'RAP' will continue

By FRANK MELILLO
Jambar News Editor

The Racial Awareness Program (RAP) here at YSU has responded with positive action to last week's visit by African-American activist Dr. Harry Edwards by reestablishing weekly discussions about racial issues.

Rev. Jim Ray, Protestant advisor at Cooperative Campus Ministry, and Michelle Murphy, coordinator of minority student services, first initiated the group meetings last winter.

According to Jim Ray, the showing of Spike Lee's "Do the Right Thing" last year in the Chestnut Room really sparked the idea. The place was absolutely packed and it amazed him that on a cold winter day so many kids wanted to see this movie.

The real shocker to Ray was the 50 or so students who showed up the next day to discuss the movie in the Chestnut Room. He then decided with Michelle Murphy that they were going to establish a forum for students to meet weekly and discuss racial issues.

"We wanted to bring the black and white students together and talk about the problem of racism," said Ray.

However, Ray added that attendance ultimately dwindled and the group ceased to continue meeting.

On a positive note though, the super turnout for the Edwards' lecture has further sparked a hope for more participation from the University community, thus the group is seeking to launch itself again and reestablish.

"After seeing the turnout [at Edwards' meetings], I believe there are still some people who want to keep meeting," said Ray.

The meetings will be held from noon-1 p.m. every Thursday in Kilcawley Center, Room 2068. It is co-sponsored by Minority Student Services, Counseling and Health Enchantment Services and Cooperative Campus Ministry.

Ray also noted that a brochure has been in the making since the school year began, and once it is complete the program plans to disseminate them throughout the campus. Also, a mailing list of students from last year's meetings is being used to solicit more students to come and participate.

AASU to unify African-Americans

By LAURA CAVUCCI
Staff Reporter

The members of the African American Student Union are not simply interested in having a good time. They are genuinely concerned with campus activities and the welfare of others.

The AASU was formed in the spring of '89 and has over 20 active members. The main purpose of the AASU is to unify African Americans on campus through social, political and ethical programming.

According to Rhonda Carter, president of AASU, there's not really many programs on campus which are geared towards the African American students and she would like that to change. "Something is definitely happening for the better... more blacks are getting involved, which is good," she said.

An open house is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 5 in Kilcawley's Art Gallery to let students become aware that there is an African American group on campus.

Carter said that she has invited some representatives from both black and white Greek organizations to come and hand out information. "We want everyone to be represented," she said.

Career Service seminars lead students in right direction

By FRANK MELILLO
Jambar News Editor

In the search for a job after graduation, it always helps to understand the pressures that you will be encountering and learn to meet them head on. Perhaps Career Services can help.

In the remainder of fall quarter, Career Services is offering four more seminars to benefit all students in sharpening their job search skills.

The first seminar will be held at 5 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 29. The first part of the seminar will focus on a Career Services orientation which will teach students how to get registered with the office.

Then at 6 p.m., the seminar will focus on personal recruiting.

The second seminar will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 30, and this is a four part seminar beginning at noon with a repeat of the Career Services orientation program.

The first part will focus on personal resume writing, and then at 2 p.m., Job Search Strategies will be presented, and finally at 3 p.m., interviewing techniques will be the focus.

Then on Monday, Nov. 5, at 5 p.m., Job Search Strategies will be highlighted again. Then at 6 p.m., interviewing techniques will ensue.

According to Lori Peters, graduate assistant at Career Services, the seminars are good for students on campus of all statuses to attend.

She cited that the personal writing seminar can even benefit freshmen. She added that they can get started now as freshmen by recording the right information down and incorporating it later when it comes time to write the resume as a senior.

"You really want to get started when you're a freshmen if in fact you want a well-balanced resume when you're a senior," said Peters.

From personal experience, she noted that the Resume Writing is most beneficial to undergraduates, but seniors should attend all the seminars to help them with their job searching.

Peters continued by highlighting other beneficial Career Services programs for all YSU students.

One she noted is called the Discover program, and it is a computerized user friendly career guidance program which can help lead a student toward a certain path or major.

"You go on the Discover computer and you ask it questions and then it pops up different possibilities for you," said Peters. "It won't tell you exactly what you should go into, it just gives you options."

Another service is an on and off-campus employment program which requires students to simply come in and fill out an application in Career Services.

Lastly, Career Services offers a Career Information Center. Peters noted that the center is a wealth of video information about career related topics and a host of written material is available.

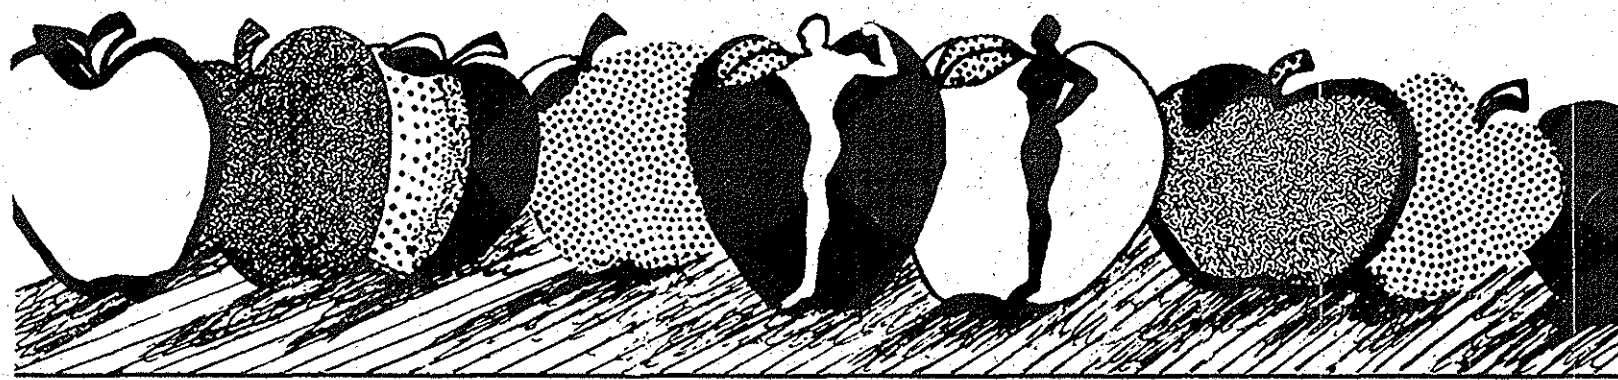

Peters added that there are over 300 video presentations on career-related topics in their video library.

Peters extremely emphasized that seniors should start thinking of registering at Career Services now in order to be eligible for on-campus recruiting and resume referral services.

All Career Services seminars will be held in room 310, Jones Hall and are put on by the director and coordinators of Career Services.

"The director (Charles H. Whitman) would like to see more of every student at the seminars," said Peters.

Test to determine students' engineering aptitude

High school students considering a career in engineering have until Nov. 9 to sign up for the National Engineering Aptitude Search Test.

The exam, designed to help high school students determine their aptitude for engineering studies, will be conducted from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Dec. 15, in Room B024 in Cushman Hall.

YSU's engineering technology department will administer the test, which will be offered again on Saturday, April 20. Registration for the Dec. 15 exam must be postmarked by Friday, Nov. 9 and for the April 20 exam by March 15.

Students interested in taking the exam should contact their high school guidance counselors or call YSU's engineering technology department at 742-3287 for a registration form. The $15 fee must be mailed with the registration form.

The test will cover mathematical understanding, science reading and reasoning, and conceptual and visual problem solving.

Freshmen and sophomores will take one exam while juniors and seniors will take another. A comprehensive test score and interpretive guide will be mailed directly to each student's home.

She is also interested in seeing some type of Greek unification activity take place in the near future.

"I would like to see a unity council formed that comprises representatives from black and white Greeks so that they can get together and do one or two projects a year. Maybe a unity dance or something like that," Carter said.

The organization is also interested in getting guest speakers to discuss topics on racial issues and issues dealing with education.

A forum has been organized to discuss different topics weekly. This week's topic deals with African Americans who join predominately white organizations and ones who join predominately black organizations.

Every spring quarter AASU has an anniversary dinner featuring a guest speaker. A trip to an African American museum, a swim party, some dances and a bake sale are also on the agenda for this year.

Last year AASU sponsored a Christmas party for preschoolers from ABC Corral Day Care. About eight to ten children were taken to McDonalds for a party and given two gifts each. Carter said hopefully they can do the same this year.

She also stressed the importance of getting involved in student activities. "I personally feel that when somebody is involved in student activities on campus, it helps them develop leadership qualities," said Carter.

Students are required to be in good standing and pay a fee of $10 quarterly in order to join. AASU meets every other Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Room 2069 in Kilcawley.

First Amendment upheld in Crew case

The First Amendment does protect speech, even nasty speech," said Atty. Bruce Rogow at the hearing for 2 Live Crew "even four-letter words. The purpose of the Constitution is to keep the state from not liking something and putting people in jail."

According to the jury's decision in the case against the controversial rap group accused of violating obscenity laws in a concert on June 10 in Hollywood, the First Amendment does in fact possess the power to let people be "as nasty as they wanna be."

Three of the group's members faced the charges in a two-week trial "based largely on a mostly unintelligible recording of the concert," a tape that was said to have made the jurors red with laughter rather than with anger.

After hearing all the closing arguments, Broward County Circuit Judge June Johnson told the jurors that they would have to acquit the defendants if the panel found any "artistic value" in the group's show, "even if it appealed to prurient interests."

After about two hours of deliberation, the jury returned the verdict of "not guilty."

While the results of this case may be looked upon as a major victory in the battle against censorship, we must not lose sight that the war still rages on. There is still much to do to ensure and protect the freedoms and liberties that our forefathers fought so hard to gain.

This decision is in sharp, direct contrast to the verdict rendered in the case against Charles Freeman, a black record store owner convicted of "obscenity" charges for selling the 2 Live Crew album in his store. In the latter case, however, the jury rejected artistic merit as a defense.

What exactly constitutes "artistic merit"? And why is it that it is only up to a jury of six people to decide for the rest of the country?

Perhaps Atty. Bruce Rogow summed it up best when he said during the 2 Live Crew trial, "It's not a matter of taste. If you don't like it, you don't have to go to their concerts. But to deny those people who want to do it is to deny their freedom of speech. That's not what this country is all about."

Indeed, America is about the home of the brave, the land of the free and the right to choose.

Take these away and we become nothing more than a simpleton society in which no one dares think on their own.

Hoppers have no hope of happening

At first I thought it was a joke. I couldn't believe that Maharishi, the Indian guru best known for introducing meditation to the West in the '60's through the Beatles and other famous celebrities, was trying to be serious about offering advice on world peace and the problems in the Persian Gulf.

Dawn Marzano
Entertainment Editor

I wanted to give him the benefit of the doubt, so I continued to read the article I found in the Plain Dealer.

After I read the first few paragraphs I realized that some of the things he was saying were true.

Maharishi said that peace can only be stable if there is support and nourishment. But if there is fear, world peace can never be achieved.

I thought that was a pretty intelligent thing to say, but then he did it. He blew it. He started to talk about all of this far out stuff that only yoga addicts could relate to.

"No wise man fights the darkness. What he does is he does not deal with the darkness. He just brings the light. It's only necessary to read his existence... and the next day he'll be a changed man," Maharishi said.

I don't know about you but this struck me as a little weird.

Wait it gets better.

He thinks that there is only one way to end the conflict throughout the world and that is by flying.

For this type of flying, however, we don't need airplanes or helicopters. We only need our minds.

During this flying, meditators attempt to levitate, which they believe is possible when their brain waves reach an

Warfare ignites fear in hearts of all people

Why did I join the Ohio National Guard? I'm starting to ask myself this question, especially when I hear these reports of more reservists and guardsmen being called to join the troops in Saudi Arabia for the Persian Gulf crisis.

Katherine Lubanovic
Jambar Reporter

Well to be perfectly frank — I joined to get money for college. However, I've accepted my obligation to the United States Army and I have learned to be proud that I am trusted to defend its honor. I'll gladly accept my duty when called. I did for the Shadyside flood and perhaps I will for Operation Desert Shield.

But despite my pragmatic soldier instincts, there also remains a civilian whose life can be traumatically uprooted or instantaneously ended because I signed on that dotted line three years ago with lifelong aspirations of becoming a lawyer. I can't help but be concerned and scared out of my mind. If you can expect anything else, you must really not understand the origins or repercussions of this crisis.

Military technology has advanced so rapidly and with such extremes that soldiers spend months learning how to operate the weapons. We aren't the only side who has developed its weaponry.

The atrocities of chemical, biological, and nuclear warfare should ignite fear rather than patriotism in your hearts. Small releases of nerve agents can kill hundreds of people instantly. If you are unable to save yourself with an antidote, See Guard, page 5

Voice of the People

Don't fence me in, says student

Dear Editor:

For the next year (or more) lots and lots of people will have to repeatedly take the long way around an unusually empty construction site.

Why????????

Why hinder all the people who have gotten used to the convenience of the pedestrian bridge when they could just as easily have built their fence along the bridge instead of through it?

Why make all the off-campus people who attend events in Bliss Hall (who have finally learned the way from the third level of the parking deck to Bliss) re-learn their way to a University-sponsored event, probably on a dark and dreary evening?

Why even build the fence right now in the first place? Does anyone believe any real construction is going to take place in the cold-weather months?

P.S.: Can anyone out there even imagine the University allowing any type of barrier to be placed at any entrance to Beeghly or (horrors!!!) THE STADIUM?

Peace

altered state far beyond that of standard meditation.

Maharishi actually thinks that if a large enough number of hoppers get together and attempt to fly, their positive energy gives off such a powerful force that the entire world cannot help but be affected. (These people are called hoppers because they haven't actually achieved their wings yet, they only produce enough energy to hop around.)

I almost busted a gut when I read this. He even calculated the exact number of hoppers needed to accomplish this great task.

7,000 hoppers hopping together anywhere in the world and then meditating twice a day creates enough energy to generate world peace.

I just have one question. Why all of a sudden have we turned to this man for advice about the world? Are we that desperate?

The only way peace is going to be achieved is if we are all willing to come to a compromise with one another, and this is the only way.

Flying would be a nice added bonus but I just don't see it happening. Call me realistic.

Guard

If a soldier can survive such an attack, what kind of productive life can he or she have after suffering the scarring, pain, and long-term effects of such a tragic war?

Few people understand the effects of chemical war. Soldiers like myself have been exposed to gas momentarily in a closed room. The fear it instilled in me will probably remain forever. The choking, loss of breath, and total loss of bodily control can teach a person much about the value of life in those few moments.

What is all of this for anyway? It is simply for money. American soldiers perhaps may be fighting for a few hostages and a small country's freedom but isn't the fight really for cheap oil prices?

Isn't it really for control of a product America is addicted to? America consumes 30 percent of the world's oil and has only 6 percent of the world's population. Sounds pretty ludicrous that thousands of American troops are risking their lives for money. Personally I find it unfair that I have to risk my future for a few bucks.

Somehow I don't recall ever signing a contract to defend the checkbooks of Americans. I thought I was signing to defend America's honor and freedom.

I assure you that my attitude would be different if the civil liberties and freedoms of American citizens were at stake. But what really is on the line here?

Seems to me the only thing on the line are a few extra dollars that you have to put in your gas tank. I just don't find it necessary to die for that.

Schwartz heads new wave of candidates

PHILADELPHIA — By 4:30 in the afternoon, Allyson Schwartz has worn out her first shift of campaign workers. Even her vocal chords are having trouble keeping up with the pace she sets.

More than eight months and eight hours into her race for a Senate seat in the Pennsylvania Assembly, the energetic 41-year-old Democrat is looking for votes and volunteers at a meeting of law students. Smiling and rasping, she frames the question of her campaign with a neat soap-opera outline: "Can a pro-choice woman new to politics defeat an anti-choice incumbent?"

Schwartz is not the only candidate asking that question in 1990. In this much-heralded Year of the Woman, national attention has been focused on change at the top of the ticket. But optimism about a great leap in the number of women governors and U.S. senators is winding down as swiftly as daylight hours in darkening October.

If this is to be a year that women make serious gains, it may be better to look at the base. Twenty years ago only four percent of state legislators were women. That figure has more than quadrupled to 17 percent. This year, the state legislature races may be where, in sports-talk, we produce the farm teams for big-league politics.

This is the first election since the Supreme Court sent out a warning that the fate of abortion rights may rest with the states. As Sharon Rodine, chair of the National Women's Political Caucus says, "The states are where the action is. We've got pro-choice women from both sides of aisles, long-term activists, who are running themselves this year."

In many ways, Allyson Schwartz is a prototype of this new wave of candidates. And in many ways, Pennsylvania is a case study for pro-choice politics. A trained social worker and the mother of two sons, this trim, athletic-looking woman with gray streaks through her short curly brown hair, Schwartz came to politics with an issue, not just an ego. For 13 years, she was director of a non-profit women's health clinic that performed abortions. There, and as a deputy director of the city's health and human services, she knew what it was like on the other side of the legislature. "I spent time talking to the legislators. It was very frustrating," says Schwartz as we talk between campaign stops. "They didn't listen. They didn't think that the issues I cared about would make any difference to their political futures."

The Assembly she lobbied is overwhelmingly male. There are only 17 women among its 253 members, ranking Pennsylvania 46th among the states. It is also, and not altogether coincidentally, pro-life. The state's Abortion Control Act — among the most restrictive in the country — may be the Supreme Court's chance to overturn Roe.

Watching this, Schwartz said, "You know the expression, 'If we can't change their minds we have to change their faces?' I came to believe that."

Schwartz wanted someone to run against her state senator, Joe Rocks, a longtime legislator and pro-life supporter. Finally, she looked in the mirror and told herself, "I can do this. It's not rocket science."

Now she and Rocks are in the last stretch of a race watched not only for its impact on abortion but on party control of the state Senate. This race carries all the markings of national politics from big bucks to attack ads. Rocks has sent out virulent mailings portraying Schwartz as un-American, radical, not one of "us." In one piece, the photo of Schwartz, who is white, is darker than that of Mayor Wilson Goode who is black. Nevertheless, after days that begin with morning handshakes at the train station, that include sneaker-clad canvassing in the afternoon and house parties at night, the odds that this engaging newcomer will make it grow stronger.

It is axiomatic that pro-choice voters are not one-issue voters. Nor is Schwartz a one-issue candidate. But she is among more than 20 pro-choice women running against anti-abortion incumbents in Pennsylvania who hope they will provide a margin of victory. She's part of a pattern that has brought great numbers of women into races in Idaho, Maryland and New York as well.

"I feel that this is the next wave for those who worked on women's rights and children's issues," says Schwartz. "In the 70s, a lot of us focused on women's services, domestic violence, rape-crisis centers, discrimination. The next step as women is to be part of the political system. It's what we have to do."

When asked what makes it worthwhile, Schwartz, outsider and future role model, lights up with a mixture of pleasure and embarrassment. She tells a story.

The other night a volunteer went home to find her young daughter standing on a box in the living room delivering a speech to the chairs. Asked what she was doing, the next generation of women in politics told her mother, "I'm playing Allyson Schwartz."

Concerned scientist will examine global warming

YSU — Alden M. Meyer, director of climate change and energy policy issues for the Union of Concerned Scientists, will speak to the YSU community on Wednesday, Oct. 24, about ways to offset the greenhouse effect.

The lecture, being conducted during "Global Warming Week," begins at 7:30 p.m. in Kilcawley Center's Scarlet Room.

YSU's Students for a Healthier Planet are sponsoring the lecture.

Meyer has testified before Congress about energy issues and has conducted research and written numerous articles about nuclear power, electric utility issues and energy policy for 14 years.

A co-founder of the Safe Energy Communication Council, Meyer is working toward a master's degree in human resource and organization development at American University. He has a bachelor's degree in political science and economics from Yale University.

Meyer's presentation is part of Union of Concerned Scientists' nationwide campaign to put the United States on an energy diet to slow the greenhouse effect and enable the earth's natural defense mechanisms to go to work.

Ohio Festival offers sale, display of giant pumpkins

By HAROLD HARMON
Staff Reporter

The Pumpkin Festival in Circleville was the place to be on Oct. 17-20 if you either had a giant pumpkin for sale or wanted to buy one.

This annual event is Ohio's oldest and largest festival and dates back to 1903. Featured are the world's largest pumpkins as well as 100,000 lbs. of pumpkins on display.

One doesn't have to be a pumpkin displayer or buyer to enjoy the festival. Pumpkin eating is the favorite pastime.

This is the home of the world's largest pumpkin pie. The diameter was six ft., the weight 274 lbs. and ingredients accordingly apportioned.

Among the other attractions at the festival are flower shows, craft shows and displays of home grown fruit. The entertainment includes as many as 50 bands, 40 floats, rides games and concessions. Food, drinks and lodging are available for the 500,000 people who will pass through the festival.

Contests and competition include hog-calling, Miss Pumpkin show, pie-eating contest, egg toss and among others, pet competitions.

Many attractions are located nearby. There is the Pickaway County Historical Museum, the Ted Lewis Museum (Me and my Shadow), picnic areas, state and county parks and forests. The area has boating facilities, canoeing, fishing, hunting and other outdoor activities. Circleville has the world's only pumpkin water tower.

Circleville is located 25 miles south of Columbus. The farm land in the area is good for pumpkin as well as other crops. Proximity to Columbus means factory employment for the people living in the area. The Pumpkin Festival originated with the local farmers showing appreciation of this cash crop.

Giant pumpkins are not easily come by. It takes 200 lbs. to qualify for the giant pumpkin contest. Success is a pumpkin of at least 400 lbs. Size is the only factor of concern, ultimate use is immaterial.

Pumpkin

A four-way hook up connects Circleville with weighing in California, Nova Scotia and England, thus making the Pumpkin Festival an international event. Local growers compete for prize money. The international competition only gives unpaid recognition.

The first time a pumpkin was grown to exceed 500 lbs. was in 1984. Record weights now exceed 600 lbs. Pumpkins are carefully nurtured in attempts to achieve the desired size. Seeds are distributed within a circle of friends. As a pumpkin grows, the farmer observes the outer color and texture. About a month before harvest, the pumpkin's size has been attained. Weight will be added as the pumpkin fills in its insides.

The story is told of the wealthy women from Texas who had gone bananas over pumpkins. She flew into Circleville in an orange-colored jet, wore orange daily, her Texas hotel and home are orange and the airline she owned was known as Pumpkin Air. She wrote a cookbook on how to cook pumpkins. She bought so many pumpkins, she had to have another orange jet come to assist in getting herself and her purchases home. She paid $1,000 for a pumpkin weighing 414 lbs.

The moral of the story is, if you're not doing well in the lottery, have a green thumb, some of what else it takes to make pumpkins grow — try your luck. It could open the doors to a golden future. Otherwise, see you at next year's Pumpkin Festival.

Video program shows YSU in detail

By CATHI RAUB
Staff Reporter

YSU is introducing a new concept to the college decision process. This new idea is to visit YSU by video.

A four-minute program which gives an overview of the university campus and its programs was produced by YSU's media center and written by YSU publications office. YSU officials will be distributing the video to area high schools this week.

"All a school needs is the hardware for the video and they could see our campus in four minutes," said James R. Kraynak, director of admissions. He also mentioned that some of the videos will be hand-delivered to those high schools that permit YSU to speak to their students.

"We didn't want to give just facts and figures," said Floyd E. Jackson, director of YSU's media center. "We wanted the video to appeal to the students."

YSU is in the forefront of colleges incorporating videos to recruit students said Kraynak, but believes it will be quite common in the near future. He pointed out that it's nice for those students who don't have the opportunity to visit the campus.

Kraynak added that YSU is fortunate in that the video was produced by the media center who cooperated with the publications office. "Because of these two factors," he said, "the video can help, but if it turns out to be unsuccessful, we will not be hurt."

Kraynak said that the video is aimed at traditional service areas such as northeastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania, but he hopes that the video will also extend outside of these regions. Whether or not the video will boost enrollment, he is unsure. "It's too early to tell what kind of impact this will have on enrollment," he said.

Kraynak does not believe that a four-minute video will help someone decide whether or not to attend YSU. He does believe it will certainly help in the selection process and will encourage students to visit the campus and talk to administration about the various programs offered.

"The intent of the video is not to do our job," said Kraynak, "it is a supplemental device used along with a YSU catalog to give the student some type of feeling of what YSU is all about."

University decides to close for Halloween to stop school parties

CPS — Halloween, something of an unofficial national student holiday on many campuses, is becoming an official student holiday at one school this year.

Not all students, however, are happy about it.

"They wanted to stop the party," complained Ed Walthers, chief of staff of the student government at Southern Illinois University (SIU) in Carbondale.

In what is probably the nation's most extreme effort to halt student Halloween parties that often devolve into chaotic, violent street brawls, SIU is making all its students leave campus from Friday, Oct. 26 through Tuesday, Oct. 30.

SIU will shut all its dorms during the "holiday."

"We (the school's administrators) have discussed a midsemester break for years, but the Halloween situation hurried our decision," explained SIU President John C. Guyon.

The "situation" is the giant, unofficial Halloween parties that SIU students—soon joined by students and then nonstudents from all over the Midwest—have held annually since the mid-1970s.

As the years passed the party became progressively more chaotic, often breaking into drunken brawls. Injuries and property destruction became common.

Despite the formation of a Halloween Core Committee to coordinate increased police protection, street closings and bans on glass bottles, in 1988 the celebration spun completely out of control. More than 300 people were hospitalized with facial lacerations caused by broken bottles, one person was stabbed and a woman was raped, SIU officials reported.

Frustrated SIU and Carbondale officials then announced a series of measures to wind down the party gradually, finally killing it this year by driving most SIU students out of town for the weekend.

"The Student Senate is opposed" to the forced holiday, Walthers said.

While Walthers thought the break would be good for students' studies, he thought the reasoning behind it was flawed.

Moreover, Walthers asserted some students who can't go home will have no place to stay during the break.

But SIU spokeswoman Sue Davis said the school had not heard any complaints from students who had nowhere to go, and the SIU would stick to its plan to close all its single-student dormitories.

Married housing would remain open, she added.

"This decision to close was made a long time ago," Davis said, giving students plenty of time to plan where to stay. "This is not news."

While SIU's closing is the most drastic effort to prevent

Students talk freely on true benefits of YSU guest speaker

By SUSAN KORDA
Jambar Copy Editor
By CHRIS LEONARDI
Staff Reporter

YSU, in conjunction with Student Government, is offering the community a unique and rather fortunate chance to hear Jello Biafra, ex-frontman for the Dead Kennedys, lecture about the issues surrounding censorship and artistic freedom at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 25 in Kilcawley's Chestnut Room.

The lecture is not just an event geared toward attracting ex-Dead Kennedy fans, but rather a forum for all concerned citizens to enjoy the rather eloquent and informative nature of Biafra's lectures.

On June 2, 1986 Biafra was arrested in California and charged with distributing harmful material to a minor. The alleged obscenity was a reproduction of the surrealist painting by Swiss artist H. R. Giger, inserted in the 1985 LP Frankenchrist as a poster.

The artist, incidentally, had won an Oscar in 1980 for his set design in the movie Alien. Although this certainly was not the first time an American artist was tried on obscenity charges, it helped to fuel the recent fire with which extremist right-wing groups have pursued the Bill of Rights and the artist's right to freedom of expression.

The jury was hung five-four in favor of acquittal, but Biafra's legal fees had by then surpassed the $75,000 mark, and subsequently, the Dead Kennedys career came to an end.

Not one to lay down and die in the face of the far-right's crusade, Biafra has spent the past few years lecturing to college audiences about the threatening environment that now surrounds not only musicians, but all artists.

His appearance could hardly be more timely, in concurrence with the recent trials of 2 Live Crew, Judas Priest, the Congressional battle over the fate of the NEA and the trial of Dennis Barrie, Director of the Cincinnati Contemporary Arts Center, for his display of the Robert Mapplethorpe exhibit and now, most recently, the accusation by a Georgia family that Ozzy Osborne was directly responsible for the suicide death of their son.

Biafra is also the founder of the San Francisco-based No More Censorship Defense Fund, which distributes an extremely professional and educational newsletter which focuses on issues of artistic freedom.

For more information on the lecture contact the Student Government office at 742-3591.

Party

student Halloween parties other schools are trying other measures.

In mid-September, city officials in Boulder, Colo., announced a plan to make it so hard for University of Colorado students to get to the local Halloween street party, held annually since 1909, that they won't try.

Previous efforts to make the party, known as the "Mall Crawl," safe generally have failed.

Beefing up security and changing the name to the "Boulder Boo" in 1989 did not prevent 40,000 people from jamming into a three-block area, climbing lampposts, breaking liquor bottles, trampling lawns and starting fights.

This year, city officials will surround the area with roadblocks and sobriety checkpoints to try to dissuade people from going to the mall.

Party bans have worked in the past.

When the annual Halloween party at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst whirled into in a 1979 riot in which students vandalized local stores, UMass officials imposed a five-year ban on Halloween parties.

There have been no unusual troubles at the smaller parties that grew up at the school after the ban.

Yet Halloween celebrations have turned dangerous at other campuses as well.

In 1985 at the University of Illinois-Champaign campus, windows were smashed, bonfires were lit, fistfights erupted and partygoers were showered with glass from broken beer bottles. A visiting Northwestern University student was struck in the head with a beer bottle, and lapsed into a coma. He later had to undergo brain surgery.

Student Government examines YSU's budget cuts

By JENNIFER T. KOLLAR
Jambar Assistant News Editor

"Eventually everybody and everything will be affected," said Student Government President Brian Fry in response to the upcoming budget cuts for the University. How the University will respond to the budget cuts and how Student Government will deal with the impact of the cuts was the major topic discussed at yesterday's Student Government meeting.

A memo from YSU president Neil D. Humphrey explained "how the state government has imposed a hiring freeze and other cost-cutting procedures upon state agencies due to a shortfall developing in revenues which is estimated at $300 million or more." According to the memo, certain actions have been ordered and are effective immediately. These actions include that "all departments are to reduce total operating expenses by 10 percent of the total amount authorized for 1990-91. In addition all administrators are requested to delay expenditures whenever it is feasible to do so and to allow only essential travel." According to the memo, "this order applies to all University funds listed on the 1990-91 operating budget document except restricted funds and auxiliary enterprise funds which do not receive general fee monies." "Everybody is going to suffer, the 10 percent budget reduction is a major problem," Fry said. Fry explained that "all traveling has been suspended and special exceptions are unlikely."

Fry continued to explain how the budget reductions will affect Student Government. "It's going to hurt us, especially in programming, advertising and travel," he said.

Although nothing is for sure, Fry gave examples of areas where he sees possible reductions will be targeted at. These areas may possibly be discount tickets for the Youngstown Playhouse voucher system, which according to Fry, "could very likely be discontinued." The Financial Appropriations Committee is another area that will affect Student Government. Financial Appropriations Committee allocates money to various organizations that request it. Fry added that "all further allocations (by the Financial Appropriations Committee) could be frozen indefinitely."

"I'm not happy. The University as a whole will be worse," Fry stated. He also explained that "the reduction is a very complex procedure and not an easy process, but we're doing it because we have to."

Don't forget to help support Students for a Healthier Planet as they participate in the nationwide Global Warming Week. Alden M. Myer, director of climate change and energy policy issues for the Union of Concerned Scientists, will speak to the Youngstown State University community on Wednesday, Oct. 24, about ways to offset the "Greenhouse Effect." The lecture, being conducted during Global Warming Week, begins at 7:30 p.m. in Kilcawley Center's Scarlet Room.

Youngstown editor wins award

Jim Villani, editor and publisher of Pig Iron Press of Youngstown, has been awarded the 1990 James P. Barry Ohioana Award for Editorial Excellence by the Ohioana Library Association of Columbus.

The Ohioana award for editorial excellence is presented annually to an Ohio-based serial (magazine, scholarly journal, series, or newspaper) that covers subjects of interest to the Ohioana Library — literature, history, culture, or the general humanities. The award is the highest citation for editorial achievement that is awarded in the state. The 1990 award will be presented to Mr. Villani at the Ohioana Library Association's annual meeting, on Saturday, Oct. 20, in Columbus. Editor and publisher Jim Villani also founded Pig Iron Press in 1975. He has published 16 volumes in the Pig Iron series since that time. The most recent volume, Labor & the Post-Industrial Age, was released in July of the present year, and explores the theme of work and labor — the American industrial heritage, industrial decline, and the changing shape of work in America. Eighty-one writers and artists from across the United States are presented in the collection.

Past volumes in the Pig Iron series include topics as diverse as science fiction, surrealism, baseball and the Vietnam war.

Pig Iron Press, incorporated as a not-for-profit institution in the state of Ohio, has received annual funding from the Ohio Arts Council since 1987, and has also received grants from the National Endowment for the Arts. The press's books are primarily distributed by mail order from the publisher; east coast distribution is handled by Ubiquity Distributors of New York City.

The Ohioana Library Association, founded in 1929, is dedicated to the encouragement of Ohio creative talent, to the dissemination of information about the works of Ohio writers and artists, and to the preservation of books by Ohioans or about Ohio. The association's fundamental purpose is to encourage and preserve Ohio's ongoing literary and artistic heritage. The James P. Barry Award is named after James Barry, the former director of the Ohioana Library Association, who retired in 1988.

Mr. Villani teaches writing and composition at the University of Pittsburgh and YSU. Also a writer and poet, Mr. Villani has been widely published in independent literary magazines, such as the Cincinnati Poetry Review (University of Cincinnati), Sun Rust (Westminster College), Ohio Journal (Ohio State University), Abraxis, and Wind Quarterly. In 1985 he received the "Ohio Poetry Day Special Award," first prize for a poem, and he has had two poetry chapbooks published by Fantome Press of Warren, Moment in Bronze (1989) and Stars on Lake (1988).

Mr. Villani also works in the Ohio Arts Council's "Artists-In-Education" program, teaching creative writing in Ohio primary and secondary schools. Most recently, in May of this year, he conducted a two week poetry workshop at St. Gerard Elementary School in Lima, where he worked

Hanging by a thread

YSU's Students for a Healthier Planet participated in the nationwide Global Awareness Week here on campus. The group positioned a globe hanging by a string to infer and continue to make people aware that the global crisis is for real and alive with topics such as global warming, acid rain, ozone depletion, over population and Endangered species. The display took place outside of Kilcawley Center yesterday morning.

On Wednesday, Oct. 24 and Thursday, Oct. 25, YSU's 5th annual Health Fair will be held in Kilcawley Center between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Playboy presents College Fiction Test to students

By GARY E. HALL
Jambar Editor

Someone once said that everyone has in them one good book.

For the sixth year, Playboy is offering college students a chance to, er, display their creative parts in their annual College Fiction Contest.

According to fiction editor Alice Turner, the program began in late 1985.

"At first," she stated, "I was really dismayed by it. I wanted nothing to do with it."

But after a little convincing, she decided to give the contest a shot. "It was my idea to make it student oriented," she said.

Turner said she now carries a highly different opinion of the idea.

"We're very committed to this contest," Turner said. "We've been pleased with the country-wide participation and the successful careers of past winners. Our winners have published six novels in the past four years, a wonderful record of which we are proud."

This year, Daniel Mueller, from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, joined the list of winners with his short story entitled "The Night My Brother Worked the Header," which is included in the pages of the October issue of Playboy.

In fact, said Turner, the first place winner will always have his or her story published in the October issue. "That's our college-oriented issue," she said.

In addition to the publication of his or her work, the winner also receives a cash prize of $3,000.

The second place winner receives $500, a prize that this year went to University of Arkansas student Patrick O'Connor for his work called "Savior."

Turner said there are usually a collection of third place winners who receive a variety of prizes, but only the first place story receives publication.

Entries are now being accepted for Playboy's 1991 College Fiction Contest. The competition is open to all registered under-graduate and graduate students. According to Turner, there is no age limit and the subject matter can be about anything at all.

Turner said that all entries should be approximately 25 typed, double-space pages or less, and must have been previously unpublished.

The address is:
College Fiction Contest
Playboy

680 N. Lakeshore Dr.
Chicago, Ill. 60611

Turner asks that all entries please include a standard 3 by 5 index card with name, address, phone number and college affiliation.

Deadline for all entries is January 1, 1991.

primarily with fourth and fifth graders. In July, Mr. Villani served as lecturer and discussion leader for a program on "Readings in Environmental Literature" at the Public Library in Kent, and sponsored by the Ohio Humanities Council. He will conduct another program in this series at the Public Library in Andover in October.

Mr. Villani is presently working on another anthology for Pig Iron Press. This next volume, Epistolary Fiction and the Letter as Artifact, will include fiction and poetry that uses the "Letter Form" as the vehicle for telling a story of describing the observed or experienced world. This collection will include imagined or invented letters, as well as real letters of historical or cultural value. The volume will be published in March of 1990.

Information and brochures about Pig Iron Press are available upon request from P.O. Box 237, Youngstown, Ohio 44501.

Bob Dylan to headline show at Cleveland Music Hall

CLEVELAND — Bob Dylan rolls into town for a one night only show at 8 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 17 at the Cleveland Music Hall. All tickets are reserved at $22.50, and went on sale this past Friday, Oct. 19 at the Cleveland Convention Center Box Office and all Ticketron locations.

Bob Dylan will be performing his staples as well as covering material from his new album, Under the Red Sky. Placed in a small, intimate setting, this will be a rare opportunity to see a living legend.

Belkin and Budweiser also present the return of Poison, with special guest Warrant. The Richfield Coliseum hosts these two top-charting bands at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 29. Tickets went on sale this past Friday, Oct. 19 at the Coliseum Box Office and all Ticketron locations. Reserved seats are $20.

Poison is hitting the top of the charts with their new single, "Something to Believe In" off of their recent release Flesh & Blood. The material on this album is a bit different from the previous releases, giving some thought to more serious topics.

Warrant, gaining a bit more of a harder edge, will be featuring new tunes from the album, Cherry Pie.

Judas Priest will appear along with special guest's, Megadeth and Testament at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 2 at the Richfield Coliseum Theatre.

Reserved tickets are $18.50 in advance, $20 day of show. Tickets went on sale this past Saturday, Oct. 20 at the Coliseum Box Office and all Ticketron locations.

Judas Priest has been experiencing much controversy these past months over their "satanic verses." After being acquitted of any wrong doing, they are back on the road hell bent for leather. The new album, Painkiller, is defined by lead singer Rob Halford as, "the antidote for annihilation." Some people just never change.

Speed metal returns to the Coliseum with two leaders in the genre. Megadeth, who have been praised for their technical abilities, come back to Cleveland with a new album, Rust in Peace. Frontman, Dave Mustaine, former member and co-founder of Metallica, writes lyrics that analyze the darker side of life with such songs

Auditions to begin for upcoming production at Oakland Theatre

YOUNGSTOWN — Auditions for The Boys Next Door, the third play of the season, will be held at 7 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 29 at The Oakland Center for the Arts.

The Boys Next Door is a very funny, very touching bittersweet comedy about four men who live together in a group home and the people who touch their lives.

The men, whose handicaps are as diverse as they are, remind us through the action that all of us, whether mentally handicapped or not, need some purpose and meaning in life and the opportunity to laugh, to love and be loved.

Director Alexandra Vansuch is seeking seven men and two women to fill the diverse roles of this play.

Jack is a young social worker, the independent living worker for these characters. Jack is sympathetic but beginning to suffer from burn-out.

Norman is a loveable character, a man who is unable to resist the pastries in the doughnut shop where he works. Norman is very proud of his keys.

Lucien P. Smith is a black man who has the mind of a five year old. Lucien hopes to improve his mind by carrying around weighty books.

Arnold is hyperactive, middle-aged and talks incessantly. Arnold also suffers from a persecution complex.

Barry is a brilliant schizophrenic who imagines himself to be a golf pro. Barry wants desperately to please his father.

The other two men needed to complete the male roles may be playing double parts.

A mature actor is needed to play the part of Barry's father and three roles may be doubled so that one actor is playing both Mr. Hedges, Mr. Corbin and Senator Clark.

The women's roles are that of Sheila, Norman's friend and the love interest in the play.

Sheila will require an actor who can portray some physical as well as behavioral manifestations of mental retardation. Mrs. Fremus, Mrs. Warren and Clara are all meaty parts that will be played by another versatile woman.

Although the play will not open until Jan. 11, Ms. Vansuch is conducting auditions early because of the delicate nature of casting this show and because the nature of the play requires research into characterization.

"The Boys Next Door is a wonderfully funny, touching piece of theatre that presents a marvelous challenge for actors. I'm proud that we've included this play in the Oakland season," Ms. Vansuch says.

Auditions will be held at the Oakland Center for the Arts, 1361 Fifth Avenue at Fairgreen on Youngstown's North Side.

Reading scripts can be made available by calling Ms. Vansuch at 746-0404.

Ballet fairytale slated to open in December

YOUNGSTOWN — Tickets are on sale now for the Ballet Western Reserve's command performances of the original ballet, "The Twelve Dancing Princesses." Produced for the second year running by popular demand, "The Twelve Dancing Princesses" will be performed at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 1 at Stambaugh Auditorium and at 4 p.m. December 2, and at Penn. State — Shenango campus at 8 p.m., Dec. 7 and at 2 p.m., Dec. 8.

The ballet, based on the original Grimm's fairy tale, is a blend of dance, theatre and Wushu, the athletic and graceful Chinese martial art.

Featuring dazzling princesses and swashbuckling princes, this medieval fairy tale set to dance is the story of 12 princesses who mysteriously wear out their shoes dancing each night, and the one man who must discover their secret.

The cast is comprised of members of the Youngstown Ballet Company, and students of the Ballet Western Reserve, as well as students of the Wushu Institute

Youth Board for Playhouse sponsors "Haunted Theatre"

YOUNGSTOWN — The newly formed Youth Board of the Youngstown Playhouse will sponsor a "Haunted Theatre" from 6:30 to 9 p.m., Oct. 28-31.

Admission is $1 per person and may be paid at the door.

The "Haunted Theatre" will feature a seance with Madame Zucchini, a mad scientist lab with Dr. Doogie Dracula, the Children of the Corn-y and the Garden of Evil Graveyard.

Because all of the participants are theatre ghosts, they will entertain their visitors as well as scare them.

The Youth Board was formed last spring to assist and support the activities of the Playhouse Youth Theatre.

It is made up of area youngsters age 12-18 who have participated in at least two years of Youth Theatre productions and have demonstrated a strong interest in the theatre.

Youth Board members have represented the Playhouse at various area events, such as Walk on Wick and Octoberfest, and will perform in the Mill Creek Park Centennial celebration and a special Christmas television program with WFMJ's Pamela Miles.

Students will also have the opportunities to further their knowledge in the business and technical areas of the theatre as well.

Penguins remain undefeated as they beat Dukes

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Sports Editor

The YSU football team didn't waste time crowning the Dukes of James Madison on Saturday as the Penguins improved to 8-0 after their 31-15 victory.

Turnovers and passing hurt the Dukes on the day.

"We (Dukes) put them in different spots all day," said James Madison Head Coach Joe Purzycki. "It was just a matter of time before they made the big play."

James Madison turned the ball over five times on eight fumbles and one interception.

As far as the passing goes, the Penguins came out throwing early as they finished with 173 yards through the air and 138 on the ground.

"We wanted to come out throwing," said YSU starting quarterback Ray Isaac.

YSU scored on their first possession as they drove 65 yards in five plays (three pass plays) when Ray Ellington made an acrobatic catch of Isaac's pass.

The Penguins took command of the game when quarterback Ray Isaac scampered 49-yards early in the third period to put YSU up 24-7.

Isaac said his first two options were to pass. "I was looking for the tight end across (the middle) or Ray (Ellington)," said Isaac.

"I think the turning point was no turnovers by the offense while the defense made them (James Madison) turn it over five times," said YSU Head Coach Jim Tressel.

"We forced turnovers and our defense played great," said Tressel.

In the first period, the Dukes tied the game when running back Leon Taylor broke loose on a 59-yard touchdown run.

The tie was short-lived as YSU's Jeff Wilkins made a 26-yard field goal just before the first period ended.

The only scoring in the second period came on a 28-yard touchdown pass from Isaac to Herbie Williams.

The Penguins other score came on Isaac's third touchdown pass of the day when he hit Troy Carter from four yards to make the score 31-7.

"It was a solid team effort," said Tressel.

"It took a good option assignment by the defense and a good job holding onto the ball by the offense," he added.

The Penguins never trailed throughout the game.

NOTEBOOK: With the win, the Penguins are the only football team in Division I-AA and I-A to be 8-0. . . . For the fourth consecutive week, the YSU came up on the short end of total yards. The Dukes finished with 343 total yards while the Penguins gained 311. . . . YSU's Archie Herring rushed the ball nine times for a season low six yards. . . . YSU's leading ground gainer was Tamron Smith with 49 yards on seven carries. . . . The Penguins had four sacks on the day. Alan Blythe, Kevin Brown, Marcus Evans and Leroy Adams all had one sack each. . . . With no game scheduled for Saturday, the team watched films on Monday and will practice in sweats today before practicing in pads on Wednesday. . . . The Penguins remain as the sixth ranked team in Division I-AA.

Wathen keeping busy trying to heal injuries

By RICK GEORGE
Jambar Sports Editor

Even though the YSU Penguins won on Saturday against James Madison, the victory was costly as many players suffered numerous injuries.

Head Athletic Trainer Dan Wathen said the injury list from Saturday's game was one of the biggest he has seen in his years at YSU.

Wathen said every season there is at least one game when there are numerous injuries. He compared Saturday's contest to last year's Western Kentucky game.

"The one good thing about this year's game, we at least won," said Wathen.

It is helpful the Penguins do not play this week said Wathen. "If there was a game, some might not be able to play or would be questionable," he said.

The fullback position was hit the hardest on Saturday, said Wathen, as Tamron Smith (ankle sprain), Lou Stara (knee strain) and Mike Rektis (pinched nerve) all were injured.

The Penguins will lose the services of two linemen for at least four weeks said Wathen.

Mike Simonsic suffered a broken fibula and Brian Wishak was to undergo arthroscopic knee surgery on Monday.

YSU places first in cross country meet

By CATH RAUB
Staff Reporter

YSU men's cross country team had a great finish this weekend as they came in first place at the Mount Union Invitational.

The women's cross country team fared equally well as Becky Rudzik came in first place with a time of 18:18.

Kevin Corby was YSU's top runner coming in second with a time of 24:30, third place finisher was Steve Boyd with a time of 24:52.

Eric Huth suffered an ankle injury at the four mile mark with a possible fracture.

Head Coach Jack Rigney commented, "The men finished strong with very respectable times."

The women's team came in fourth overall with a team score of 84.

Gamble makes adjustments to play safety

By KELLI LANTERMAN

"Anything to benefit the team." This was the attitude taken by senior football player Chris Gamble when he was asked to switch from offense to defense in his junior year.

Gamble, who attended Midpark High School in Cleveland, was recruited by Coach Jim Tressel as a quarterback in 1986.

He came to YSU and, like most freshman athletes, was redshirted his first year.

During his second year, he was a back-up to full-time quarterback Trenton Lykes.

Gamble got his chance to start at the position in his third year and started the first six games before second-string quarterback Frank Edie took over the position.

The transition from the offensive side of the ball to defensive came in the spring of his junior year.

"During spring ball, Coach Tressel asked me if I'd want to play defense. I guess he figured I'd get more playing time in, and there was more of a need for someone at the defensive back position than there was at quarterback," said Gamble.

"I'll go wherever I have to so I can play and help out my team," he added.

However, during spring camp, he sustained a shoulder injury which left him unable to play for most of the season.

Also, he said playing the position of defensive back gave him more of an opportunity to play on special teams.

"While I was playing quarterback, I didn't get much of a chance to become involved with special teams. I only held the ball when it was time for the extra point to be kicked," he said.

For Gamble, the transition to defensive back was not very difficult, nor was it totally new to him.

While still in high school, he was a defensive back until the end of his junior year. It wasn't until the last three games of his junior year that he played quarterback, which was the position he maintained during his senior year.

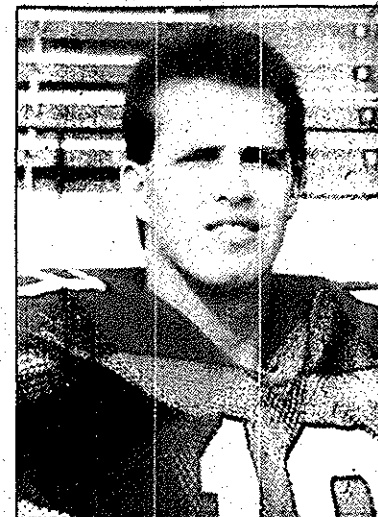

"Defensive back is a lot different than quarterback, but it's not easier like a lot of people think," he said.

"I don't think I had too much difficulty making the change. It's different because you have to decide what to do when the ball is snapped. You don't have someone there telling you. You have to know what's going on," said Gamble.

"Another thing is that the quarterback gets most of the spotlight. If you do well, you're the hero. If you don't, you're in big trouble," he said.

Two weeks ago, Gamble's work paid off to some extent when he received the Commercial Intertech Student Athlete of the Week Award.

This award is given to student athletes who excel on the field as well as off.

After winter quarter of 1991, Gamble will graduate with a degree in business management.

"I'm ready to graduate, but I'll miss playing. It feels great to hear the crowd and know they're behind you," he said.

"When you make a big play, pick yourself up off the ground, and hear the crowd yelling, it really pumps you up. It's good to see that this school is finally getting some spirit," Gamble said.

INTRAMURAL BEAT

Football highlights intramural action

The beat is back with the latest in YSU intramural results and schedules.

Football was the only sport played this weekend as the Panthers shut out Nads 18-0.

Other winners were Blast over Red Raiders 38-12, Hit & Run 12 All-City 8, Hellions 20 Name A, 0. Case 14 Mutilators 6, and Diesel Power 14 Deacon Blues 6.

Phi Kappa Tau got blasted 28-0 by Sigma Chi, then tied Tau Kappa Epsilon 12-12.

Oompa Loompas beat Loud N' Proud 31-8, Atomic Dawgs beat In Heat 6-0 and Run 'N Gun edged Assassins 2 27-20.

Hey lost to Football 20-14 and Westside A.C. bombed G-Men 40-6.

Machine and Legend ended in a 12 all tie while A-Town Assassins shut-out Football II 22-0.

A-Town Connection and Peter Paul & No Pellin were also victors by way of shutout. The Connection blanked Air Gorby 26-0 while No Fellin got the best of Death Pigs 29-0.

Sigma Phi Epsilon sank Tau Kappa Epsilon 26-0 and Prime Time and Sigma Chi beat Bad Attitudes and Alpha Phi Delta respectively.

Manipules blanked Gators 12-0 and Peter Paul & No Pellin won again, but by the margin of 13-8 over Swamp Dogs.

Beer Taps and Pickups were winners by forfeit over Eagles and Fugitive Guys.

Four games of co-ed football were played over the weekend.

Good Times beat Masters 18-7 while the Westside A.C. dumped Atomic Dawgs 31-22.

A-Town Angels whipped Play Four 30-6 and Black & Blue Crew were declared winners by forfeit over ROTC-Snafu.

In women's action, Cobra beat Leviathans 12-7, Play Four edged Good Times 8-6, and Who's Next squeaked by Annihilators 7-6.

The only other game saw Purple Haze rout Bermuda U. 29-0.

If inclement weather should arise over the weekend, please call the Intramural Office at 742-3488 to find out about the rescheduling of games.

Until next week . . . the beat goes on.

Get your tickets now

Continue to follow the Penguins on their march into the Division I-AA play-offs as they host another Division I team on Sat., Nov. 3.

YSU will take on the Ohio University Bobcats from the Mid-American Conference at 1:00 p.m. at Stambaugh Stadium.

After three straight road games, the undefeated Penguins will not play this week.

Get your tickets now because another sell-out is expected.

Volleyball team drops match to Buffalo

The YSU volleyball team ended their two-game winning streak on Saturday after losing to Buffalo 15-12, 15-5, 12-15, 15-2.

"We play well at times then we don't," said Head Coach John McKenna.

"We have a pattern of inconsistency," he said.

McKenna said if the team could get off a string of wins they would be all right.

McKenna said he expects Becky Berg to see some action this week after coming off an ankle sprain.

The loss drops the Penguins to 10-14 on the season.

The Penguins next game is at home on Wednesday against Kent State.

This is the first meeting of the year between YSU and the Golden Flashes.

"Since they're from the Mid-American Conference they have to be good," said McKenna.

Apologies to the members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Phi Epsilon whose rush dates were misprinted. The corrections are as follows:

Sigma Alpha Epsilon: Wed. Oct. 17 and Thurs., Oct. 25, 9 - 11 p.m.

Sigma Phi Epsilon: Wed. Oct. 17 and Thurs. Oct. 25, 9 - 11 p.m.

Popularity growing as soccer club keeps on winning

By JODI HAMMOND
Assistant Copy Editor

After the Wednesday Oct. 17 game the Soccer Club's record is 3-1-1. Dr. Stephen Hanzely, physics and astronomy, is the advisor of the 35-member club.

Hanzely says that YSU's Soccer Club has the chance to join the nine-team Mid-American Conference. Joining this conference would benefit the Club because there is "no lack of good teams" to play citing the teams of Akron, Kent and Toledo, said Hanzely.

The club was allotted money for uniforms and expenses through the Penguin Club. The support within the University has been "exceptional [and] a positive experience," said Hanzely.

Co-captain Trent Yuhas said that the Soccer Club plays during fall quarter but last year they played a tournament later. Yuhas said that it's a safer and less expensive sport to play.

Another reason may be that at "smaller schools girls [play] and the soccer team is [often] better" than the football team, said Yuhas.

Another Soccer Club member, Mark Chaksupa, said that at his high school soccer was almost an "elitist sport... [and that] parents didn't want their kids to get hurt playing football" so they'd encourage them to play soccer.

Yuhas and Chaksupa both said another reason for soccer's growth in popularity may be because it is being taught and played by kids of a much younger age.

The YSU Soccer Club has had a long and varied history.

According to Hanzely, the Soccer Club has gone from being a club (like now) in 1970 to being a varsity sport until 1985 when it was dropped along with several other sports.

Hanzely says that the club is trying to make soccer a University sport within five years.

The Soccer Club plays their next game at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 24.

They conclude their season on Wednesday, Oct. 31 against Kent State.
