YOUNGSTOWN STATE

Campus Coverage at its Best!

FRIDAY, APRIL 5, 1991

VOL. 70, NO. 39

Forums look at national issues topics

YSU — Economic competitiveness, racial equality, and abortion are the topics of three National Issues Forums to be presented at YSU this spring.

National Issues Forums, sponsored by YSU's Special Events Committee, provide an opportunity for Youngstown area residents to discuss topics of national interest and to make their opinions known to policy makers.

The first forum, "Regaining the Competitive Edge in the Economy," will run from noon to 2 p.m. Thursday, April 11, in Room 2069, Kilcawley Center. Dr. David Decker, YSU Monus Professor of Entrepreneurship, will moderate the discussion.

"Remedies for Racial Inequality" will be the topic of the second forum, which will run from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 25, in Kilcawley Center's Art Gallery. Moderator is Sarah Brown-Clark, associate professor of English and director of YSU's Black Studies Program.

The third forum will focus on "The Battle Over Abortion." The program will run from 1 to 3 p.m. Thursday, May 2, in the Kilcawley Center Art Gallery.

A key campus job

Jeff Koper, sophomore, nursing, was hard at work on Monday printing up price tags for the YSU bookstore. With the quarter still in its first week, the bookstore, as well as Jeff can expect a hardy workload and long hours in the book business.

Dr. Loretta M. Liptak, professor of health and physical education, will moderate the discussion.

Campus thefts fill YSU Police blotter

By FRANK MELILLO
Jambor News Editor

In the police reports this week, a car CD player was stolen and a YSU student had personal property stolen at Stambaugh Stadium's gymnasium.

In the first incident, Officer McGuire of the YSU Police Department was summoned by a victim who reported that his CD player was stolen from his car.

The victim claimed that upon returning to his car at approximately 12 p.m., he discovered the passenger window broken, noticed that his dash was damaged and the CD player torn out.

According to the report, the victim's car was parked in the M-24

Phi Kappa Phi hosts guest speaker

YSU — The YSU Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society will host a presentation by Dr. Anne M. McMahon, professor, management, at 3 p.m. Thursday April 11, in Kilcawley Center.

McMahon will speak on "The role of formal organizations in the redefinition of gender," and her presentation is open to all YSU students, faculty, and the community.

In her talk, McMahon will focus "on the consequences of the institutionalization of affirmative action structures for emerging definitions of gender in the American work place."

Her research indicates that, "Existing patterns of procedures, language and action by organizational actors are defining the future what we shall regard as appropriate employment practice, appropriate social responsibilities in our public and private economic sectors, and appropriate content of gender identities."

McMahon joined the YSU faculty in 1983. Prior to YSU, she served on the faculty of Stanford University and at the University of Rochester.

She received her PhD from Michigan State University in 1970 where she studied organizations and human behavior.

In addition to teaching organizational behavior and theory, she teaches organizational communication and planning and control. Her publications include articles on participation in voluntary organizations, organizational relocation practices, the dynamics of mixed-gender work groups, and the effects of performance evaluations.

McMahon has consulted for several voluntary organizations on problems faced by systems that depend on cooperation among paid staff and volunteer efforts. She is currently serving as president of the Board of Directors of the Catholic Service League in Youngstown.

The primary objective of Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society is the recognition and encouragement of superior scholarship in all academic disciplines.

We the undersigned, members of the Racial Awareness Program (RAP), are concerned and disappointed with the most recent Jambar coverage of events at Pal Joey's. Specifically, we believe the publication of photographs of the four students accused in the matter was inappropriate.

While journalistic ethics are vague on this point and editorial custom varies considerably, the use of the pictures was insensitive even if not technically unethical.

The editors of The Jambar have repeatedly attempted to justify their decision to run the photos. Obviously these students feel attacked. We appreciate that they were put in a difficult position. We understand that they are not yet fully trained professionals, that they don't have years of experience, that they were faced with an extremely delicate situation, that they agonized over their decision, that they did what they believed to be right, and that they have taken a great deal of heat for publishing those four pictures. But we still believe they made the wrong choice, and we want them—and the rest of the campus community—to understand why we think so.

It is our opinion that appropriate journalistic behavior requires consideration of the potential effects of publishing all information. In the racial climate of modern day America, it is far too easy for members of minority groups to be stigmatized or to become the subjects of unjustified suspicions. Too many Americans still carry negative and illogical fears of and stereotypes about not just black Americans but of people of various cultures and colors. These fears and prejudices are like explosives waiting for a lit fuse. The slightest hint that they might be even partly accurate can bring out deep feelings of hatred, self-righteousness and anger.

Given this, extreme sensitivity must be exercised by the media in its reporting of news involving race. In the case of the publication of the four student pictures, we feel sensitivity to all parties involved should have dictated restraint. While careful to use words such as "alleged" in their reporting of the Pal Joey's incident, the prominent page-one display of the photographs raised, we believe, the immediate presumption of guilt in many impatient minds. We wish to point out how fragile tolerance in America can be; how willing some people are to jump to false conclusions based on race; how one person of color can too easily be made to represent all people of color in the minds of the intolerant.

Once a picture is printed and the presumption raised, how do you erase the image from people's minds if those accused are subsequently exonerated.

Judges sometimes instruct juries to disregard remarks they have just heard. It doesn't work either! While we acknowledge that the news media had a right to display the four men's pictures and we grant that they might not have violated any journalistic principle in doing so, we believe that responsible journalism requires editors to weigh news value against human value. We believe that reporting of events always involves moral considerations, that the media does not merely report the news but rather controls what will be reported and in what manner, that all human endeavor reflects a social and political context, that journalists have an obligation to understand that context, and that "objective reporting" is impossible.

The Jambar editors, like most professional journalists, selected the facts that they considered relevant and important to a particular story. They did not include every bit of information available to them. They did not, for example, print the names of the young women involved. They exercised restraint in withholding this information. We applaud this decision. Too often in sexual abuse cases, for numerous complex reasons, the victims are either stigmatized, ignored, overlooked or silently ridiculed by innuendo or doubt. Just as we believe all parties are innocent in this matter until proven otherwise, we believe in the credibility of these women and their right to our protection, concern, sympathy and trust.

Yet since The Jambar respected the privacy of the women and properly protected them from public scrutiny, couldn't they have given the four YSU students the same cautious treatment? Instead they printed their pictures.

We would also like to point out that in reporting only the arrests in the case and the details about the Feb. 14 incident, The Jambar has bypassed other aspects of the Pal Joey's case which might merit deeper consideration:

1. Pal Joey's has been hit with more than 80 violations of state liquor laws in the last several years. The Youngstown Police Department has said it should be closed. Why hasn't it been?
2. The Vindicator reports of the incident suggested vaguely that much of the trouble at the bar that night was racial in nature. The large fight that broke out was allegedly between Black and White students. Why is this happening? What does this say about the YSU student community? The Youngstown community? Pal Joey's?
3. What is the appeal of a wet t-shirt contest to YSU students? This degrading ritual exploitation of women is meant to fan the sexist flames that broke out into fire that night. Should someone on campus—faculty, student body, administration?—be concerned about what this successful phenomenon tells us about male and female attitudes on campus?

The Jambar has shown itself quite conscientious in adhering to what they believe to be sound journalistic practice in its coverage of the Pal Joey's incident. Might we see this same conscientiousness applied to larger deeper problems on campus and in the community in future issues of the newspaper?

Respectfully,

The victim reported that the unit was an Alpine 7903 CD player and valued the player at approximately $550.

In the second report, a YSU student reported to police at 5:10 p.m. that he had some personal property stolen from the Stambaugh Stadium Gym number three.

The victim reported to Cpl. Revere that at approximately 3:00 p.m. he laid a YSU varsity football jacket, a set of house keys and a YSU issued basketball down on the gym floor.

According to the report, at 4:45 the victim discovered the above mentioned property missing.

The victim stated that the basketball was found at approximately 5:43 p.m. in the gym. He claimed that several students were playing with the ball, and nobody seemed to know where the ball came from. They were not in the gym at the time of the theft, said the report.

Engineers program gains national attention

YSU — A Youngstown State University program that exposes high school students to the field of engineering received national recognition in the April issue of the American Society of Civil Engineering's Journal of Professional Issues in Engineering Education and Practice.

The article, "Innovative Enrichment Program for Young Scholars," describes YSU's Engineering Expo, the cooperative effort between YSU's William Rayen School of Engineering and Career Services Office, as a way to generate interest in engineering among high school students in the Mahoning Valley.

The article was written by Dr. Jack D.

Bakos Jr. of Boardman, professor and chair of the Civil Engineering Department, and Diane D. Hritz of Boardman, engineering coordinator of the YSU Career Services Office. Hritz also coordinated Engineering Expo at YSU.

Engineering Expo originated in the summer of 1989 and was expanded in the summer of 1990.

Expo '89 emphasized off-campus activities in conjunction with local companies and agencies to expose students to engineering activities, said Bakos.

Expo '90 was more campus related, hands-on engineering activities, such as digital controls, robotic design and wind tunnel testing.

Students also visited with Bailey Controls in Wickliffe or Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton.

In both cases, students had an opportunity to learn the fundamentals of chemical, civil, electrical, industrial, materials and mechanical engineering.

The program was funded through the Alice C. Powers Endowment Fund. Powers set aside the fund in her estate to help young people further their education by generating interest in education.

There were 48 students representing more than 28 rural, suburban and city school districts in the five county area that participated in Expo '90. Also a diverse group of male, female, and minority students participated in the programs.

Students received a stipend to help defray the cost of transportation to and from campus each day. They also received daily lunches, a supply pack containing monogrammed T-shirts and a carrying case with supplies.

It is anticipated that Expo participants will not only consider entering the engineering field, but also will encourage their classmates to pursue engineering.

Kinko's Graphics Corporation complies with court

VENTURA, CA — Kinko's Graphics Corporation said it will comply immediately with the decision reached in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in the Basic Books vs. Kinko's Graphics Corporation lawsuit.

In April, 1989, eight textbook publishers filed a suit against Kinko's Graphics Corporation designed to reinterpret the 1976 Copyright Act which allows faculty members to make multiple copies of copyrighted materials for classroom use under the Act's "Fair Use" clause. On March 28 of this year, Judge Constance Baker Motley rendered a decision which limits the ability of commercial establishments to make these materials available.

"This is a sad day for the educational community," said Kurt Koenig, Kinko's vice president and counsel. "Professors across the country depend upon Kinko's to help them provide up-to-date course materials for their students. Professors and students who depend upon this timely material will suffer as a result of this court decision."

Koenig further commented, "Through the Kinko's Service Corporation Rights and Permissions Center, we are well-equipped to abide by these new standards and implement full compliance measures at all of our Kinko's Copy Centers across the country. With our copyright permissions systems, numerous publisher agreements, and overall investment in education, we will continue to serve the educational community," he said.

"Kinko's stores remain committed to providing timely and up-to-date educational materials for students and professors in higher education throughout the country. As for the lawsuit, we currently are reviewing the court decision and considering various options at this time," Koenig added.

Kinko's Graphics Corporation, headquartered in Ventura, Calif., has operated a nationwide network of duplicating centers for more than 20 years which provide timely course materials to faculty and students across the country.

Budget cuts cancel classes

The budget cuts made by the University last November as a result of reduced state funding seems to be the cause of over 20 classes being cancelled this spring quarter.

The 3 percent cut may not seem like much, but it in effect reduced the money available for some limited-service or part-time faculty. No teachers, no classes.

The areas said to have been most affected by the situation are the Colleges of Arts & Sciences, Applied Science & Technology, Education and the Fine & Performing Arts. Is the education of students in these areas suffering because of the budget cuts? One would hope not, but perhaps inadvertently the cancellation of classes due to lack of funding for a teacher will have lessened the educational process for some, if not many.

Ellen Sullivan, YSU News Service, has said that cancelling classes for budgetary reasons will not happen again because YSU is restructuring the way limited-service funds are allocated to academic departments, i.e., the departments will be aware of the dollar amounts allocated for the hiring of personnel so that each department will know what they have to work with. "Just like pens and papers and other supplies," she told The Vindicator, "when they run out, then they can't issue any more contracts."

The effort seems promising, but it is unfortunate that it didn't come sooner as to perhaps have saved a few, if not all, of the classes that have suffered because of cuts.

Jambar offered no 'justification'

The most recent criticism of The Jambar in regards to the printing of the pictures of the students charged for instigating the alleged "Pal Joey's Incident" last quarter is disturbing and misguided.

The Jambar never attempted to "justify" what we did. The use of the word "justify" carries the connotation of doubt to the correctness, i.e. trying to prove that something is right when chances are it may be wrong.

The action taken was not wrong, either professionally or ethically. The Jambar, in recent editorials and commentative pieces, simply tried to explain the process behind the action taken.

Jambar justifications 'inadequate'

In several recent editorials, The Jambar attempted to justify the decision to publish the photographs of four YSU students who were arrested after the infamous "incident" at Pal Joey's. In my opinion, it has not successfully defended the action. None of the justifications offered adequately answered the critics.

Justification number 1: "Many agonizing hours were spent deliberating about whether or not to run photos with the story" (March 12). The amount of time that went into the decision suggests only that the staff understood the complexity of the issue and the difficulty of the task, not that they made the ideal choice. I commend their hard work. I applaud their conscientious effort. But I still question the decision.

Justification number 2: "Had the arrested parties been 'white,' the story would still have been treated in the same manner" (March 12).

In a racist society, "equal" coverage of blacks and whites is not necessarily

Dr. Stephen L. Sniderman

"fair" coverage. Printing the photos of four men who are readily identifiable as African-Americans in conjunction with a headline and article about sexual misconduct invites the reader to invoke racist stereotypes about black males.

Apparently, the staff was aware of this potential problem: "we did not want to reinforce any negative stereotypes. We try hard not to perpetuate any stereotypical media portrayal" (March 12).

Now they need to explain how these pictures, appearing under the headline, "Three more charged in sexual assault case," could possibly fail to "reinforce

World seems headed in poor direction

Just when you begin to think the world can't get any crazier or more corrupted than it already is, you see a headline that reads: "1-year-old hospitalized after eating crack."

My first thought as I gazed at this Plain Dealer story's title fell under the adage, "What is this world coming to?" Who in their right mind would subject any child to the horrors of drugs and drug abuse?

The parents of the child had no comment for The Plain Dealer, but even if they did, any attempts at justifying what happened would be frivolous.

What is even worse is that the author of the article cites a statistic from Dr. James Besunder, director of Metro-Health's pediatric intensive care unit, which stated that "most children who accidentally swallow crack probably never receive medical treatment."

The article continues by stating the effects of the crack on the child's system, which fall under the categories of seizures, comas, hypothermia, strokes and heart attacks. The article also states that all cases of crack ingestion should be considered life-threatening.

As upsetting as this article was, it served to reinforce many ideas which people today are refusing to adopt. When experts tell us that our actions directly affect our children and that they imitate exactly what we do, they are not kidding. This article is proof of that. People must be aware of the fact that they are no longer children who don't have

'National Days of Thanksgiving': A proclamation by President Bush

As we prepare to welcome home our courageous servicemen and women and join in the joyful celebrations of the Kuwaiti people, it is fitting that we give thanks to our Heavenly Father, our help and shield, for His mercy and protection.

Asking Him to judge not our worthiness but our need and protection, and knowing that the Lord gives victory "not by might, nor by power," we prayed for a swift and decisive victory and for the safety of our troops. Clearly, the United States and our coalition partners have been blessed with both.

We thank the Lord for His favor, and we are profoundly grateful for the relatively low number of allied casualties, a fact described by the commanding general as "miraculous."

Nevertheless, because each and every human life is precious, because the massive scale of Operation Desert Storm must never diminish the loss of even one service member, we also remember and pray for all those who made the ultimate sacrifice in this conflict.

May the Lord welcome all who have fallen into the glory of Heaven, and may He strengthen and console their families in their hour of need. May it also please our Heavenly Father to grant a full recovery to those military personnel wounded in action.

We also give thanks for the remarkable unity of our people throughout this conflict — a unity marked by heartfelt and generous support for our troops in the field and, in the American tradition, respect for the rights of those who dissent. May our nation emerge from this conflict stronger and more united, to face as one united people the challenges and opportunities before us.

As we unite in thanksgiving to Almighty God, let us pray in a special way for the innocent men, women, and children — wherever they may be, who have suffered as a result of the conflict in the Gulf.

Recalling the words of President Wilson shortly after World War I, let us seek forgiveness for any "errors of act or purpose" and pray for God's help and guidance on the way that lies ahead.

May the resolution of remaining questions and concerns, especially the return of all prisoners of war and the freeing of those who are detained, be as timely and as certain as this victory in battle.

Finally, seeing before us the promise of a safer, more peaceful world — one marked by respect for the rule of law let us offer all these entreaties in a spirit of faith, humility, and gratitude, seeking reconciliation with all peoples.

As the Psalmist wrote, "come behold the works of the Lord . . . He makes wars to cease to the end of the earth."

Now, therefore, I George Bush, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim April 5-7, 1991 as National Days of Thanksgiving. I ask that Americans gather in homes and places of worship to give thanks to Almighty God for the liberation of Kuwait, for the blessings of peace and liberty, for our troops, our families, and our Nation.

In addition, I direct that the flag of the United States be flown on all government buildings, I urge all Americans to display the flag, and I ask that bells across the country be set ringing at 3:00 p.m. (eastern daylight savings time) on April 7, 1991, in celebration of the liberation of Kuwait and the end of hostilities in the Persian Gulf.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this seventh day of March, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and ninety-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and fifteenth.

George Bush
President
United States of America

Voice of the People

Military member says thanks to YSU

Dear Editor:

I am a member of the 347th QM Co. out of Farrell Pa. I am also a member of YSU. I am writing this letter to thank all of the people who showed their support by sending letters.

I would especially like to thank the president of YSU who wrote letters of appreciation to all YSU students participating in Operation Desert Storm. Also to "Dicky" and the rest of the staff at the YSU Bookstore for the care package and card showing their support.

I feel really proud to have been part of Operation Desert Storm, and the liberation of Kuwait. I am equally proud to be part of an institution such as YSU where the staff, faculty, and students show so much support for myself and all the troops here in Saudi Arabia.

Thank you all.

to account for their actions but that they are role models for a new generation who looks up to them for guidance and for a clear example from which to pattern their own lives.

The boy in the story, Jordan Callado, was in good condition on Monday at MetroHealth Medical Center. He was a lucky one. The children who will follow Jordan's actions in the future may not be as fortunate.

Evidently, according to the article, this type of thing happens quite frequently. Reading articles like these may not enable me to answer the question of, "what is this world coming to?" but it does give me some insights on where our world is heading. Unfortunately, it's not in a favorable direction.

Whatever happened to the days when parents worried if a child swallowed a fly or a dead ant on the ground? Those days are long gone, but maybe with some effort and intelligence on our part we can bring them back.

Commentary

Justification number 3: "We simply report the news; we do not make it" (March 12). Of all the justifications you offer, I find this one most disturbing and insidious, not only because it betrays a naive faith in language and seriously misrepresents the nature and function of newspapers, but because it suggests that journalists operate in a moral vacuum and should not be held accountable for the impact of their words and pictures.

The fact is that every reporter, photographer, and editor shapes every piece they work on, whether they intend to or not, because that's the essence of any medium.

Words and pictures are not politically or morally neutral; they carry implications and connotations, some of which can be inflammatory and pernicious. Even the placement of a given story affects the reader's response to the material.

Tabloids distort a story as much with oversized headlines, suggestive photos, front page coverage, and large, boldfaced type as they do with falsehoods and exaggerations.

Running photographs of four accused men as part of the lead article on page one goes far beyond mere "reporting." It is thereby interpreting the event, then influencing the reader's reaction to it.

They determine, as all journalists must, what is news, what is relevant, and what is most important. In the case of the Pal

Joey's story, they need to explain why they couldn't report it, accurately and fully, without those photographs.

Justification number 4: "None of the students were said to be guilty or innocent, and no where did it state their race. It didn't matter if they were 'black' or 'white'" (March 15).

If they sincerely believed that the race of the accused men was irrelevant to the Pal Joey's story, they certainly should not have published the photos and allowed the reader to label each man racially.

It is different to imagine a Jambar reader who would see those photographs and not identify the men immediately as "black." It is also difficult for me to think of any other purpose these pictures would serve.

They need to explain what function besides racial classification these pictures were intended to fulfill.

The decision to run these four photographs needs justification because it has had significant and predictable consequences, including a heightening of racial tension on the campus and an atmosphere of fear and paranoia among women and African-American students.

According to Rhonda Carter's commentary (March 15), "Somebody, identified as a white male, drew vertical bars on the accused pictures and wrote 'behind bars where they belong.'"

Can The Jambar be held responsible for this cruel prank? No, but it should be recognized that publishing those four pictures contributed to the awakening of that lightly sleeping giant, racism.

Was the journalistic value of those photographs worth that cost? If so, they need to explain why.

Please don't misunderstand. I am not accusing them of racism, malice, flippancy, incompetence, or unethical practices. But I believe they made a mistake; a dangerous mistake that could cause many people unnecessary suffering.

And I believe that the attempts to justify the decision have failed to address the most important issues.

My hope is that these issues will be explored more fully in future issues of The Jambar and that the questions raised by the Pal Joey's incident — questions about sexism, racism, and journalism — will receive the attention they deserve.

Punching Lucy returns to Youngstown area clubs

By MARYANNE MATYSIAK
Staff Reporter

Are you looking to hear a band that plays alternative, progressive music? Then why not check out the local band Punching Lucy?

Ric Franklin, Jimi Collins, and Sarge are the three members who make-up the group.

Collins plays lead and rhythm guitars, bass, keyboards, and sings lead vocals.

Franklin plays drums and sings background vocals and Sarge plays keyboards, guitar and bass.

Sarge and Collins alternate playing different instruments on different songs.

While describing their music Collins said, "We take the basics and try to turn it into fun, danceable music. We go out and do bizarre things and then try to draw meaning out of it."

Franklin and Collins recalled an example of this by saying, "A couple of weeks ago we went to the Oak Hill Cemetery, sat on a memorial and wrote a song called 'Where Will I Hide?' This song is about people who have AIDS and must face life with a different point of view."

Franklin and Collins have been friends since 1985. They met their first year of college the first day of classes at 8 a.m.

Franklin and Collins have worked on a lot of projects together before getting the group Punching Lucy off of the ground.

Collins and Franklin met Sarge when a previous member left the group to play in New York.

"Sarge just filled-in, but it worked so well that we asked him to stay," said Collins.

Sarge is from Boardman, Collins is from Youngstown and Franklin is from Girard.

Punching Lucy has played locally and in Akron, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. This past summer the band was the opening act for the group the Ramones.

"We were getting burned out" said Franklin about their absence from the clubs.

You can catch the bands show at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 6, at the Anticensorship Benefit to be held in the Chestnut Room, Kilcawley Center. The cover charge is $3 and after 9 p.m. students will need a valid YSU ID to get in.

They're back: Punching Lucy consists of Jimi Collins, (left) Ric Franklin and Sarge, will be playing tomorrow at the Anti-censorship benefit at 8 p.m. in the Chestnut Room. Punching Lucy will also be performing in area establishments in the near future.

Reggae Returns

Bop Harvey returns to the Cedars on Friday, April 5. They are touring to promote their critically acclaimed CD, Bread and Circuses. They will be playing original reggae tunes along with cover tunes by such artists as Peter Tosh and Bob Marley.

Canadian fortepianist to perform during conference at Butler

YSU — Canadian fortepianist Ray Dudley of Columbia, S.C., will give a recital of Franz Joseph Haydn's sonatas at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, April 11, at the Butler Institute of American Art.

The free public program is sponsored jointly by the Dana Concert Series of YSU and the Midwestern Historical Keyboard Society.

Dudley is one of five keyboard authorities participating in the Midwestern Historical Keyboard Society's seventh annual meeting April 11-13 at the Wick-Pollock Inn, Youngstown.

He will perform on historic fortepianos from the collection of Michael Edmund Frederick of Ashburnham, Mass.

Dudley started to play the fortepiano in Vienna, Austria, while doing Haydn research.

He practiced on the Kunsthistorisches Museum's collection of historic instruments.

Dudley has given solo recitals and orchestra performances in London, China, Taiwan, Japan, India, Hong Kong, Canada and major cities of Chile and Colombia in South America.

He has performed the complete Mozart and Haydn sonatas on the fortepiano and has also recorded four Haydn sonatas, receiving "Record of the Year" from Saturday Review.

The Midwestern Historical Keyboard Society was formed in 1984 to focus on early keyboard activity in the Midwestern region of the U.S.

This year's conference will feature recitals, workshops and instrument displays of harpsichords and reedy pianos by both contemporary and historic builders.

The total cost of the 2½ day conference is $80, or $40 for students. For more information, reservations, or tickets for individual recitals, call the Dana School of Music at 742-3636.

JCC presents off-Broadway play on its center stage

YOUNGSTOWN — For the first time in more than a decade, the two leads and the director of A Shayna Maidel will work together again.

Bentley Lenhoff, who is directing A Shayna Maidel, has cast Anne Finnerty-James and Kathy Appugliese as the two female leads. They all worked together in the award-winning 1979 Youngstown Playhouse production of A Miracle Worker.

Gloria Katula will also appear in A Shayna Maidel. Katula played Ouiser in Steel Magnolias, which Lenhoff directed last spring at the Youngstown Playhouse.

Mort Sands, another veteran of the Youngstown Playhouse, will play Mordechai, the father. Mickey Kessler will play Lusia's husband. Mary Jo Leonard will play Hannah, a childhood friend.

A Shayna Maidel, a long-running off-Broadway hit, chronicles a family's life in the aftermath of the Holocaust.

The play opens April 25 and runs through May 2. For more information or to make reservations, call 759-2203.

Rundgren comes to Stambaugh:

Todd Rundgren will be appearing at Stambaugh Auditorium on Tuesday, April 23. The concert is being made possible by Belkin Productions and CD 106. Tickets are now on sale and can be purchased by calling Ticketron at 1-800-225-7337.

Tark bashing must stop

Jerry Tarkanian may have the eyes of a basset hound and a smile that makes your heart bleed for him, but the NCAA and others have been trying to make him seem like a criminal.

Now that the college basketball season has been completed, let's stop the Tark Bashing.

Throughout the basketball season, so-called experts called for whatever hair is left on Tarkanian's head.

These people claimed Tarkanian's Rebels were powerful this season because of many illegal actions.

USA Today sports columnist Peter Vecsey hinted at how much the Rebels' Larry Johnson may have been making this season.

As many of you know by now, the NCAA placed the Rebels on probation next season over illegal action that took place 13 years ago. For years the case got "tied-up" in the court system. And, to this day, Tarkanian still claims he did not receive due process.

Because of all the turmoil, some experts, such as CBS' Curry Kirkpatrick, said that Tarkanian should not have been permitted to coach this season and maybe not at all on the NCAA level.

People are acting like Tarkanian was the only college head basketball coach who overstepped the rules set by the NCAA.

One of the greatest basketball minds ever, Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, was known for bending the rules quite often. Rupp not only bent the rules, he was a blatant racist.

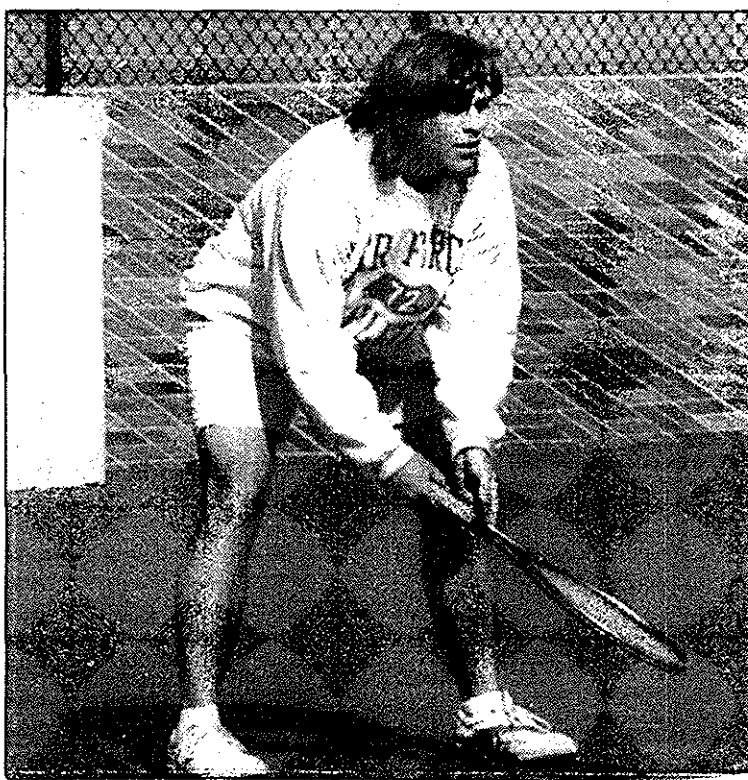

Rupp's actions did not stop the university in naming their new arena after him.

Why doesn't Kirkpatrick and his headhunters go after Kentucky for honoring an outlaw?

If anything, Tarkanian is trying to give many underprivileged players the opportunity.

Men cruise to another win while women suffer close setback

By RICK GEORGE
Jambor Sports Editor

The YSU men's tennis team brought home another victory which was coupled with revenge as they downed Edinboro 7-2 on Wednesday. With the win, the Penguins avenged a loss to the Scots during the fall season.

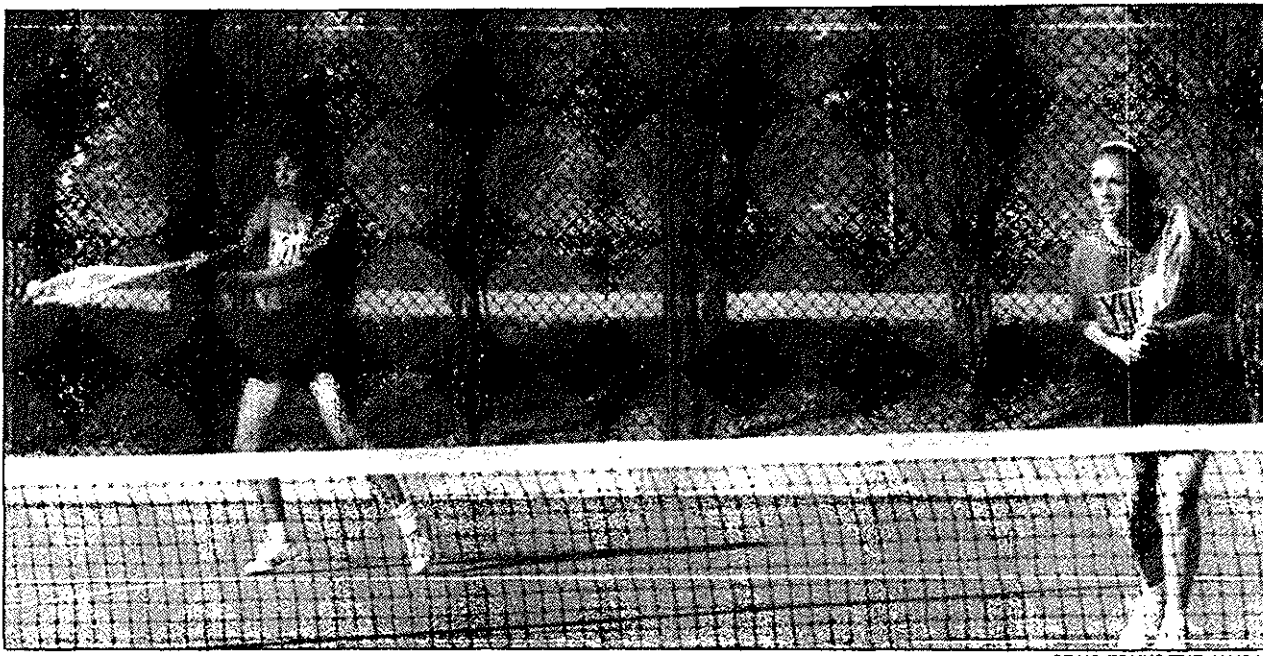

The YSU women were not as fortunate as they suffered a 6-3 loss to the Scots. YSU Head Coach Don Getz said two of his women, Karen Katsaras and Jill Haniford, each lost a tiebreaker which could have went the other way.

Janet Polish and Evanna Neopolitan were the big winners for the Penguins as they both won their singles matches then teamed together to take the doubles match.

Despite the loss, Getz said the women have been playing better this spring but they have to improve on quickness.

"Those first three steps are important," said Getz. "If we could improve our quickness, then we can improve our record by 50 percent."

YSU's next match is at home at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday against Mercyhurst. The women then play again on Saturday at 3 p.m. against Akron. On Sunday, the Penguins play Duquesne at 1 p.m. at home.

Henson pitches no-hitter for YSU in 8-0 win

Kim Henson took advantage of the YSU home opener by no-hitting Slippery Rock in the second game of a doubleheader on Thursday by the score of 8-0.

Henson was two errors away from a perfect game as the Penguins improved to 5-7 on the season.

In the first game, Julie Croft picked up the win for the Penguins as they won a close game by the score of 4-3.

The Penguins blew open the second game in the fourth inning as they erupted for four runs to take a 5-0 lead. They added three more runs in the sixth for insurance, but it wasn't needed as Henson finished with a two-hitter.

On Tuesday, the Penguins made a trip to Pittsburgh to take on Robert Morris and ended up with a split.

In the first game, YSU suffered a 2-1 defeat as Henson took the loss despite giving up five hits.

The Colonials jumped out to a 1-0 lead after the first inning, but the Penguins came back in the third to tie the game. Anita Smith lead off the inning with a single and eventually scored on Chris Medure's double.

Robert Morris didn't waste any time getting back the lead as they scored again in the fourth to make the final margin.

The Penguins had an opportunity to tie or take the lead in the sixth, but wasted back-to-back singles by Missy Medure and Michelle McKee.

Croft was the big factor in the second game for the Penguins as she pitched a three-hitter and pounded out two hits for a 3-0 Penguin win.

Becky Brendza got YSU rolling as she led off the second inning with a triple and later scored. The Penguins had an chance for another run, but Croft's two-out triple was wasted.

In the last inning, YSU took advantage on two Colonial errors as Ruth Pleskovic and McKee scored to make the final 3-0.

The Penguins next game is at 3 p.m. on Tuesday at home against Cleveland State.

Martina vs. Haude II

Martina Navratilova, YSU Head Tennis Coach Don Getz and Dan Haude all show a smile while in Hilton Head, SC. Haude had the opportunity to play Navratilova for the second straight year. Getz and Haude may return to Hilton Head in June to help her train for Wimbledon.

INTRAMURAL NOTICE

Men, women, and co-rec soccer, softball, and ultimate frisbee have a mandatory meeting at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, April 9 in the Kilcawley Art Gallery. All teams and officials must be represented at the meeting.

Penguins sweep pair from Hiram

Total domination. That is what the YSU baseball team did on Wednesday afternoon to the Hiram Terriers.

Behind the hitting of Chris Durkin and Joe Roscoe and the one hit pitching of Bill Whitacre, the Penguins cruised to a 22-9 and 11-0 wins.

Durkin cranked two homeruns in the first game and came back with three singles and two RBI's in the second game.

"They got the pitches up," said Durkin about his two homeruns.

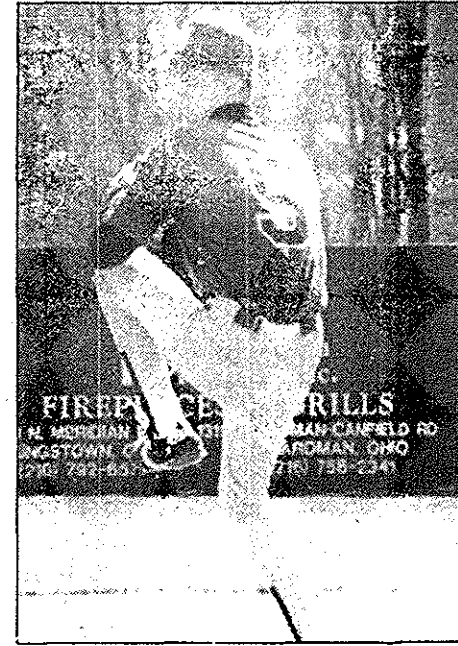

Roscoe didn't do bad either as he scored five times in the first game.

The beginning of the first game didn't look bright for YSU as they found themselves down 6-1 going into the bottom of the second. That would be the only highlight for the Terriers as the Penguins scored eight runs on four hits and took a 9-6 lead and never looked back.

In the second game, the Penguins exploded for nine runs in the first inning as they cruised to their 11-0 win.

The big story of the game was not the offensive production, but the one hit pitching of Whitacre.

The Penguins moved to 8-5 on the season as they await a doubleheader at tunity to become successful.

These opponents of Tarkanian have tried throughout the season to make the Rebels seem like a bunch of "thugs."

After UNLV's bitter defeat to Duke on Saturday, Blue Devil head coach Mike Krzyzewski complimented the Rebels on their outstanding behavior.

I'm not condoning what Tarkanian has been accused of. If he has done wrong then he should get the punishment, but not the harrassment and the questioning as to his coaching ability.

Let's face it, the Rebels were an outstanding team this season because of Tarkanian.

Former UCLA players Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Bill Walton admitted they received favors during their stay in Westwood. I don't see people questioning John Wooden's coaching ability.

It seems like there is a double standard with Tarkanian. One thing for sure, because of UNLV's probation, people won't have the Tark to push around anymore.

YSU Forensics return with ten individual trophies

YSU — YSU Forensics returned home from the Pi Kappa Delta National Championship Tournament with 10 individual trophies, including a national championship in Poetry Interpretation for David Bailey, freshman, F&PA, and a team Sweepstakes trophy representing an unofficial eleventh place finish among the 650 contestants representing 160 teams entered in the tournament.

The tournament was held at Monmouth College in West Long Branch, N.J., in conjunction with the PKD convention which was held March 20-24 in nearby Eatontown.

The Talking Penguins in the tournament are all members of the newly-reactivated Ohio Nu Chapter of PKD, the largest intercollegiate Forensics honor society. YSU's team finish was the best recorded by any college in PKD's Province of the Lakes, which includes the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Bailey received a rating of Superior in Poetry, with the highest score recorded in the tournament. He also received a Superior in Dramatic Interpretation and Excellent ratings in Prose and Dramatic Duo. He shared the Duo award with Al Franklin, junior, F&PA.

Franklin also received Superior awards in Prose and Poetry. Rebecca Tally, junior, F&PA took home Excellent awards Extemporaneous Speaking and in Impromptu Speaking. Gretchen Wetherhill, sophomore, F&PA, won Excellent awards in Prose and in Dramatic Interpretation.

Other Talking Penguins contributing points to the Sweepstakes award were Shannon Sweeney, sophomore, F&PA,

The final outings for the team will be for the debaters, who will enter the University of Chicago Parliamentary Debate Tournament in April, and for Franklin and Bailey who will constitute a token entry for YSU at the National Forensics Association championship tournament at Marshall University in Huntington, W. Va.
