AN EDITORIAL

Censorship

By Lynn C. Newland
Editor, Youngstown Jambar

The principles of freedom of the press are being thrust to the bottom of the censor's pit on this campus. The actions responsible for this drive reek with the stench of suppression. It is impossible to continue publication under these conditions. The only solution to this disaster is that the administration bend and openly approve free expression in this university. If they do not this precious freedom will die.

Freedom of expression and inquiry is being choked from three sides. They are the Administration and its two puppet groups, the Publications Committee and the Student Council. These three form a creeping cloak of censorship around your newspaper. The Administration menaces editors' with "don't hang your dirty wash before the public" if this coercive phrase doesn't deter the editor the Publications Committee makes certain that it keeps tabs on what the editor writes and what he permits to be published. And, acting the part of the student mouthpiece of the Administration, Student Council takes it upon itself "to consider the policy of the Youngstown Jambar."

Who is so foolish to believe that there aren't loads of "dirty wash" at this university or at any university in any democratic society? Individual liberty sank to a low ebb when we were handed a prepared statement of apology. It was addressed to a Youngstown concern whom the University Administrators sought to appease. This administrative scheme failed because we refused to publish it. We were subsequently threatened with a statement to the effect that we were aware of what the consequences might be.

The second arm of suppression and censorship is the Publications Committee. This committee is comprised of three faculty members only one of whom has had professional newspaper experience and three students all three of whom are completely ignorant of the first step in the publication of a newspaper. This Publications Committee would be more correctly labeled the Censorship Committee. They certainly aren't qualified to assist students who are interested in journalism. Not once has this committee come forth with any positive and constructive help for the development and operation of this newspaper. Not once have the advisors of this newspaper set foot in this office to aid the progress of the staff and the mechanical operation of the paper. What, then, is the function of this committee? Why was it formed?

The third arm of suppression stems from the 22 students who comprise your Student Council. This is the group whose biggest responsibilities lie in policing student elections, counting ballots and contracting bands for school dances. This insipid body of legislators isn't capable of managing its own affairs and yet has the gall to "place Jambar policy under consideration." It would be wise for this inept group of political puppets to bother itself with its own policy and to refrain from areas of policy of which it knows nothing about.

Such is the plight we now find ourselves. Because this is a university it seems to us that the Administration should encourage the free exchange of thoughts and opinions. Students and faculty should be granted an intellectual license to inquire and express conflicting concepts without fear of reprisal. Why, then, does the Administration doggedly persist in such obvious efforts to smash these freedoms. You, as students realize that you will be forced to remain silent

Advice to Youth and Administrators

By Robert U. Brown

Reprint Courtesy of EDITOR and PUBLISHER

One of the major questions facing student editors is "how free is their own brand of free press?" Hardly a year goes by without some student editor feeling the wrath of school authorities for something he has written and published. He and his fellow editors usually raise the cry of "freedom of the press" as justification for having their own way. The question is difficult to answer to their satisfaction and doubts may enter the minds of editors from the high school level through college.

The editors of The Woodberry Oracle, student publication of Woodberry Forest School in Virginia, had those doubts and asked an experienced newspaperman to give them some answers. Leon Dure, former executive editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch and the Winston-Salem Journal & Sentinel, whose two sons are alumni of the school, wrote them a letter which we think might be helpful to others - either student editors who are faced with the problem, or newspapermen whom they ask for advice.

Mr. Dure's comments on authority and responsibility are worth reading.

"Your request for a reflective letter on the title and duty of a student editor is so flattering, as well as so challenging that I hasten to try.

"First, who bears ultimate responsibility for the publication itself? Plainly, this responsibility is borne by the school administration, for this authority has the power of life or death. This is true of all school publications because of the total control, by a school, of its students. It also is generally true of college publications, no doubt unfortunately, although this need not be the case.

"Thus when a student editor conceives himself to be 'free,' or a school makes any such claim for him, neither is being factual. What is meant is that the editor is relatively free, quite free, almost free.

"That this can be discouraging, and even crippling, cannot be disputed. Yet it carries over to college life because, in that case, of the dependence of most college publications on the institutions they serve. And it carries over into the adult world in the ownership of newspapers by stockholders. The only really free editors are such people as Harry Golden at Charlotte, who owns his own paper and edits his own idiosyncrasies.

"With this much understood, the student editor finds himself faced with the hard problem of being both honest with himself and responsible to the school administration in not inciting lawlessness and confusion. And these two duties do not always coincide, even though every effort is made by dull adults to make them appear that way. For example, the daily press constantly proclaims both its responsibility and its freedom, which are not compatible. The only really free press is an irresponsible press. But such is our semantic innocence that few people recognize this.

"What, then, do do?

"Such is this imperfect world that we are forced to a compromise but a compromise that need not be dishonorable provided its terms are understood by everybody. And in these terms, I think the school should yield far more than the editor, for its own sake as well as the editor's. By yielding almost, if not quite, everything, there is just the chance that this toleration for thought might stimulate the school, carry into college and explode thereafter in a world that certainly needs it.

"For certain it is that all those now suffering the hardening arteries and cowering intellectuality that go with an age of, say, forty have made a mess of things. Our only hope would seem to be a return to that competition of free ideas in the market place of Mr. Justice Holmes. Hence, I suggest that the school solution might be an application of the Holmes dissent in the Abrams case that is the basis for the American free press. No publication, said Mr. Holmes, is to be interfered with unless it constitutes a 'clear and present' danger to government itself.

"That these recent issues hardly go that far is pretty obvious. That the editorials are surprising in their subjects and astounding in their competence also must be admitted. Only the rare adult editor could express his doubts so well. And it would be an even rarer adult editor who could steel himself to debate either tribal custom or religion. As to the latter we adults have a rule that shows our difference: Everybody agrees to the freedom of religion, provided everybody agrees not to discuss it.

"And you will find that there are any number of other such taboos. For we adults are weary of these old fields. Hence it will take another plowing by another people, more energetic and, it begins to appear, more intelligent, to turn up any new potatoes."

THE UNITED STATES LOWERS THE BOOM!!

Castro, Take Note

U.S. Shows Indication Of a "Get Tough Policy"

By Frank Court

The diplomatic break with Cuba, a praise worthy move, could temporarily take the wind out of the sails of the bearded dictator, but it's a sure bet that Mr. Castro is not through making headaches for Capital Hill. His interest in the Guantanamo Naval Base is keen enough to create more problems for our State Department. However, the position taken by the White House so far seems firm and not liable to falter.

And so for the first time since Castro came to power, the U.S. has struck back strong and with determination. Its about time. The bearded maniac has been thumbing his nose at us long enough. We can no longer tolerate his insults without losing our dignity as a nation.

The break with Castro (and it is a break only with Castro and his goons, not with the Cuban people) should give the U.S. a boost in respect but only if we remain firm in future dealings with the dictator. For once, we are on the offensive and its satisfying. The offensive is the position that we should have held long before now. We cannot hope to crush Castro's power by merely raising our eyebrows at his antics and drawing our shell tighter. We must lash out at him in the same manner he employs, only with more tact and more success.

Castro is a small man who has been lucky enough to discover our soft spot; the fear of an all-out nuclear war with Russia. He has played his hand artfully. However, the fact that the Soviet Union is just as fearful of nuclear war as the U.S. is a point he missed, and one that the White House has finally decided to recognize. If getting tough in our policies means running the risk of war, but insuring if we are successful - the hope for peace in the future; then our choice is already made.

It lies within our power to crush the Communist menace and rid the world of men like Castro. To do so, we must take the initiative and commence to fight them with their own weapons. As long as there is the threat of all-out war, possibly a war of self-extinction, looming over their heads, they will think twice before resorting to the power of their atomic weapons. We must move while there is still time to move. If we don't, the future of the free world will be the price we paid for our laxity.

War is not the answer to the problems of the free world, just as it is not the choice of the Communist world. If we move, it must be in a direction that will place us on the offensive, hammering at their weaknesses. We must continue to maintain the respect of the world and at the same time refuse Communist demands for summits and conferences and other propaganda moves beneficial to their campaign for world supremacy. We must refuse them until the time that we believe they will actually accomplish something and enter into them with determination to raise objections instead of answering them and with the realization that ours is a struggle to defeat Communist tyranny, not to live in toleration of it.

when pursuing your career, but must your minds be shackled now without first flexing and developing? For example, why doesn't this university, if it is to be a university in the true meaning of the word, sponsor controversial speakers? Why aren't faculty-student debates and or exchange - of - idea panels ever held? These activities should form a part of every university's curriculum. The college community is a most ideal situation for these seminars of intellectual stimulation. Why does Youngstown University permit this opportunity to die?

The Administration of this university must realize and proclaim the necessity of free expression, free inquiry and free press. What other university administrations do isn't important to us, it's what our own Administration does.

If the Administration fails to recognize these basic freedoms at this university two inevitable results become clear and imminent. We will resign and the Administration will place a handpicked puppet in the editor's chair. The death-knell of freedom of the press will have sounded forever.

Did You Know It's the Truth That . . . . .

Greetings reader! Glad to see you had the courage to tackle another one. Not that I didn't receive praise on my last column. Why just the other day a reader suggested I go on tour with my column. He didn't use those words. It was more like: "Hit the road!" Another suggested Russia, and there were one or two other suggestions just as impractical. Remember there's more to this column than meets the nose. Yes, this column will be popular for ages - six to ten . . . . .

Washington is really economizing. Why someone came up with a plan to save the Post Office $200,000,000. Of course there might be a little trouble when the money orders aren't delivered. There is no truth in the rumor that Youngstown won the Cotton Bowl. I will not print anything about Joe Zitnik, or that there is a Bowling league that bowls on Sunday.

Edwin Ryan translated the Gettysburg Address into Latin. One chicken ate a racing form and now she is laying odds. A wedding ring is like a tourniquet, it stops your circulation. There are two kinds of girls in the world! Those who take you for what you are and those that take you for what you have. . . . .

Some of the new fraternity songs include: She wouldn't Kiss Me in the Canoe So I paddled Her Back, Get the Hammer Mother, There's A Fly on Baby's Head, and Stop the Presses! You're Hurting My Wrist. . . . . One of the new cars has glass floorboards - so when you run over someone, you can see who it was.

Business was so good at one of the local Drive-in movies, that they are going to start showing pictures next week. Tonight is Tau Omega's dance, and they are having special entertainment during the bands intermission. Hope to see you there. Prices are going down, why, yesterday I ate in a restaurant where they gave me the second glass of water for nothing. I always keep a $5 bill in my wallet for sentimental reasons. Lincoln looks like my girl friend.

My doctor told me to limit my drinking to one day and I did. Right now I am working on March 4, 1998. Isn't the Kinsey Report something? I had to pay $6.50 to find out I am a slob.

Dr. Harder's Logic class is one of the "Harder" classes at Youngstown. Vaudeville is dead and T.V. is the box that they put it in. There was a pregnant nurse whose theme song was Witch Doctor. The original cast production of Ben Hur was in 1903. Necking is a sport in which the neck plays a comparatively no part.

Syllogism:
An appointment is a date. A date is a sticky fruit. A sticky fruit is a prune. A prune is something full of wrinkles. And something full of wrinkles is too dam old. So please cancel my appointment.

Comments and Criticisms

Columnist Accuses University's Narrow Minded Administration

By J. William Swartz
Jambar Campus Commentator

We stand at the cross roads. As an institution of higher learning, we can only go in two directions from here. This university has reached a plateau where it can stay, wandering aimlessly at the same level, or from where it can advance to the summit.

THIS is not a large institution, as many of the university officials would have us believe. It has a large physical plant, a large enrollment, and a substantial endowment. Even considering the full time students of this university only (3600), how many colleges and universities in this country have a larger enrollment?

A quick survey reveals that the majority lie below this level. But this university is still small - small because it thinks in small terms. Minds are bound in a strait jacket. They cannot imagine, perceive, or speculate.

If, then, we follow the argument of cause and effect, what is the cause of this fettered philosophy? I do not believe that it can be ascribed to one individual, one group, or to a collective number of groups and individuals. It goes far beyond this to the intangible philosophy of the community.

I CAN state, without fear of contradiction, that the ship-wrecked philosophy of this community is narrow-mindedness and oblivion to the possibility of the future. It follows that since the students, faculty, and administration are, for the most part, products of this community, this type of thinking is predominant in the hallowed halls of Youngstown University.

Are we helpless then to throw off the shackles of this narrow-mindedness, and escape? No, nor can we exonerate ourselves, as students or university officials, because for the past 52 years we have blindly groped and blundered from one trivial truism to the next petty principle. For instance, how many buildings have we built during the tremendous post-war architectural surge? two - a library and a science building. Certainly, the supply of capital is limited, and for their unceasing devotion to accumulate and subscribe funds, the administration must be commended.

But I now call them to task by daring to inquire if all the potential

Spanish Club Award Recipient Reports On Travels Tonight

The Spanish Club, Los Buenos Vecinos, will hold its last meeting of this semester today at 8:15 p.m. in the Blue Room of Pollock House. Marilyn Mozzillo, recipient of the club's 1960 scholarship, will give a formal report on her project.

MARILYN went to Guatemala last summer to study the treatment of the North American in the Latin American novel. Because of the present feelings toward various Latin American countries this subject is pertinent in our relations with our southern neighbors. Miss Mozzillo further develops her project report by showing through Latin American literature how the peoples of those Latin America countries feel toward us.

Applications for the 1961 scholarship will be taken up until the end of February. Any full time student is eligible to apply for the $400.00 grant as an aid in continuing his worthwhile project. There are no application forms, applicants need only submit a letter to Mrs. Roy Mills, Youngstown University. This letter should contain factual data about the project and why the student would like the scholarship.

resources have been tapped? To the administration I address this statement:

Gentlemen, we are no longer a small university, except in our manner of thinking: let us learn to think, talk, and act big. I do not call for an overnight change, I do not call for an immediate reversal of thinking, I ask only, that as a student of Youngstown University, and as a potential alumni donor, that you re-value and re-examine your thinking.

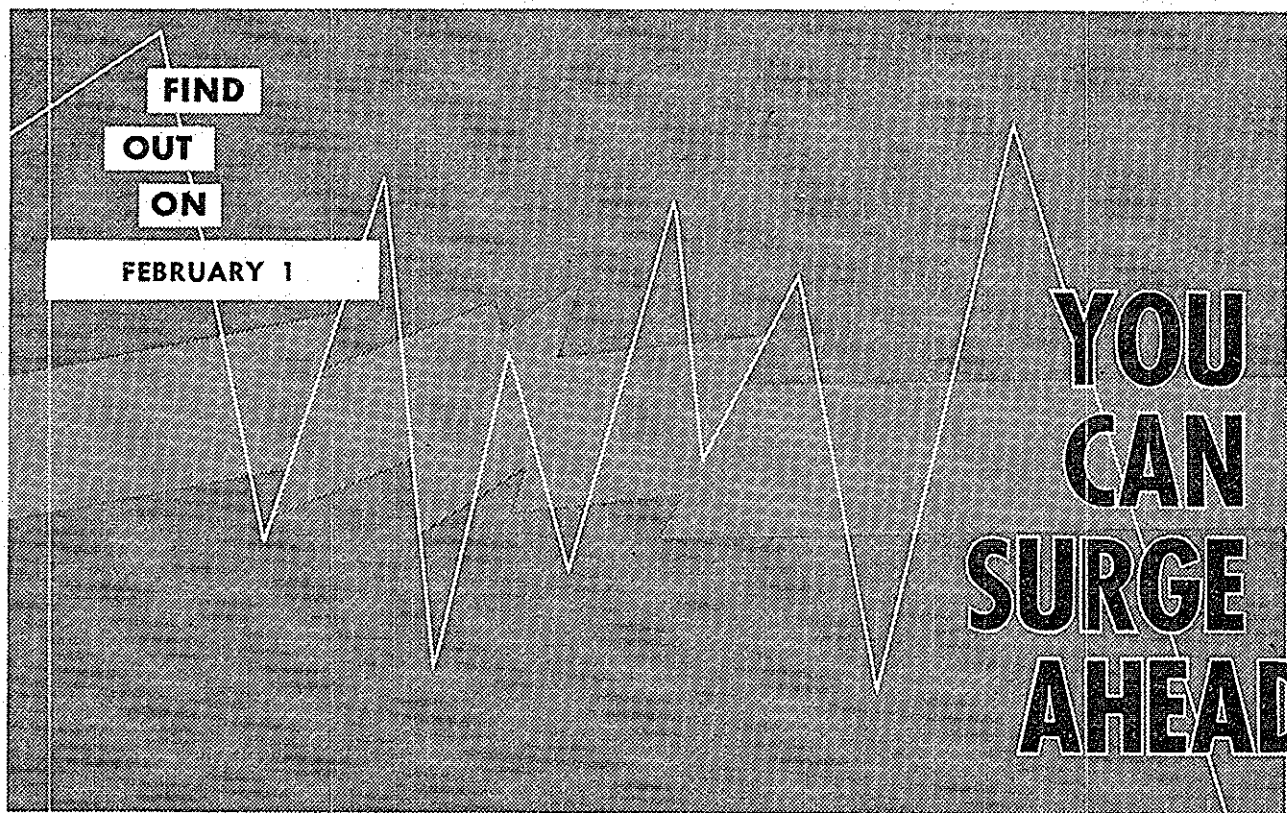

The thought that small thinking has predominated in the past, and that it might continue in the future, frightens me, because we have in our hands the key to the future - the Urban Bond Renewal. Will small thinking dominate? Will hesitancy remain king until it is no longer possible to utilize federal funds for campus re-development? I cannot answer these questions. The only ones who can are those who constitute the administration of this university.

THE ENGINEERS HAVE HAIRY EARS

Today in this age of technology when engineering graduates are wooed and courted by all of America's great industries, how do you account for the fact that Rimbaud Sigafos, who finished at the very top of his class at M.I.T., turned down hundreds of attractive job offers to accept employment as a machinery wiper at the Acme Ice Company at a salary of $20 a week with a twelve-hour day, a seven-day week, and only fifteen minutes for lunch?

I know what you are thinking: "Cherchez la femme!" You are thinking that Mr. Acme, head of the Acme Ice Company, has a beautiful daughter with whom Rimbaud is madly in love and he took the job only to be near her.

Friends, you are wrong. It is true that Mr. Acme does have a daughter, a large, torpid lass named Clavdia who spends all her waking hours scooping marzipan out of a bucket and staring at a television set which has not worked in some years. Rimbaud has not the slightest interest in Clavdia; nor, indeed, does any other man, excepting possibly John Ringling North.

So how come Rimbaud keeps working for the Acme Ice Company? Can it be that they provide him with free Marlboro Cigarettes, and all day long he is able to settle back, make himself comfortable and enjoy the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste?

A large, torpid lass named Clavdia

No, friends, no. Rimbaud is not allowed to smoke on the job and when he finishes his long, miserable day he has to buy his own Marlboros, even as you and I, in order to settle back and enjoy that choice tobacco, that smooth, mellow flavor, that incomparable filter, that pack or box.

Well, friends, you might as well give up because you'll never in a million years guess why Rimbaud works for the Acme Ice Company. The reason is simply this: Rimbaud is a seal!

He started as a performing seal in vaudeville. One night on the way to the Ed Sullivan show, he took the wrong subway. All night the poor mammal rode the B.M.T., seeking a helping hand. Finally a kindly brakeman named Ernest Thompson Sigafos rescued the hapless Rimbaud.

He took Rimbaud home and raised him as his own, and Rimbaud, to show his appreciation, studied hard and got excellent marks and finished a distinguished academic career as valedictorian of M.I.T.

Rimbaud never complained to his kindly foster father, but through all those years of grammar school and high school and college, he darn near died of the heat! A seal, you must remember, is by nature a denizen of the Arctic, so you can imagine how poor Rimbaud must have suffered in subtropical New York and Boston, especially in those tight Ivy League suits.

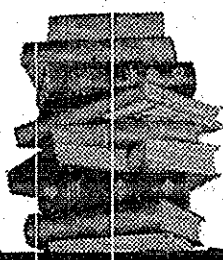

But today at the Acme Ice Company, Rimbaud has finally found a temperature to his liking. He is very happy and sends greetings to his many friends.

Penguins Cop Eighth; Getch Hoops 15 of 17

Youngstown Five Hand Muskingum Eighth Loss

The Youngstown University Penguins romped to a 76-59 win over the Muskingum Muskies in a tilt played last Friday in which Tom Getch featured with 15 out of 17 shots from the field.

Getch's 32 point splurge played an important roll in raising the Penguin's win total to 8 and the Muskies defeats to 8 in as many games.

Collectively, the Penguin hard-court men hit on 36 of 90 shots for a 40 per cent average while Muskingum dropped in 19 of 72. Youngstown controlled the backboards with big Charley Day and Jim Fugua sharing the rebound honors.

Bob Mix, a 6-7 center was the leading scorer for the losers splitting the cords for 20 points.

The Muskies jumped to an early 6-0 lead as the Penguins couldn't find the mark. Charlie Day opened the scoring for the locals with a tip in. The Penguins then opened up and moved in front with the score at 11-10 with 11 minutes in the first half.

Mix pushed in a foul shot and tied the game at 11-11, but this was the last time in the fray that the Muskies were in front of the Penguins.

Youngstown led by 11 points at the half.

Getch, Fitzpatrick and Fugua teamed up at the beginning of the second half and after 5 minutes increased the margin to 49-32.

The YU subs saw action as the Penguins maintained their margin but Getch remained in the game until 1:54 were left. Freeman was fouled at the buzzer and dropped in the final point for the Muskies. The final score stood at 76-59.

The Penguins outshot the Muskies from the field to the tune of 36-19, but bowed to the winless Muskingum squad on the foul line, 21-14.

"IT'S HERE—IF YOU WANT TO WORK FOR IT"

Even before Ron Spetrino received his engineering degree from Case he had good job offers from six companies.

He joined The Ohio Bell Telephone Company —his reason: "I was convinced an engineer could go further here—if he was willing to work for it."

As soon as Ron got his feet on the ground in telephone engineering, he was tapped for a tough assignment. The job—to engineer switching equipment modifications needed to prepare Cleveland for nationwide customer dialing of long distance calls.

Ron wrapped it up in five months, and found he had earned a shot at another tough assignment. In this job Ron helped engineer a completely new long distance switching center for Cleveland. This switching center connected Cleveland with the nationwide customer dialing network. It was about a year later that Ron put the finishing touches on the specs for this $1,600,000 project.

Today, as a Supervising Engineer, Ron heads a staff of five engineers and is responsible for telephone switching in much of the greater Cleveland area.

He supervises the design and purchase of $3 million worth of equipment a year. And even more important, he is charged with developing the technical and managerial skills of his staff.

Ron knows what he's talking about when he says, "In this business you have to do more than a good job. We expect a man to be a self-developer. We expect him to take responsibility from his first day on the job and think for himself. You don't get ahead around here by just doing time."

If you want a job in which you're given every chance to prove yourself, and real responsibility right from the start—you'll want to see your Placement Office for further information.

Return to the Grind

By Blase Deleo and Molly Stuart

Welcome back for the week of terror sponsored by the faculty of Youngstown University. Face it group - its their turn again, now they make us suffer a little. After sixteen weeks of biding their time they finally get their semester reward.

Now they can pay us back for such things as sleeping in class, not buying the book, and writing our exams like they were meant to be a code. Take for example one of our prof's, you no doubt have one like him. He is the type that loves to rub it in at the end of the semester by little statements like, "well students it was fun having you, to bad you are all receiving 'F's", or the type that tells you that he tried to cut the final down but it was impossible, so would you all mind staying four hours instead of two for the final.

WHY is it that all the teachers think they are Shelly Berman at the end of the semester. One last thought before we leave, if you don't pass these Old Boy, you may be reading this newspaper from "Laos" next year.

Notice all the new fraternity jackets on campus in the past few weeks. Rumor has it that one of the frat's are going to wear their own civilian jackets - just to be different.

WE hate to bring up a dead horse, but remember all the talk about student identification cards. We would like to know what happened to them. This comes up because of the ridiculous maze a student has to go through to get a library book or get into a dance or basketball game. You need a bookbag just to carry all the identification with you. We have an idea, why don't they just brand us on the forehead with a Y.U. It would be cheaper.

George Wargo, the head of the mop battalion in the library would like it be known that he would like the funny remarks stopped about his mopping ability. After all if he wasn't on hand to keep the water off the floor near the entrance of the library someone could easily open the door step and drown.

TERRY "The Smiling Italian" Mullen has been trying to get his famous name in the column for four weeks. Now remember this name group, it will be the last time it will make print, until they send him up the river that is.

Secretarial School Head Dies; Taught 60 Years

By Janice Landis

James B. Williams Sr., 82, of 4904 Simon Road, director of the secretarial school of Youngstown University, a teacher here for some 54 years, died at 4 p.m. Wed. at his residence as the result of a coronary.

ALTHOUGH being a modest man who shied away from publicity Mr. Williams is well remembered for his priceless dry sense of humor, generosity and kind deeds. He was an exacting teacher who spent many extra hours helping students with difficulties. Known affectionately as "JB", he had more than 20,000 students under his direction at Hall Business College and Youngstown University. Mr. Williams was at his office Wed. when he expired. In June he had completed 60 years of teaching.

Mr. Williams came to Youngstown from Bowling Green, Ky., in 1906 to join the faculty of Hall Business College, then on East Federal St. He taught commercial subjects and was head of the department which included bookkeeping, business law, business English and salesmanship. In 1920 Mr. Williams became head of the Hall Business College. During his 22 years there, some 10,000 students studied under his direction.

ON June 1, 1928, when Hall Business College was merged with the YMCA Business School, he brought 112 students with him to the new organization. This was the active beginning of the day business school, now known as the Secretarial School of Youngstown University. Previously it had been a night school. The YMCA purchased both the Hall Business College and its equipment.

Mr. Williams was born in Boguchita, Lincoln County, Miss., March 19, 1878, the son of James B. and Elizabeth Gwynn Williams, and attended Arcadia College, Crowley, La., Southern Normal College and Bowling Green College of Commerce, Ky. His wife, Viola, died May 17, 1956.

HE WAS a member of the John Knox United Presbyterian Church, an elder of the Evergreen Presbyterian Church before the merger, and a Sunday school superintendent for 16 years.

Mr. Williams leaves two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Cocksey of Hubbard and Mrs. Ruth Crobler of Baltimore; two sons, James of Tampa, Fla., and Nathaniel of Youngstown; a sister, Mrs. J.R. Simmons of Rusk, Tex.; eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Sat. in the Thompson Funeral Home.

Chicago Concern Holds Student Interview Mart

On April 14 and 15 there will be a marketing interview center, under the sponsorship of the Chicago Chapter of the American Marketing Association, at the Palmer House in Chicago.

THERE will be interviewers there from about 200 firms, including such as I.B.M., Inland Steel, UARCO, J. Walter Thompson, Baxter Laboratories, and The Fair Store. Firestone Tire and Rubber alone will be looking for about 60 particular people.

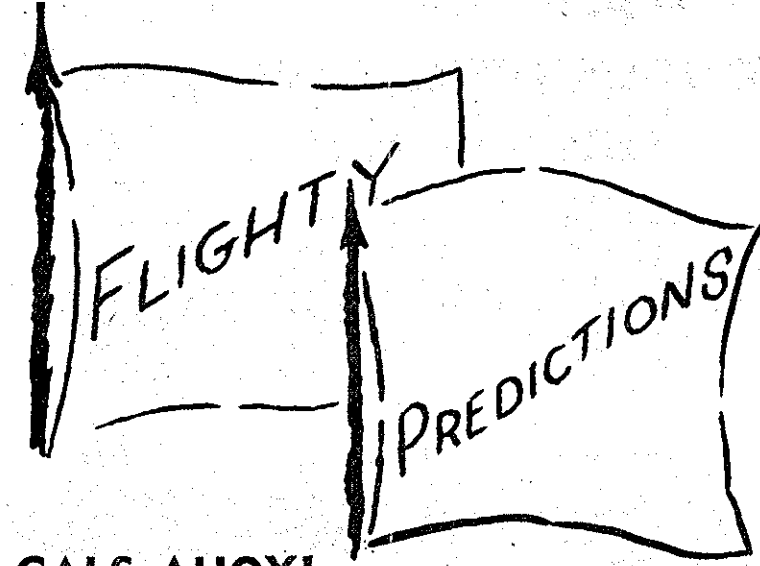

The conference is open to all students ending full-time college in June or February. Participants will be furnished with booklets on job interviews, resume writing, as well as data on all firms that will be attending. The interviews will be held on an individual basis, with the invitations coming from the companies. The companies will select the persons to be interviewed from volumes which will be coded by the I.B.M. Corporation.

THE data for these volumes will be taken from the regular placement forms that participants will get from the Chicago Chapter of the American Marketing Association.

This is the best chance the student will have to meet representatives from the major companies in the country. Even the best students who have already received job offers may find it useful to come to Chicago and to compare bids from other top-notch companies.

Since there is a limit on the number of students who will be taken interested students should get their names and addresses to Mr. Peter Karambelas, 820 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 11, Illinois.

There will be a small registration fee to cover student kit material and other secretarial expenses, renting of large interview spaces at the Palmer House, arranging for one free dinner, luncheon and breakfast. It will not be over $5.00. Dormitory-style room at hotel: $4.00 per person (with wings for male and female students). The Chicago Chapter is a non-profit organization.

GETTING DOWN TO CASES... WITH AN ELECTRONIC COMPUTER

A young lawyer may spend many years searching through the countless volumes in a law library before he ever gets a chance to plead a case. His job is to research the cases which may provide legal precedent. It's a very necessary but tedious task.

Recently it was demonstrated that an IBM computer could accomplish electronic retrieval of statutory law. Nearly 2,000 statutes pertaining to a specific area of the law were stored in the computer's memory. In response to inquiries, the computer searched its memory at electronic speed and on instructions pointed out either citations or the full text of relevant statutes. This was accomplished in minutes. It might have taken a young lawyer the entire day.

Putting computers to work in unusual ways is not new at IBM. Computers are now doing remarkable jobs in interesting and important areas of business, industry, science and government.

If you are interested in a company that offers you an exciting career with virtually unlimited growth potential, then you should investigate IBM. Positions are open in research, development, programming and manufacturing.

The IBM representative will be glad to discuss any one of these fields with you. Your placement office can give you further information and arrange for an appointment. Or you may write, outlining your background and interests, to: Manager of Technical Employment, IBM Corporation, 590 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N.Y.

You naturally have a better chance to grow with a growth company.

2 Local Coeds Attend Statewide Education Meet

By Barbara Steiner

Attending the Ohio State Education Association Convention in Columbus on Dec. 15 through 17 were Barbara Steiner, junior in elementary education, and Barbara Schmolder, sophomore in high school education. They were elected as delegates by members of Student Education Association to represent Youngstown University.

THE purpose of student delegates attending the convention was for them to receive insights into the problems facing Ohio teachers and the proposed solutions so that these insights can be transmitted to the Student Education Associations all over the state.

Both student and teacher delegates elected state officers for the coming year.

The major speech of the convention was given by Eric Johnson President of the Motion Picture Association of America. He spoke of the desperate need of teachers in Africa. In French Africa, less than 15 per cent of the people are literate.

Trying to alleviate this problem is the Foreign Educational Corps consisting of teachers who go abroad to "teach the natives how to teach." Under this plan, teachers can retire at 50 and get a vacation home every three years with full pay. Even though teachers are considered elite, only 451 students were accepted out of 10,000 applications last year at a university in Africa due to a lack of teachers.

"EDUCATION is a word which opens up new horizons and new hopes for people everywhere. Progress is made through education." With these words, Mr. Johnson concluded his speech which accentuated the teacher shortage in Africa.

DR. FROOD IS SPEECHLESS!

MAKE MONEY! Dr. Frood is unable to answer letter from perplexed student. Your help needed. Lucky Strike will pay $200 for best reply to this letter:

Dear Dr. Frood: How can a man such as yourself be so wrong so often, so stupid so consistently and yet, at the same time, have the intelligence, good sense and outstanding good taste to smoke, enjoy and recommend the world's finest cigarette--Lucky Strike?

Perplexed

If you were Dr. Frood, how would you answer this letter? Send us your answer in 50 words or less. Try to think as Frood thinks, feel as Frood feels. For instance, his answer might be "HAVEN'T YOU EVER HEARD OF SCHIZOPHRENIA?" You can do better. All entries will be judged on the basis of humor, originality and style (it should be Froodian). Lucky Strike, the regular cigarette college students prefer, will pay $200 to the student who, in the opinion of our judges, sends the best answer to the letter above. All entries must be post-marked no later than March 1, 1961. Lean back, light up a Lucky and THINK FROOD. Mail your letter to Lucky Strike, P. O. Box 15F, Mount Vernon 10, New York. Enclose name, address, college or university and class.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!
