a phone number like 1-900-999-CHAT.

It seems fine to say that they're lonely, but if you think about it, what type of people do you honestly think they'll be talking to?

That's right, you guessed it. Other lonely people who have nothing better to do than sit in a dark corner of their house and talk to total strangers.

This advertisement, which I saw while I sat in a dark corner of my room watching T V, claimed that this phone conversation was going to be the most exciting party in town.

Well, I thought to myself, Self, this could be the answer to the bar scene.

Don't ya know that that was the next line emitted from my 18 inch, color, portable, combination TV/VCR, remote control, Sony television set.

I could not believe it. I said to myself, Self, the next thing they're going to tell me is that Sam Malone and Rebecca Howell on NBC's Cheers were going to sleep together on the next show, after they are brought together through this wonderful new telephone service.

Alas, I was mistaken and this Campus must stop using chemicals

Dear Editor:

Last Sunday, April 22, 1990, was Earth Day. This day has been set aside for the last 20 years to make people aware of environmental problems facing us, and to the possible solutions currently available.

I watched a television special Sunday concerning the Earth's condition and was moved. I watched the grounds crew place their little "chem lawn" signs around campus on Monday and was enraged!

I just don't understand how a facility of higher education, an institution that encourages independent thinking, can justify this blatant disregard for environment or the future students of YSU.

YSU is looked to by the community as a trend setter. If we continue to infect the soil with chemicals, then what role model will the people of Youngstown have to follow? Shouldn't we, in our capacity as trend setters, be showing the way to a healthier environmental lifestyle, instead of being polluters ourselves? Is having a beautiful, albeit contaminated, campus more important than having a world in which to have that campus?

I'm not too wild about chemically treating the grass on campus, yet I pay for it to be done. A portion of my considerable tuition goes, without my permission or approval, to the upkeep of the University grounds. I suppose that this makes me a polluter, too. It also makes you one.

I don't know how many of you have children now, or might want children in the future, but if we don't stop the destruction of this planet now, there won't be a need for children. There will be no planet for the children to live on if we can't learn to live with the planet that we have here today. I want something to be here for my kids when they grow up, and in order for that to happen, we need to take the first step. The first step for the students of YSU is to band together and let President Humphrey and administration know that they need to put a stop to the treatment of the grounds with chemicals.

If enough of us voice our opinion, a change just may occur. We have nothing to lose, except our planet.

Think about it, President

Humphrey; think how nice it would be to lounge on the lawn, or chew absentmindedly on a blade of grass, knowing that it was free of chemicals. Think of how happy your athletic department would be if given the money allocated for weed killers.

I want the students of YSU to write a letter to the President's office and tell him where they stand on this issue. Hopefully, it's on a lawn free from chemicals, for everyone's sake.

Susan Spencer Helmick
Junior, A&S

Spraying of grass must be stopped

Dear Editor:

In the wake of Earth Week, here at YSU the pesticide warning signs have once again appeared over the lawns. What is particularly irksome is that this poison is applied for merely cosmetic reasons. It does not seem to serve any purpose other than to create a perverted sense of what constitutes well-ordered grounds.

I would like to suggest to the University administration that the suburban aesthetic of a grass monoculture is killing us and that they, of all people, should take the initiative on enlightened behavior and stop spraying.

James Lucas
Professor, Art Department

Earth

decisions are made."

Earth Day 1990 brought with it a new concept: an extension around the world to "dramatize the global nature of environmental 'crises'." Earth Day founder Gaylord Nelson was quoted as saying that Earth Day 1990 would be the "largest grass-roots demonstration in history. I think the pressure is building now so that political leaders can't blink at it."

It's a sad commentary that it's not only political leaders who are blinking at it, but people right in our backyard. In fact, most of them are not just blinking, they're keeping their eyes fully closed.

Witness an event that took place right on the YSU campus this past week. The rock, one of YSU's longest running traditions, was painted for the occasion. What lay around it as the week progressed? Piles of discarded trash. Perhaps it was someone's idea of a sick joke. Funny, I'm not laughing; in fact, the joke is on all of us.

The desecration of the Earth is not just something to read about and forget. It's very real and it's time to prevent further damage, if not give back what we took from the planet.

Mother Earth is counting on us.

We've got the whole world in our hands. Are we going to let it slip through our fingers?

did not occur.

Sorry if I strayed.

Now, let's get back to the problem at hand.

What I want to know is who gave these people permission to make up these stupid party lines [for this is not the only one feeding off this country's shut-ins].

Maybe, they're all part of a plot to make those who call as stupid as the commercials that promote the services.

I'm not sure who came up with the idea, but do ya think people actually call these numbers?

I must confess that I did not call 1-900-999-CHAT.

Why, you ask?

Simple.

Maybe, it's because I have a pulse.

Besides, I rather sit in a dark corner of my room all alone before I paid someone to let me talk to some loser on the phone.

I mean, hey, I could go to the mall for that.

Police receive reports of vandalism, criminal mischief

By GARY HALL
Jambar News Editor

Vandalism at the new dormitory site on Madison Avenue and a broken car window discovered by a student parking attendant were the topics of reports filed at the YSU Police Station.

According to the report, on Thursday, April 26, an officer was dispatched to the dorm construction site to take a report of damage that had occurred to one of the contractor's trailers.

The officer spoke with the foreman, who told him that someone had thrown a beer bottle through one of the north two foot by two foot glass windows of his blue trailer, causing an estimated $40 in damage, the report said.

The foreman advised that the incident occurred sometime between when he locked the trailer and left the site, at 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 25, and when he returned to the site that morning at 7 a.m., the report stated.

According to the report, the foreman also stated that in the past the trailers have been broken into and that they have lost a coffee machine and sets of walkie-talkies, as well as sustaining "thousands of dollars of damage to the pipes and conduits that are installed in the new dorm site."

The report also said that the foreman said that the balustrades of the front porch of the building across the street have been thrown through the windows and at the building itself, and are still on the ground next to the building.

In another report, criminal mischief was discovered on Monday, April 23, in the east end of the M-8 Parking lot located on Bryson Street by a student parking attendant.

According to this report, Thomas Rydarowicz, the student assigned to patrol that lot, informed police that he discovered a broken driver's side window of a maroon 1978 Chevy Camaro.

There was glass on the ground and in the front seat, the report said, and it could not be determined if anything had been stolen at this time.

YSU fraternities and sororities present Greek Sing

YSU — YSU's sororities and fraternities will present the 38th annual Greek Sing at 7 p.m. Friday, May 4, in Stambaugh Auditorium.

The public program is an awards banquet for the Greek organizations and features the five sororities and seven fraternities belonging to the YSU Interfraternity Council.

Nationally affiliated fraternities Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Theta Chi, and nationally affiliated sororities Alpha Sigma Tau, Delta Zeta, Phi Mu, and Zeta Tau Alpha, along with a local sorority Xi Delta Gamma will participate.

Music instructors will judge the groups on tone intonation, interpretation, articulation, diction and appearance during the open and formal performances. The formal class allows seven minutes and 30 seconds for one song or a combination of songs. Open class allows only four minutes but greater freedom in musical accompaniment.

Trophies will be awarded for the best musical performances. Additional awards to be given are Sorority Woman and Fraternity Man of the Year; Outstanding Scholarship; Fraternity of the Year; All-Sports; and Panhellenic, Interfraternity and Greek Activities Council service awards.

Each year Greek Sing is dedicated to one or more individuals. The dedication is announced at the event.

Greek Sing was initiated in 1953 on the Youngstown College campus by the Phi Mu sorority. Groups were required to sing two songs, one of which had to be a sorority or fraternity song. No costumes or props were allowed at the event, which was held in the former Strouss Memorial Auditorium in Jones Hall.

The event progressed to become the highlight of the Greek system's year, with more than 3,000 spectators attending in 1988. Gateway Recording Company of Pittsburgh recorded an album of the event in 1989.

Participation peaked in 1978 with nine fraternities and five sororities vying for the singing awards. The first open class was initiated in 1983 to encourage more groups to participate.

Greek Sing remains the climatic conclusion to the Greek year at YSU. Groups begin practicing months in advance for the $2,500 event. Sorority and fraternity members raise funds by selling ads in the program brochure created by YSU's Graphic Center.

Tickets are $3 and may be purchased at the Information Center in Kilcawley Center. For more information, contact Carol Sorenson, activities assistant in Kilcawley Center, at ext. 3161.

Most High, Christian rock group to perform in Sharon

On Saturday, May 5, 1990, Most High will debut its special brand of music at the Sharon High School Auditorium on East State Street in Sharon, Pennsylvania.

The band hails from the Youngstown, Ohio, area and has been together since mid-1989. Their playlist of all-original tunes has a hard driving style, similar to the sounds of Whitesnake and Dokken.

In addition to offering a quality rock atmosphere featuring high energy, stage fog and choreography, Most High embraces a positive and uplifting message that speaks directly to today's questions and issues. Their music meshes the new sounds of heavy metal and the old message of Jesus Christ.

The concert event, sponsored in part by the radio station WKTX 96.7 out of Mercer, Pa., will be videotaped by Forerunner Productions to be aired on "Ten/29," a local cable video show featured on Mahoning Valley Cable's channel 29, at a future date.

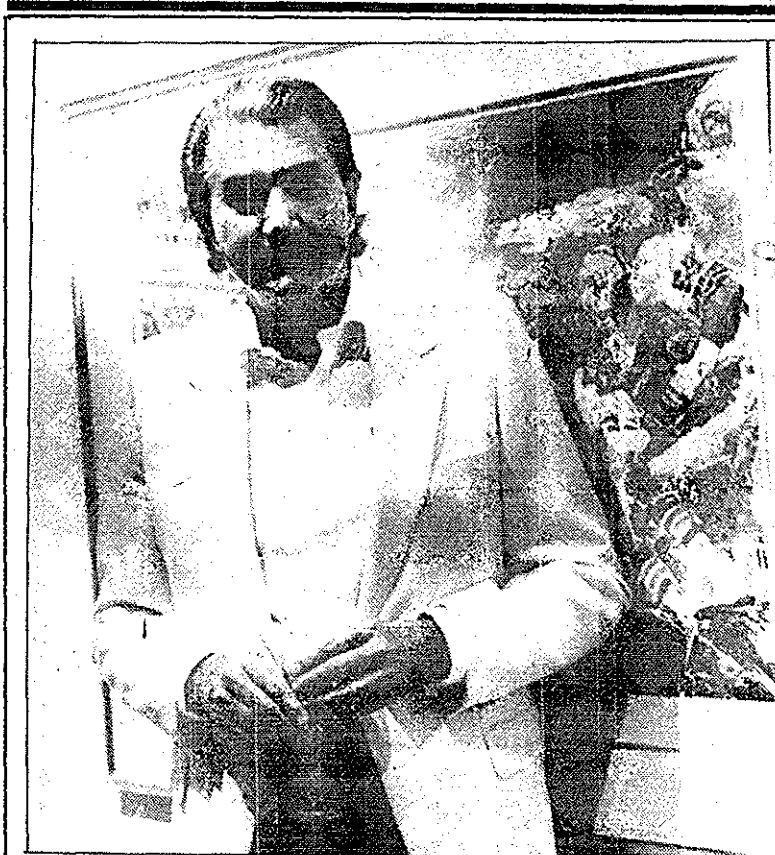

Most High is currently receiving national exposure with their four-song demo tape through various radio stations and magazines across the country. Copies of the cassette will be available to the public the night of the performance.

Sharing the evening with Most High will be fellow metal act Whitehorse from Greenville, Pa.

Tickets are priced at $5 each and will be available at the door the evening of the show. The doors will open at 7 p.m.; the show will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m.

Sound will be provided by Sonic Sound and lighting by Spectra Lighting.

Youngstown Symphony pays tribute to Broadway music

YOUNGSTOWN — Broadway comes to the Edward W. Powers Auditorium on Saturday evening, May 5, when guest conductor Bob Lappin joins the Youngstown Symphony for a concert of music by Andrew Lloyd Webber.

The program, which will also feature music by Jerome Kern, George Gershwin and Lionel Ritchie, will begin at 8:30 p.m. and will be the final performance in the Orchestra's 1989-90 John W. and Dorothy B. Ford Pops Series.

This concert is sponsored in part by a generous gift from PaineWebber.

For more than a decade, Andrew Lloyd Webber has been the hottest composer on Broadway with hits such as Phantom of the Opera, Cats, Evita, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Jesus Christ, Superstar, Song and Dance and Starlight Express.

The entire second half of the Youngstown Symphony program will be devoted to the most popular music from those shows.

Joining Mr. Lappin will be vocalists Bonnie Schon and David Chaney, both of whom have performed extensively on Broadway as well as with major theatrical companies throughout the United States, Canada, and Europe.

Conductor/pianist Bob Lappin is former Musical Director of the Hartford Symphony, a member of the Big Band Hall of Fame and an innovative recording artist and broadcaster.

A member of the musicians union by the age of 12, he created the "Music of Your Life" format for radio and also served as music director for the McGuire Sisters.

Recently, Lappin has been elected to the Board of the Connecticut School of Broadcasting.

For tickets to the Youngstown Symphony's May 5 Pops Concert, contact the Symphony Office at 260 Federal Plaza West, (216) 744-0264.

Giving it their all:

The University chorus will present a Night at the Theatre at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, May 2. Included in the performances are choruses from Aida, Carmen, Porgy and Bess, H.M.S. Pinafore and The Pirates of Penzance. The night concludes with Johan Strauss' Die Fledermaus, and a presentation of Andrew Lloyd Weber's Phantom of the Opera.

English Society needs writers

YSU — Submissions are being sought for a new magazine to be published monthly by YSU's Youngtown English Society.

A variety of material will be considered, including essays, features, poems, short stories, graphics, book reviews, restaurant reviews, art and cartooning.

Submissions are open to the public and may be sent to the Youngtown English Society's mailbox in the Student Government office in Kilcawley Center or in the English Department.

The magazine will be published monthly. Works submitted will be chosen for publication based on writing competency.

The material will be evaluated by a review panel consisting of the five officers elected by the society's members and five society members appointed by the officers.

offense to six, which fell short of St. Francis's seven.

On Sunday, April 29 the Penguins moved on to Clarion University where they suffered two defeats, 6-3 and 5-4.

Despite the losses the women performed well. In game one YSU exploded with back-to-back homers in the first, by Michelle McKee and Becky Brenda, to jump out to an early lead.

In the end the Penguins fell short as they scored only one more run during the rest of the game on a solo shot by Croft.

Hitting their first three home runs of the season, along with seven other hits, the women still lost the contest 6-3.

In the second contest Chris Timko hit two of YSU's four hits as they suffered their fourth loss of the weekend with Croft taking the loss on the mound.

Feeling the pain of committing six errors to Clarion's one, YSU lost the contest 5-4. The Penguins also committed four errors to Clarion's two in the first game.

The Penguins will take to the diamond this afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in a scheduled doubleheader against Mt. Vernon Nazarene at Harrison Field.

Yesterday's doubleheader with Edinboro University was cancelled.

YSU's men's tennis team defeats Case

YSU's men's tennis team is back on the winning track as they defeated Case Western Reserve 8-1 on Sunday, April 29.

According to YSU Head Coach Don Getz his team played intelligent tennis and capitalized on the coaching mistakes of Case Western Reserve.

Scoring the first win in the match, was number one seed Dan Haude as he defeated Case's Doug Burhanna 6-2, 6-1.

Playing second seed was Tim Hughes who came away with a 6-0, 6-2 victory.

Playing as number three for the Penguins was Brent Emmitt who defeated Case's Sarat Nalluri 6-1, 6-2.

Also scoring wins for the Penguins were Rob Stell [6-4, 6-2] and Dan Salcedo [6-4, 6-3].

In doubles action, the Penguins turned in strong performances with the team of Hughes and Emmett winning 6-2, 6-2, Haude and Stell winning 7-6, 6-4, and Tim Cianciola and Salcedo winning 6-3, 6-1.

Montana brings his magic to the Butler

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Editor

There were two kinds of art at the Butler Institute of American Art on Saturday.

One was the paintings of LeRoy Neiman, the other was San Francisco 49er quarterback Joe Montana.

Joining Montana from the 49ers were head coach George Seifert, former wide receiver Dwight Clark, and owner Edward DeBartolo Jr.

All were part of a benefit for the Butler Institute of American Art which was organized by Candy DeBartolo.

Even though the 49ers have won the last two Super Bowls, Montana said football is just a form of entertainment.

"When the game is over, you have to remember it was just a game and life goes on," said Montana.

Seifert, who was the only NFL coach to ever win a Super Bowl his first year as head coach, said family atmosphere and dedication are two reasons for the team's success.

"[Mr.] DeBartolo makes everyone feel like a family," said Seifert. "He treats everyone on an equal basis."

"We're dedicated to winning," he said. "We don't rebuild, we just reload our cannons."

Before becoming the 49ers' head coach after Bill Walsh retired, Seifert was one of the leading candidates to become the Cleveland Browns' head coach.

He said his roots in the San Francisco area was one of the reasons for not leaving the 49ers.

Seifert said he was happy about the recent 49ers' draft picks and first-round selection Dexter Carter from Florida State University.

"We dealt more with specialists," said Seifert. "Dexter's quickness was a key factor in his selection."

Seifert also said that Carter would be developed slowly.

Clark, who is remembered for "The Catch" against the Dallas Cowboys in the 1982 play-offs, said he doesn't mind if that is what he is most noted for.

"It helped the team get to the Super Bowl," said Clark. "That's all that matters."

Clark said the famous play did not really "sink in" until a day or two after the game.

"That night I went right to bed because I wasn't feeling well and the game took a lot out of me," said Clark. "I really didn't see the replay until the next day or so."

Mrs. DeBartolo announced that $75,000 was raised for the Butler.

Neiman, whose art was on display, said he sketches brief drawings on the sidelines during a sporting event.

"Just like [Joe] Montana remembers a receiver will be at a certain spot, I remember those certain plays," said Neiman.

Addressing the crowd: San Francisco 49er's quarterback, Joe Montana was at the Butler Saturday evening for a benefit dinner.

YSU's softball team wins one, drops two

RICHARD M. JENKINS
Jambar Sports Editor

This weekend YSU's women's softball team dropped three games in a four game weekend.

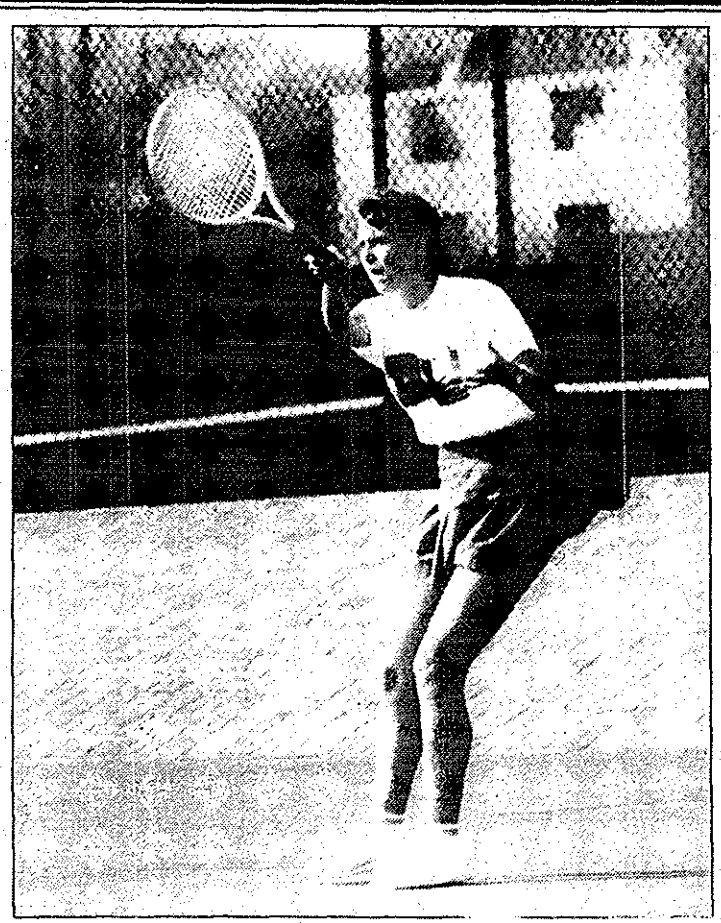

Playing in two doubleheaders, one on Saturday against St. Francis (Pa.) College and one Sunday against Clarion University, the Penguins are now at 16-22 on the season.

On Saturday, April 28 the Penguins met St. Francis and started off the weekend with a 5-4 victory behind the pitching and hitting of Julie Croft.

Croft led the Penguins earning the win on the mound and also chalking up two hits.

In the second game the Penguins dropped a 4-3 decision with Chris Rohan going the distance and receiving the loss.

Supply some offense for YSU were Marla Penza and Croft who both had two hits a piece. These four hits weren't enough as they brought YSU's total of

Spring football prepares for Red-White scrimmage

The Jambar—The annual Red-White football scrimmage will take place this Thursday, 8:15 p.m. at Stambaugh Stadium.

The annual draft of teams for the spring game will take place today, 3 p.m., in Stambaugh Stadium with practice for both squads taking place from 3:30-4:30 p.m. on the stadium's turf.

The honorary coaches for this year's team are Student Government/Sororities versus The Jambar/Fraternities.

"The spring game is kind of a fun wrapup to spring drills," said YSU Head Football Coach Jim Tressel.

Those who attend the game can see sophomore quarterback Ray Isaac battle senior Frank Edie and sophomore Nick Cochran. Isaac, who was the Penguins' starting quarterback last season after battling Edie and James Stanford for the job, appears to be the leading candidate for the starting job come fall.

"At this point," Tressel said, "you have to say [Isaac] is well ahead of the game."

After 15 practices this spring and only two more to go, Tressel said he has been impressed with the team's depth in the offensive backfield.

The Penguins have Leo Hawkins and Lou Sfara sharing the fullback position while Hawkins and Archie Herring will share the tailback position. But that's not all the Penguins have in the backfield. They also have Tamron Smith and Michael Cheat.

Tressel recently praised the play of Ghent and Smith, especially the 5-foot-8 Smith, who will receive playing time at both fullback and tailback.

"I'm really excited about the play Tamron Smith," said Tressel after last Thursday's intrasquad scrimmage. "He's always making the big plays. Everytime I turn around he's making a big play."

Another area Tressel said he is pleased with is the inside linebacker position. Tressel came into spring drills looking to replace Paul Soltis and Mike Cochran, who were the team's leading tacklers last season. He said is pleased with the play of Kevin Brown and-
