Black History Month Programs feature speakers, culture

Parren J. Mitchell and Walter E. Fauntroy, United States congressmen, are the two main speakers scheduled to participate in YSU's 13th annual Black History Month.

The month-long series of events is scheduled to begin noon, Monday, Jan. 31, in the Ohio Room, Kilcawley.

The theme of the 1983 observance is "Black Americans and the Federal Government."

Most of the guest lecturers will speak about black Americans and their impact on the American system of government, as well as the impact of the government on black Americans.

This year's ceremonies will be dedicated to the memory of the late Clarence Barnes (1925-1982), former executive director of the Youngstown Area Urban League and an instructor in the black studies program.

George E. Mims, Barnes' successor as executive director of the Youngstown Area Urban League, will deliver the keynote address at the opening ceremonies on Monday.

Mitchell, will lecture on "Black Political Economy in the age of Reaganomics," 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 17, Arts and Sciences lecture hall.

Fauntroy, from Washington D.C., will lecture on the "State of Black America," 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 24, also in the A&S lecture hall.

Other Black History Month activities, scheduled throughout January, February and March, include a series of workshops; a dramatic presentation of "An Evening On Broadway" by actor, poet and musician David Mathews; a lecture on "Blacks and the Legal System" by Judge Arthur D. Jackson Jr. of Dayton, Ohio; and an awards dinner sponsored by the YSU Black United Students.

The purpose of Black History Month is to focus on the contributions, achievements and experiences of black Americans.

During the month-long celebration, emphasis will be placed on what black people have thought, said, and done to correct the myths of the past and to prepare a pathway to the future.

The Black History Month schedule of activities has been coordinated by Alfred Bright, black studies director, and the black studies department.

Black History Month schedule of events is as follows:

Monday, Jan. 31 - Opening ceremonies for Black History Month at noon in the Ohio Room of Kilcawley Center. The program will feature George E. Mims, executive director of the Youngstown Area Urban League, as the keynote speaker and the Rayen High School Gospel Choir.

Building snags delay Williamson reopening

By CLARENCE MOORE

Completion of the remodeling project currently underway in Williamson Hall is taking longer than expected.

Michael Skurich, University architect, said that the four main contractors involved in the renovation project misjudged how soon they could have the job completed. "Originally, the contractors thought they would have the job done by the end of the winter quarter," Skurich said. "But because of small setbacks like not being able to get the right materials and equipment, the date has been changed."

Skurich said that there is no definite completion date for Williamson yet. He said he believes the project will be finished by June, 1983.

"We've recommended that the registrar's office not schedule any classes in Williamson this spring," he said.

James Scriven, admissions and records dean, confirmed that classes will not be held in Williamson this spring.

Scriven said that the number of students enrolled in the school of Business for fall quarter, 1981 was 2,987. Last fall, the number of students enrolled in Business dropped to 2,606.

He said that this decrease could not be attributed to the Williamson Hall shutdown.

"Most of the students at YSU are enrolled in courses offered in Cushman and Arts and Sciences," Scriven said. "Those courses are the ones students always seem to prefer."

Meanwhile, the registrar's office has continued to schedule business classes wherever space is available. "Even if the renovation project were to be completed earlier than June, we still wouldn't rush the students and the staff of Williamson back into the building," Skurich said.

"A period of adjustment is still needed after the job is through. We want to make sure that everything is in 100 percent working order," he added.

Skurich said that Campus Development doesn't want to inconvenience students by having them attend classes in the building while it is still being renovated.

He said that as far as he knows, the faculty and staff of Williamson is comfortable in their temporary home in the old Wick Motel.

"And as long as the business classes are being relocated to other buildings," Skurich said, "there is no urgent need for the classroom space in Williamson."

IT'S NO EASY JOB - But Jane Pauley, co-host of NBC's nationally broadcasted Today show, makes her work seem easy as she takes time during a non-stop schedule to enjoy the people of Youngstown. Pauley appeared on campus Wednesday to produce live segments covering Youngstown's unemployment situation relative to President Ronald Reagan's State of the Union address. The show was aired from the President's Box in YSU's Arnold D. Stambaugh Stadium.

Film series rates highest on survey

By ANNA STECEWYCZ

The most popular extracurricular activity for YSU students is the free film series, according to a survey regarding student participation in campus events.

The survey, conducted by the Student Services office, was done to review factors which effect student retention, according to Edna Neal, assistant dean of Student Services.

As part of an on-going planning process, the question of YSU students level of participation in extracurricular activities was considered.

She said many research reports have investigated the effect of academic and demographic factors on student retention at colleges and universities.

Such studies review the relationship of the level of student participation in extracurricular activities to universities' attrition/retention rates.

Neal said she feels these studies are important in helping Student Activities to further define the factors effecting the retention rate at YSU.

"It has been found that those students who don't get involved on campus tend to drop out more often than those who do," said Neal. "And those who do participate have a sense of involvement, a tie to the University, and continue to attend school for a longer period."

A total of 19 questions were asked of students during the winter registration material distribution period. Over a third of the student body responded, with 4,354 returns.

The questions asked were

Numbers up winter quarter

YSU has a record winter quarter enrollment of 14,947 students, compared to a previous high of 14,940 in 1976. Last winter quarter enrollment was 14,752.

This winter's enrollment includes 9,559 full-time students and 5,388 part-time students. There are 13,843 undergraduates and 1,104 graduate students; 8,138 men and 6,809 women.

This quarter, 13,759 students are Ohioans, and 1,188 live in other states, most of them in neighboring Pennsylvania.

Undergraduates include 4,992 freshmen, 3,354 sophomores, 2,625 juniors and 2,872 seniors.

designed to determine if students participate in extracurricular activities, how often they participate, and how they learn about the activities.

Students were asked to indicate their participation in activities per quarter on a scale of: never, 1-3 times, 4-6 times, or 7 or more.

The films (including KCPB Film Series and the Pub Midweek Matinee) ranked first, with 1,252 students stating they attended the events 1-3 times per quarter. Also, 1-3 times quarterly, 1,169 students attend the Special Lecture Series, and 1,111 attend varsity athletic events.

Neal said that she was surprised but happy with the attendance of the lectures. She said she feels the program is a great outlet for cultural information, as well as for diverse opinions on various issues.

The use of the Beeghly recreation facilities was the highest in the "seven or more times per quarter" category, followed by spectatorship of varsity athletics and social activities. Others that rated high included fraternities/sororities and special interest clubs.

The main reason given for non-participation in campus events was a conflict with working hours. Neal said this reflects the fact that YSU is a commuter campus — students have an interest in activities but don't have the time.

The second reason given for non-participation was lack of interest and conflicts with study time. Neal suggested that this may prove that students are still interested in academics as well as outside activities.

Other common reasons were family obligations and various specific situations.

When asked where they spent their non-class time, students listed Kilcawley Center as the first choice, followed by Maag Library and various building lounges. Many students also stated that they don't spend time on-campus, but go to entertainment spots or take part in other outside activities.

Students said their best source of information about campus events was The Jambar, followed by word-of-mouth, and flyers and posters. The Vindicator and student mail were rated fourth and fifth respectively.

Neal said this survey is part of a continuing project for Student Services to assess the needs of YSU students for the future.

The next survey, planned to be conducted before spring quarter, will deal with day care and inter-collegiate athletics. It will be sponsored by Student Council to find out the student body's stand on these issues.

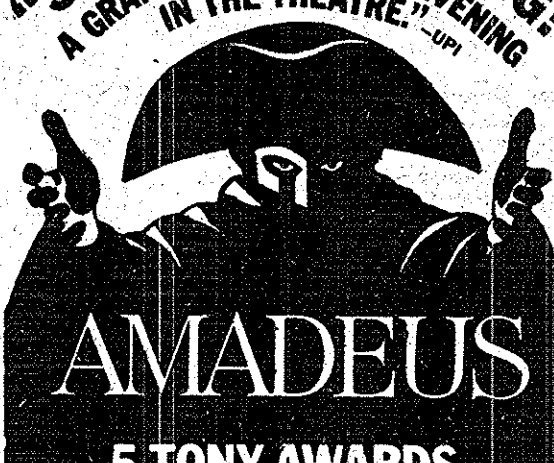

Neal said a survey planned for next year will try to determine the success rate of commuter students.

She explained that a student who lives at home with his parents and travels to school every day is considered a "true" commuter student. She said she wants to see if the commuter student is more successful than the student who lives in his own apartment or is not a native Youngstown.

Neal said the information will be distributed to other departments and offices for their use.

Editorial: No excuse for delinquency

Students are notorious procrastinators, always putting off until tomorrow what they should be doing today, then trying to come up with plausible excuses that the professor hasn't already heard a dozen times.

Unfortunately, they usually end up spending more time on their excuses than they do on their assignments.

The University and its contractors could take a lesson or two from students when it comes to offering excuses for projects that are not completed on schedule.

Classrooms in the All-Sports Complex, to have been completed by last December, are still unfinished. The University architect remains unsure whether or not they will be finished by even the end of winter quarter, although he does expect all construction in the complex to be completed by June.

Remodeling work in Williamson Hall, scheduled to be completed by the end of this quarter, will not be. Work there is now expected to be finished by June.

In the case of the All-Sports Complex rooms, "foot-dragging" by the contractors and over 20 design changes are blamed for the delay. The Williamson delay is blamed on "small-setbacks" such as the lack of necessary equipment and materials.

These excuses seem rather lame, to say the least. Any first quarter freshman could do better.

The delay at the All-Sports Complex is understandable enough. Athletic facilities have higher priority than purely academic facilities, so the classrooms remain unfinished, while the various gyms and training rooms are ready for use.

The delay at Williamson is harder to explain. The contractors must have known what materials and equipment would be needed when they received the contract for the work. The remodeling at Williamson, after all, is not one of those "simple" do-it-yourself projects which amateurs are always getting themselves into, and which generally turn out to be far from simple.

At any rate, professionals shouldn't need excuses, should they?

Commentary: Sick of State

By DAN LEONE

They wouldn't let me give my "State of the University" address on television, so I had to read it to my dog Harry, who later ate my gloves and said "bark."

Inspired by Harry's enthusiastic response, I decided to transcribe my speech and share it with the wonderful University people. So here goes:

Seventy-five years ago YSU was born. Seventy-one years ago it got the chickenpox. Today it is perhaps the most highly-touted university in Youngstown.

In closing, I would like to read you a parable:

There once was a rich girl who got a pair of red pants for her birthday. Thank you. Are there any questions? The man with the hat...

"What is your stand on the day care issue?"

I like them fine. "I don't think you understand. Day care. Day care."

Ah! Day care - The Jambar's mantra. Yes, I think that's definitely an issue on campus. The woman in green...

"What do you think about parking?" I think we should all park now and then. "Some people complain that there aren't enough spaces."

Yes, parking is definitely a problem. I don't know what to do about it, though. The man in the corner...

"Uh, about the girl with the red pants..."

Her name was Mike. "What happened to the red pants?"

Oh. She wouldn't wear them because she was rich. So the pants were sad. Then one day a poor girl came to visit and she saw the red pants and she liked them. But she wouldn't wear them either. Any more questions? The man in yellow...

"Are you in favor of athletic spending, which seems to have run rampant on this campus?"

I think athletes should be allowed to buy things, if they want to. The woman with arms...

"My husband doesn't like me anymore." I'm sorry. Try the fish platter. The man in black...

"My son still plays with cars. What should I do?"

Try the fish platter. The man with the milk mustache...

"Is YSU really the most 'highly-touted university in Youngstown?'"

Let me tell you another parable: There once was a little red tractor that tried to shovel the driveway. Then it tried to climb a hill. Then it tried to plow a field. Then it blew up.

"What's the moral?"
People should buy tractors.

Criticizes bantering through editorials

To the Editor of The Jambar: After reading your editorial on bookstore employees I could only laugh. It brought back memories of my childhood and childish bickering.

When Filomena Riccioni wrote her letter to the Jambar I was pleased, because I thought she gave the student body another perspective with which to view the bookstore and its employees. Few students realize that while they're sunning in Daytona this March the bookstore employees will be getting their textbooks ready.

Granted, there have been problems with the computer registers, and those have resulted in longer lines. One thing I would like to point out to the student body is that when a business gets close to ten thousand customers in one week, there are bound to be lines.

Maybe some of the cashiers are not as fast as you want them to be, but some of them are. Yet, they all do the best they can. What more do you want? To insult people doing a job which you obviously can't fathom is amateurish and childish—typical of the Jambar attitude.

Everyone should be open to criticism, and certainly the bookstore employees hear their share. Why can't the Jambar? I thought the Jambar was supposed to be a journalistic teaching tool, not a tool to vent your immature retaliations.

I'm sorry if I hurt your feelings, and if I did, I'm sure we'll see another blistering editorial. I just hope I haven't sunk to your childish level of journalism. I know that a child has to get the last word in any argument; therefore, I await your response.

Commends service of parking attendants

To the Editor of The Jambar: We would like to respond to the letter "Guesses They Didn't Hear Him," by Nicholas A. DePaola, junior, F & PA, in the Jan. 21 issue of The Jambar.

Due to our personal experience, we have reason to question the character and judgement on which the following complaint was stated: "I asked if anyone could give us a jump and suddenly it got very cold inside. . . I guess they still didn't hear me."

To summarize DePaola's complaint, he said his car broke down on the evening of Jan. 18 and when he asked for help the parking security men refused to even acknowledge his problem.

Though we have come across several occasions on which the parking security attendants, their attitudes and degree of concern was contradictory to the blatant implications of DePaola.

Proof of our convictions lies on countless occasions on which the parking security attendants were not only helpful, but eager to comply with our needs.

Our most recent disaster occurred not more than three weeks ago. After a full day of classes and fighting the snow, the last thing we needed was to return to the parking and to fail to hear the sound of our motor.

Once again the parking attendants were at our rescue. It is hard to believe that these same men who were alacritas and dependable for us, would deliberately ignore anyone in earnest need of their assistance.

Rather than being ridiculed and derided, the parking attendants should be commended for their often un-recognized service.

Our only suggestion to DePaola's problem is to take the bus!

Lauds student's effort to 'illustrate' criticism

To the Editor of The Jambar: I was amused and pleased by David Robinson's "commercial" for "Classical Basketball" in the Jan. 21 Jambar.

His satirical perspective on basketball as a fine art is a gem. One might theorize that the Winged Victory gnawed her fingernails to the shoulder in frustration over such an anachronism.

Those of us who enjoy WYSU's programs as a unique delight in the Valley find unbridled basketball a sort of straw in the wind of YSU's seemingly steady progress toward becoming "Jock U."

Surely there are other avenues for broadcasting basketball than by distorting WYSU's carefully balanced programs. Will football, without let or hindrance, be the next encroachment? Alas—who can tell?

CORRECTION

In a story on the delay in classroom use at the All-Sports Complex (Jambar, Jan. 25, 1983), University Architect Michael Skurich was quoted indirectly as saying that the health and physical education department was "at fault" in scheduling classes at the complex before facilities were ready. In fact, Skurich said only that HPE had been "responsible" for scheduling classes at the complex.

Asks for commentator's patience

To the Editor of The Jambar: Jim Devine may be "an English major used to dealing with often complex visions of the world in literature," but his recent attempt at dealing with the complex problems facing the city of Youngstown through what you call people pass off as "effective journalism" was a joke.

In his commentary, (Jambar, Jan. 25) Devine quoted a Youngstown Vindicator story which projected a "slightly improved" economic outlook for the valley in 1983.

He claimed that Vindicator Business Editor George Reiss used vague phrases that don't accurately describe the current situation. He then went on to cite examples to better illustrate just how rotten things really are around here.

Yes, Jim Devine, Youngstown is indeed suffering. The entire country is suffering. We already know that. And the area's 50,000 unemployed know that. Edward J. DeBartolo and Mayor George Vukovich know that.

That's just it. We are all aware of the problem. What we don't know, however, is how to reverse the downward turn that the economy has taken.

The President doesn't know, Mayor Vukovich doesn't know, Edward J. DeBartolo doesn't know, and George Reiss doesn't know. Neither do we.

If we did know, we could not only predict slight improvements for 1983, we could go out and do great things for the economy. But until we know the answers, all we can do is wait and hope.

As you said in your commentary, it's going to take a long time before recovery comes. Why don't we just accept that and stop expecting miracles from those who are not equipped to perform them?

Can't we hang on to even a shred of hope that things will improve in 1983, if only slightly? After all, a small improvement would be better than no improvement at all.

Let's be patient and see what happens before we curse those who are looking for a solution, no matter how insignificant their proposals may seem.

And, what on earth does Sheriff Jim Traffiant's predicament have to do with the area's economy and unemployment rate? Or is it just a case of the average person overlooking that which is obvious to any English major?

Please keep sight of your humility, Mr. Devine, and remember that a major does not an expert make.

Budget cuts shrink financial aid

By CLARENCE MOORE

There will be less government based funding for students depending on financial aid, because of cuts in the budget by the Federal Government, according to Bill Collins, director of financial aid.

Collins said he does not expect any changes in the amount of financial aid based on state funding (i.e., The Ohio Instructional Grant).

Collins also said that he does not expect any changes in the way a student applies for financial aid. However, he does advise students to apply early for financial aid.

He said that the only kinds of financial aid available directly from the University are the few on-campus employment opportunities still open and the work/study program.

Another alternative source of financial aid Collins mentioned is the direct student loans that a student can obtain from any local banking institution.

Collins said he believes that the eligibility requirements for University and federally based financial aid will also remain unchanged; but he offered a note of warning, adding that the University did not award University based funds to any student who did not complete the financial aid application with all the necessary information.

Collins said this policy will not change this year either.

The deadline for submission of applications for financial aid is April 1, 1983.

"We expect to have all of the necessary application forms in the office by Feb. 1, 1983," Collins said.

Collins added that all students who wish to attend the University in 1983-84 should apply for aid as soon as possible.

He said the financial aid office's main concern is that the student applies for financial assistance.

"A lot of students penalize themselves by simply not applying or applying too late," Collins said.

"We're required to give campus based funds to those students who meet eligibility requirements and turned in an application on time."

Students should not try to determine their own eligibility status or compare their situations with those of their friends, Collins said, because, in most cases, if a student is determined ineligible for one type of aid, an alternate source of aid can be considered.

Collins said that students with questions concerning financial aid can stop into the office located in Jones Hall to have their questions answered.

Terrence Fetchet's piece, "A Union of the Cruises - Vera and Santa," captured second award in the sculpture category at the 35th Annual Ohio Ceramic, Sculpture and Craft Show at Butler Institute of American Art.

Viewpoint: Ceramic show offers variety

Editor's note: Stephen Grennek, sophomore, art, is currently an art theory student.

By STEPHEN GRENNEK

Examples of award-winning tri-state area works are currently on display at the Butler Institute of American Art in the 35th Annual Ohio Ceramic, Sculpture, and Craft Show, to run through Feb. 27.

Michael Moseley, art, served a hearty introduction to the ruggedly shaped and textural qualities the ceramic medium can capture. Unfortunately, Moseley's physical pieces dwarfed much of what was to be encountered in other parts of the exhibit. The dwarfing was achieved not in dimensional quality, but aesthetics.

In many exhibits today, sculptors create pieces fashioned from pieces of steel, which sometimes resemble farm machinery. It was once a good idea, but it has become tiresome.

Other sculptures are equally hard to look at. This was largely because of the fact that many were too small to be placed on the floor. They would have looked better on pedestals, where the public could have gotten a better perspective.

Also lacking credibility were the thrown and glazed pottery. No vessel had a truly vital color scheme, or a voluptuous flowing volume. You can be assured, many of these drab relics will end up gracing the inside of cardboard boxes, down in someone's basement.

Ceramics certainly don't have to be confined to bowls or vases. Judith Kimpan's "Which Came First?" certainly proves this claim. Including a stuffed chicken, standing in straw, among several flat chicken representations, this work leaves a lot more questions than it answers.

You can laugh at it, be disgusted, merely wonder, or combine the feelings, as I have. Its strength is that it captures attention and demands a reaction.

Literally a shut down human being assembly line, a jet black assemblage called "The Perfect Woman" is, by far, the most significant piece in the exhibit. Gail Gordon Trunick presents the harsh reality of media sexism and its exploitation as a cold mechanical factory, complete with rows of disjointed body parts.

One of the advantages of this social commentary is that the audience can feel the meaning of the work.

The most intense feelings and vaguest meanings are also present in many of the works. A blue, brown, and white wall-hanging by Sister Paulette Kirschensteiner, "Cinders and Pebbles," is an example. Absorbing and stimulating, and at the same time relaxing and earthy, it is as refreshing as a nature walk.

Exhibit features Ohio artists

Editor's note: Michael Corlew, sophomore, F&PA, is currently a student in Art Theory I, and is majoring in studio graphics.

By MIKE CORLEW

The 35th Annual Ohio Ceramic, Sculpture and Craft Show, recently opening at the Butler Institute of American Art, spotlights some of Ohio's leading potters and sculptors, including the juror of the exhibit, Michael Moseley.

The show will continue its run through the end of February. Moseley's five pieces are an impressive beginning to a delightful and respectable show.

The award-winning pieces display a varied selection of both themes and medias. On one end of the spectrum is Robert Ingram's "Music/Book Stand," a graceful piece done in curly maple wood, showing beautifully handled joinery and eloquent lines. This piece warranted the first place award in the craft category.

Conversely, Terrence Fetchet's "A Union of the Cruises" utilizes many mediums and has subtle nuances involved in the unconventional execution of its theme. Although the piece's lines are not graceful, this piece is one of the better ones in the exhibit.

Although the execution of the starkly graphic "Lunar Ring, Space Turds and Astro Chunks," by Brian Hall, is almost crude and childlike, it shows the maturity and uniqueness that it needed to collect the first award in the sculpture category.

The Butler Institute of American Art can be commended on its presentation of the annual exhibit.

The lighting devoted to each piece is quite adequate and there is a good overall flow to the movement of the show. Each of the entries receive equal "billing" and no piece is over-played.

This show has a lot to say about the positive movement of sculpture, crafts, and ceramics in Ohio. It is truly a viewer's show, simply a delightful happening.

The Butler Institute of American Art is currently presenting an exhibition of photographs by Youngstown artist, Dagmar, through Feb. 3.

Photo journalist to speak on controversial Reggae

Peter Simon, award winning photo-journalist appearing in publications such as Time and Newsweek, will speak on the sometimes controversial nature of Jamaica's Reggae music, 8 p.m., Friday, Feb. 4, Chestnut Room, Kilcawley Center.

The music form, saturated with sexuality, is primitive, tribal, and considered outlaw music. It is hypnotic and culturally shocking. Reggae is considered Jamaica's "zero-degree music" and is reputed to cause "political and social shock-waves from Harlem to Watts."

Simon will explore the very nature of Reggae music, its origins and form. He will discuss why various persons seek its banning. Following the lecture, Simon will share various examples from his personal collection of records.

The program, sponsored by the Kilcawley Center Program Board's Entertainment Committee, is free with a YSU ID. One dollar will be charged for general admission.

Visitors boast USA's top scorer

By DAN PECCHIA

The YSU men's basketball team will face the leading scorer in American college basketball Saturday night when Joe Jakubick and the Akron Zips invade Beeghly Center.

Tip-off time is set at 8 p.m. for the Ohio Valley Conference game.

The Zips, currently 3-3 in the OVC, are riding a two-game losing streak, as are the Penguins, 2-4 in the conference. Both teams are 9-7 overall.

Jakubick's scoring average of 29.9 points per game ranks him first in the country. However, his 34 three-point field goals (those made from outside a line 19 feet and nine inches away from the hoop) affect his total. Official NCAA statistics count all goals as two points and, therefore, have tabulated Jakubick's average to 27.8.

Southern Florida University's Charlie Bradley is hitting 29.8 points per game and is ranked first by the NCAA. SFU has no three-point goal rule like the one adopted by the OVC this season.

Jakubick's 34 three-pointers are, by far, tops in the OVC. Rick Acord, another Zip player, is second with 22.

Jakubick is also fourth in the conference in steals, tied for fourth in assists, seventh in field goal percentage and fifth in free throw percentage.

YSU head coach Mike Rick isn't underestimating the Zips' 6-5 junior guard.

"For a lot of guys who are high scorers, you can just let them score and concentrate on stopping everybody else," Rice said. "The only thing is, if we do that with him, he's capable of scoring 50 points with ease."

Rice has also expressed disappointment with his defense, which has allowed its last two opponents to score a total of 173 points.

"We haven't done too well defensively," he said. "We're not a great team of defensive forwards. As a matter of fact, I can't think of one defensive forward on our team. Our defense has been making All-Americans out of bad players."

"In our next two days, we hope to establish who we're going to go with to cover Jakubick. It's kind of a macho thing: we're making different guys challenge for the job in practice. We hope by Saturday to

YSU-Akron: since 1937

The YSU-Akron basketball rivalry dates back even farther than the Dom Rosselli era.

Dec. 11, 1937, was the day of the first game between the two schools and the score was 23-16 in favor of the host Zips.

Ray Dempsey coached the Youngstown College Penguins during that season, which also included a 32-31 YoCo win over Akron.

When Rosselli took over the helm during the 1940-41 season, the Penguins and Zips split once again.

Last season was an important one in the history of both schools since it marked each team's initial season of Ohio Valley Conference play.

The Zips, behind the play of Joe Jakubick, defeated YSU both times. Jakubick scored 24 points as his team nipped YSU 64-62 at Akron last Jan. 16 and poured in 26 to push the Zips past the Penguins 78-61 at Beeghly Center last Feb. 13.

Akron shot 54 percent in last year's first game and 58 percent in the second game. Throughout the 45-year rivalry, the Zips and Penguins have played 57 games with Akron winning 34 of them.

ART McCULLOUGH

McCullough may miss rest of the season

By DAN PECCHIA

YSU guard-forward Art McCullough may be out for the season.

A knee injury sustained against Eastern Kentucky University last Friday night may require surgery and, if so, would keep the Penguins' leading scorer out of action for the rest of the campaign.

"That's the way it looks right now," Rice said. "Monday, we're going to sit down with a surgeon and see what's going to happen."

McCullough—the Ohio Valley Conference's leading percentage shooter—has torn ligaments in his right knee, according to the Sports Medicine Office. Rice said that the injury hasn't given McCullough any serious pain but that it has slowed him down.

"He has no trouble running straight," Rice said, "but he can't make any cuts." Thus, Rice explained, even if there is no surgery, McCullough would be far from completely healthy.

Rice also said that it is already too late for McCullough to be eligible for red-shirt status. He missed all of last Saturday's game against Morehead State and isn't scheduled to dress for Saturday's game against Akron.

After the game with Eastern Kentucky, which YSU lost 83-78, McCullough had been shooting 59.3 percent from the field to lead the OVC. His scoring average of 11.5 points per game also topped

Out of state: Narduzzi plans to canvass western Pa. for grid recruits

By DAN PECCHIA

YSU football coach Bill Narduzzi said he doesn't expect most of his recruits for 1983 to be from the Mahoning Valley area.

Citing the area's inabundance of football talent, Narduzzi said he may have to go out of Ohio to replenish a roster that will lose 17 seniors.

"The Mahoning Valley just isn't as strong as it has been in the past," said Narduzzi, who picked up most of his 1982 recruits from area high schools. "The Akron-Canton area isn't real strong either."

"We've been spending some time in Western Pennsylvania and we'll be possibly recruiting more from there than we have in the past," Narduzzi added.

According to NCAA statutes, Narduzzi may not sign recruits before 8 a.m., Feb. 9 or after May 1. The coach said he has between 12 and 15 scholarships to work with.

"Last year, because the area was so strong, we were able to sign everybody on the first day," Narduzzi explained. "This year, we're not sure we'll be able to do it that fast."

Among the 1982 seniors Narduzzi won't have back is tailback Paris Wicks, a two-time NCAA Division I-AA All-America selection. Wicks outrushed all other Ohio Valley Conference backs during each of his last two seasons.

Narduzzi will need people to block for Wicks' replacement.

"The biggest area we'll have to worry about is our offensive line, where we lost six people," Narduzzi said.

Tackles Rick McDonald (a two-time all-OVC pick), Dave Magazzeni and Brett Powell were seniors last year as were guards Bob Bogner, Ron Kissell and Bob Strauss.

"We'd also like to improve our quarterback situation," Narduzzi said. "We've got three guys with only a few years left and we'd like to get somebody else in to learn our system."

Quarterbacks Jamie DeVore, Griffin Keys and Mike Sloe will be juniors next fall.

Last year's recruiting efforts brought in mostly northeastern Ohio high school standouts. Five of those—three from the local district—saw heavy action during the past season.

Walter Allen (Youngstown East) and Gary Barber (Austintown Fitch) played in 10 of YSU's 11 games as defensive backs while Willie Simpson (Warren Western Reserve) played as many games as linebacker.

Punter Nick Xides (Canton McKinley) finished second in the OVC in punting average. Linebacker Dave Derthick (Rootstown) also played in 11 games.

"We try to recruit within a 100-mile radius if we can," Narduzzi said. "That's where we've been going in the past—and with some success. We prefer having a kid whose parents can come and watch games on weekends. We like to have someone who has more of a tie to this area than just playing football here."

Men swimmers lose 4th

By BOB GUGLIOTTI

The YSU men's swimming team has had, on the surface, a lean year in terms of won-lost ratio.

But despite the squad's fourth loss in five outings, a 66-47 defeat to Westminster College yesterday afternoon at Beeghly natatorium, Coach Joe Kemper found some solace and positive impressions regarding the team's performance.

"Even though no records were established, I thought we swam pretty well and posted some good times we can be competitive with," cited Kemper. "We sought to stay relatively even during the early part of the meet, which we pretty well succeeded in doing, and we finished strong, but the medley, relays, and backstroke events really hurt us."

Penguin Club cites stars

By BOB GUGLIOTTI

Athletes, cheerleaders, managers, and trainers from the sports of football, soccer, volleyball and cross country were recognized Wednesday evening at the annual YSU Fall Sports Banquet held at the Maronite Center on Youngstown's west side.

The fete was sponsored by the boosters of the Penguin Club.

Highlighting the event was the presentation of the various awards associated with the number of letters earned, academic honor roll members for the fall quarter, and the "Most Valuable Player" honors bestowed upon those selected as most deserving by their fellow participants in each sport.

Selected as the respective "Most Valuable Players" were Ron Baker, soccer; Meg Deibel, volleyball; Steve Luthern, cross country; and Paris Wicks, football. Brenda McFadden, the "Pete" the Penguin mascot, was also commended for that role.

The main program was the awards presentation ceremony, which followed dinner. Soccer coach George Hunter recognized the first winning team since the sport's inception in 1974 (7-6-0 record).

Eleven players received first-year awards, indicating a promising future, while senior Joe Cerminara was recognized for his four years of leadership, and three-year letterman Ron Baker was selected as the soccer MVP for 1982.

Gridiron coach Narduzzi presented members of last year's 6-5 squad, acknowledging senior co-captain Tom Cullen as "Defensive Lineman of the Year" and senior co-captain Paris Wicks, the second leading all-time rusher as "Offensive Back of the Year" and team MVP.

Linebacker Mark Derthick and offensive tackle Rick Brunot were again recognized as the 1983 co-captains. Derthick was lauded for leading YSU's defense in total tackles.

Cohen looks to hit .500; Grove City is next foe

By JOE ROMANO

The YSU women's basketball team will seek to extend its current winning streak to three games when it takes on Grove City College tomorrow night at Beeghly Center.

The game will be played right before the men's game between YSU and Akron.

After a horrendous 1-8 start, the Penguins have been fighting for basketball respectability. They currently stand at 6-11 and coach Jeff Cohen believes his team can even its record by the time the season ends.

"I feel we can reach .500," offers Cohen, "but in order to do that, we're going to have to win some big games."

Unbeaten swimmers to face formidable foes

By JOE ROMANO

Today's swim meet at the Beeghly Center Natatorium will mark the beginning of an important part of the YSU women's swim team schedule.

The opponents — the Wright State University Raiders — have been among the nation's top five Division II teams for four of the past six years. February's foes won't be much easier. The Penguins will tangle with defending Division II champions Clarion State as well as Division I schools Cleveland State and Kent State.

But the YSU women swimmers plan to face the schedule with confidence.

How? First of all, all the meets will be held in the familiar surroundings of Beeghly Natatorium.

Secondly, the Penguins are coming off their fourth consecutive victory of the season — a school record — 73-66 at Washington & Jefferson last Friday night.

"They were the best team we've competed against to date," stated coach Joe Kemper.

That didn't seem to bother YSU, as it went out and set school marks in five events during the win. The women have broken 18 of 19 possible records in all this season.

The 200-yard medley relay team of Lori Greenlee, Karen Williams, Becky MacFadyen and Peggy DeVall began the evening by cracking the event's record with a time of 1:58.7. Williams then bettered her own record in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:15.9.

Freshman Cathy Sipka broke her standard in the 500 freestyle for the fourth straight meet. Her time was 5:15.3.

Janet Kemper kept things rolling by swimming the 50 butterfly in 27 seconds to snap that mark.

The assault ended with the 400 freestyle relay team of Sipka, DeVall, Greenlee and Kemper completing the swim in a record 3:49.3.

Although the opponents will get tougher from here on out for the Penguins, Kemper remains positive. He feels that the efforts of the team in the first four meets have prepared them for the final four.

Starting time today is 7 p.m. The meet will be a combined women's and men's meet.

have, for sure, one guy that we can put on Jakubick."

Rice pointed out that guard Kevin Cherry "did a tremendous job" in keeping Eastern Kentucky's Jim Stepp and Morehead State's Guy Minnifield at low totals during the Penguins' games last weekend. Stepp, who had been averaging just under 16 points per game, had only 10 with Cherry guarding him. Minnifield, averaging just under 17 at the time, was held to six.

"We've been getting good defensive play at guard with Cherry, (Bruce) Alexander, (Bruce) Timk and (Jay) McHugh," Rice pointed out. Rice also said that the loss of Art McCullough — perhaps for the rest of the season — may loom large in the efforts to find someone to defend Jakubick.

"Art's loss poses a lot of problems in that regard, because he's tall and he's used to checking guards," said Rice. "He would be a prime candidate for this job and the challenge of covering the nation's leading scorer would bring out the best in him."

Jakubick scored 44 points last Friday when Akron lost 86-77 to Morehead State. The next night, he scored 36 more when the Zips bowed 70-69 to Eastern Kentucky. Those same two teams defeated YSU last weekend. Eastern topped the Penguins 83-78 Friday before Morehead beat them 90-74 Saturday.

McCullough

the Penguins and placed him 13th in the conference.

McCullough's scoring also included 11 three-point field goals, ranking him sixth in the OVC. However, McCullough's 55 percent average for three-point goal attempts placed him above the OVC's leaders.

McCullough joined the Penguins when he walked on as a freshman during the 1980-81 season.

Take Charge At 22.

In most jobs, at 22 you're near the bottom of the ladder.

In the Navy, at 22 you can be a leader. After just 16 weeks of leadership training, you're an officer. You'll have the kind of job your education and training prepared you for, and the decision-making authority you need to make the most of it.

As a college graduate and officer candidate, your Navy training is geared to making you a leader. There is no boot camp. Instead, you receive professional training to help you build the technical and management skills you'll need as a Navy officer.

This training is designed to instill confidence by first-hand experience. You learn by doing. On your first sea tour, you're responsible for managing the work of up to 30 men and the care of sophisticated equipment worth millions of dollars.

It's a bigger challenge and a lot more responsibility than most corporations give you at 22. The rewards are bigger, too. There's a comprehensive package of benefits, including special duty pay. The starting salary is $16,400—more than most companies would pay you right out of college. After four years, with regular promotions and pay increases, your salary will have increased to as much as $29,800.

As a Navy officer, you grow, through new challenges, new tests of your skills, and new opportunities to advance your education, including the possibility of attending graduate school while you're in the Navy.

Don't just take a job. Become a Navy officer, and take charge. Even at 22.
