Quarterson New Jambar Editor

By Cal McMahan

David L. Quarterson, of Farrell, Pa., has been officially appointed Jambar editor for the Spring semester of 1961.

The mid-term change in this post was due to the resignation of Lynn C. Newland. Mr. Quarterson was recommended by Student Council last Friday, Feb. 3, and approved by the University Committee on Publications Monday.

Quarterson, a Junior in the school of Business Administration, has a retail merchandising major and an advertising minor as objectives. He has a very commendable 3.44 average.

Mr. Quarterson stated, "As editor, I will co-operate with Student Council, the Administration and Professor Crites (the Jambar advisor) as much as possible. In return, I will expect their co-operation and assistance."

There will be no marked changes in the policies of the newspaper as Mr. Quarterson worked closely and in accordance with Mr. Newland.

One change decided by the University Committee on Publications, was to alter the publication title, "The Youngstown Jambar" to "The University Jambar", to refrain from the appearance of a city-wide tabloid.

Cooperation With Reservation

By David L. Quarterson - Editor

When Student Council and the Publications Committee approved my application for editorship of the University Jambar, I assumed a responsibility that was never mentioned or defined. It was left to me to interpret that responsibility and follow my own course of action. That responsibility is the editorial policy of the University Jambar.

After thought and consideration I have reached these conclusions. A newspaper such as the Jambar cannot take sides. It is a student newspaper and a reflection of the attitudes and activities of the students. It is not the purpose of a student newspaper to take sides or favor one group over another.

The Administration and Faculty are also a part of Youngstown University and play a large part in student life. This fact is obvious and so they cannot be excluded from this paper.

The aim of the paper will be as complete a coverage of student activities as possible. I intend no yellow journalism or purple prose of which past editors have, justly or unjustly, been accused. Only chaos is achieved by this. Rather the University Jambar will co-operate with the institutions and organizations of Youngstown University. This will, I believe, result in a better newspaper.

However, the Jambar will not remain passive or dormant when vital issues should be brought before the student body. This does not imply that we will attack anyone and everyone for the sake of sensationalism. Our primary aim is the betterment of Youngstown University, not sensationalism. But, I reserve the right to voice justified objections, after careful consideration, when it will result in the improvement of this University.

America Should Measure Wealth in Terms of Faith

Though we often read of America's wealth being measured in terms of gold, dollars, tons and bushels, few tabulations take into account one of the greatest assets we have: the force of faith.

History promises -- and proves -- the power and effect of this force.

One place this promise is made is in the Gospel of St. Mark (11:24) where Jesus says: "Therefore I say unto you, what things soever ye desire when ye pray, believe that ye receive them and ye shall receive them."

"Ask and it shall be given you," promises the Gospel of St. Luke (11:9). Other faiths in other words offer the same promise. But is there any modern evidence that the promise is fulfilled?

Plenty! The United States, first settled by peoples seeking religious freedom, later formed into a republic with freedom of religion written into the Constitution, is one of the most dramatic examples of rapid growth under religious freedom.

"Ah," say scoffers, "but America is so big and complex that you can't tell WHAT caused the progress."

But another example of religious freedom -- and its effect -- is harder to deny.

An American neighbor, an island republic of less than 20,000 square miles, was brought to civilization almost a century before us, and built the first cathedral in the western hemisphere.

The history of the republic has had pathetic chapters. In early days, a group of Spaniards would not accept the fact that Indians had souls. Severimes the country's sovereignty was destroyed. In 1925, a hurricane killed 2,500 citizens, and damage to the capitol city was practically total. Often, religious faith was virtually the only asset the people had.

Today the country is a prosperous nation -- and celebrates more religious holidays than any other country in the Caribbean.

The country is the Dominican Republic, object of debate in many areas, but a clear example of a nation with freedom of religion.

The freedom is guaranteed by the country's Constitution. In its Concordat with the Vatican -- a document that provides for the security and growth of Catholicism in this predominantly Catholic land -- there is a specific mention that freedom of worship for all will be upheld.

In La Romana, a Dominican town with a population of about 10,000, there are 20 churches of separate denominations. They include the Roman Catholic Church, the Domini-

New Hope for Industry

Federal Advisory Board Is Goldberg's Brainchild

By Frank Court

ARTHUR J. GOLDBERG, the new secretary of labor, will be receiving much attention during the next four years. He was acclaimed for his "fairness and open-mindedness" by Lee M. Cohn in an article that appeared in a local newspaper a few weeks ago. Whether the fairness and objective thinking of the new secretary is valid or not, will be better determined when the steel and automotive unions come to blows with management in the not-to-distant future.

Mr. Goldberg, however, proved himself an able mediator in the recent New York harbor strike. Fourteen hours after Mr. Goldberg arrived the strike was settled. Comments raised hinted that the new President was the pressure behind the timely post-inauguration day settlement, but surely we cannot overlook the talents of the labor secretary.

Mr. Goldberg is expected by many to echo the feelings of labor in the coming issues. This is not unusual since before his present job, he was one of the union's top representatives and had a big hand in union strategy during the 116 day steel strike in 1959.

He has maintained that he will work toward better labor-management relations and will not hesitate to use federal assistance to accomplish his aims.

Since his appointment he has shown interest in establishing a National Council of Labor-Management Advisers. This will probably be one of the first steps the Kennedy administration plans to undertake and it would not be surprising to find the plans for its formation already on the chief executive's desk.

THIS COUNCIL WILL ADVISE the President and act as a mediator in settling labor-management disputes.

The pressing need for an advisory body was strengthened during the three month steel strike of 1959. It was during this strike that many looked to Washington for aid and were frustrated by the delay in help from Vice President Nixon and Labor Secretary James Mitchell.

At the time, many felt that the Washington delay was responsible for the bargainer's failure to reach a quick agreement. Goldberg is determined not to allow this to happen again. He has continually favored federal assistance. He maintains, however, that the assistance must not be compulsory.

THE COUNCIL OF NATIONAL ADVISERS will serve as an evaluating board, taking into account such areas of difference between labor and management as standard of living, cost of production, union control and job growth. This council will recognize the demands of the unions and simultaneously weigh them against the problems of management.

It will be a new inroad into union-management dispute.

Goldberg has emphasized the importance of remaining fair in arbitration and stressed the necessity of recognizing the rights of the opposition.

It is hoped that the national council of advisers will alleviate many of the difficulties the two forces have met in the past. In the past decade we witnessed a period of brutal and intolerant disputes between labor and management, and all at the sacrifice of federal funds and national security.

In the future, Goldberg hopes to find in the council of advisers, a medium that will be effective and will establish that necessary spirit of cooperation between labor and management.

Twelve years ago the Organization of American States was chartered to further the cause of peace and justice in the Americas. In that period of time the strains upon the organization have increased rapidly. It continues to remain a symbol of what should be, but tragically isn't.

President Jones Attends Urban Development Meet

"The University and the City" was the theme of a recent conference on Urban Renewal and Development attended by President Howard W. Jones of the University.

The meeting, held at Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan, Jan. 29-31, attracted some 90 educators, city planners, and civic leaders.

Other delegates from Youngstown included Edward Folk, director of the City Planning Commission, and Edward G. Conroy, head of the Area Metropolitan Development Citizens Committee.

Dr. Jones is working with the planning commission in a effort to form a plan of urban renewal to present to the federal government. The government, once the plans have the go-ahead, will put up 75% of the money. The city will finance the remaining 25% of the costs.

According to President Jones, his purpose in attending the conference was, "To get representative ideas on urban renewal to aid the University in making a plan." He stressed the point that the University is attempting to fit its desires and objectives into the general plan for the city.

Although nothing has been definitely decided, The University has been working for some time on plans for new buildings and improved parking facilities. When the plan for improvement is completed, it will be presented to City Council for approval.

Second Army Orders ROTC Camp Change

The Youngstown University ROTC is among a group of ROTC units located in Ohio and Virginia that will exchange training sites for their 1961 summer camp training, it was announced this week at Second United States Army Headquarters, Fort Meade, Md.

Ten Ohio colleges and universities which have been sending their advanced course students to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, for the required six weeks of summer training, will be sent to Fort Knox, Kentucky, instead, while the eight Virginia schools which have been utilizing Fort Knox for summer training, will be sent to Fort Bragg.

The change was made to permit ROTC students, to train nearer their home communities and thus achieve considerable savings to the Army in transportation costs. Army ROTC summer camp training for 1961 will be conducted during the period of June 17 to July 28.

Professor Skardon Receives Doctor of Philosophy Degree

Professor Alvin W. Skardon, Jr., of the history faculty of Youngstown University received his degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Chicago, Friday, December 16, 1960.

Dr. Skardon's field of study is urban history dealing with the rise of cities in the United States. He therefore chose for his dissertation a biography of William Augustus Muhlenberg, a prominent clergyman of the Episcopal Church in the years before the Civil War. Dr. Muhlenberg came from a famous Pennsylvania Dutch family, for whom Muhlenberg College and Muhlenberg Press are named.

Although Muhlenberg lived in the period between the Revolutionary War and the Civil War, he foresaw the rise of the cities in the United States after the Civil War, and as a prominent clergyman in Philadelphia, New York, developed church institutions to meet the needs of the people in the growing cities.

Dr. Skardon is a southerner and before the war was a hotel manager in South Carolina during the winters, and in the summers worked in New England hotels. He was drafted into the army in 1941 and went overseas in 1944 as a member of the field artillery of the 106th Division, which was almost entirely wiped out.

He was captured by the Germans in the Battle of the Bulge and spent several months as a prisoner of war in various prison camps, one of which was part of a concentration camp. He was liberated by the Russians in May 1945.

Upon his return to this country he entered the University of Chicago graduate school to work for his doctorate in history. After completing the passing of the preliminary doctoral exams he served on the staff as a foreign student advisor. In this position he had charge of the University's 300 foreign students and 200 faculty members.

He returned to the field of teaching as a visiting instructor at Baldwin Wallace and came to Youngstown University in 1958.

The Theta Chi basketball team ventured to Kent State University where they trounced the Kent Chapter 100-78. Will that strength carry over to intra-murals?

Congratulations are in order from the Brothers to Brother Fred Middleton and Mary Jane who were married September 17, in Mercer, Pa. They now reside in Boardman. Mary Jane is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority.

Brother Fred Kirby had a perfect 4.0 for the fall semester.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

The final plans for the annual Red Carnation Ball of TKE are being completed. The dance is February 18.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Omicron Chapter of Ohio State University for the loss of two brothers, killed in the plane crash over New York.

Alpha Kappa Alpha

The Ivy Leaf Club, the interest group of Alpha Kappa Alpha, elected officers at their last meeting. They are: President, Carol Machen; Vice-President, Carolyn Waters; Secretary, Betty Haynes; Treasurer, Gloria Jackson; and club reporter, Sylvia Hurd. Sigma Sigma Sorority is presenting its Fourth Annual Topsy Turvy Dance Friday, February 17, 1961 at the Eagle's Ballroom from 9-1. This dance is held to support a charity fund for a new hospital for crippled children.

During the intermission at the dance, the Topsy Turvy King will be announced by last year's king, Bill Collins. Each fraternity puts up a candidate for Topsy Turvy King. In the hall of the main building, there will be a display of the pictures of the candidates and a large glass bowl in front of their picture for each student to drop in as much as they can afford to vote for their candidate. The candidate from the fraternity that makes the most money is the Topsy Turvy King.

Remember to vote for your favorite candidate and help to build this hospital for crippled children.

The chairman for the affair is Myra Warden. The donation is 75¢ at the door.

YU Alumnus Establishes Scholarship Loan Fund

By Eleanor Novotny

Paul Shields, associate professor of electrical engineering at the Pennsylvania State University, University Park, and a graduate of this University has established a Scholarship Loan Fund at Youngstown University with the objective of encouraging good students in need of financial assistance.

The fund will be known as "The Paul E. Shields Scholarship Loan Fund."

LOANS are to be limited to mathematics and engineering students of junior or senior rank who have maintained a 3.25 and a recipient of a loan will be required to give evidence that without aid he would need to drop out of school. He must also give evidence of unquestionable character and integrity. The fund is to be available to both sexes who are citizens of the United States.

Shields is now on sabbatical leave from Penn State University and is associated with the Westinghouse Electrical Corp., Sharon, Pa., for the purpose of doing engineering research and co-authoring a technical book.

He was engaged in classified research for the U.S. Armed Services at Penn State in 1952-53. From 1944 to 1946 he did basic and applied research in the field of mechanical vibration for which he received the Navy Merit Award.

Prof. Shields has had many technical papers and articles published in engineering periodicals and technical society bulletins and has had wide practical and teaching experience in the field of engineering with the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., Ohio Edison Co., Westinghouse Electric Corp., on the mathematics and physics faculty of Youngstown University and with Penn State where he has been since 1948.

PROFESSOR Shields has his bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees from Youngstown University, his degree in electrical engineering from Penn State and his master's degree in science and further graduate work from the University of Pittsburgh.

REGISTRATION DAY

by Bill Serjak, Jambur Photographer

THE FIRST STEP in registration came when students filled out class forms, religious preference forms, IBM cards, general forms, specific forms, etc., etc., etc. Some males are still wondering what girls did with the veterans forms.

NEXT STEP was picking up student folders. This was the scene in the Purnell Room where June Summers and Bernie Polisso check records for the business students. Bernie was heard to tell one student, "Oh, I'm sorry. We just can't find your records. You say you are a second semester senior? Well, that's the breaks. Freshman registration is over there."

CHECK, CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK. Dolly Ford, pretty Y.U. coed, provides a welcome relief from the regular Pershing Rifle cadets who checked cards during registration.

GRIM FACED STUDENTS line up to exchange pre-registration cards for class cards. Although total registration is down from last semester, second semester enrollment is up 481 over last year.

THE FINAL STOP was payment of tuition. Students unwillingly paid their sixteen dollars per hour, ending registration worries for one more semester.

Faith Terms

can Evangelic-Episcopal, Moravian, Assembly of God, Apostolic Faith, Church of God, Methodist, Seventh Day Adventist, Hatian Baptist, Christian Bible, Pentecostal, Rose of Sharon, Prophecy of God, Dominican Baptist, Defenders of the Faith, and other faiths.

In the capital city, Ciudad Trujillo, religious representation is even broader. It includes most of the above plus a substantial number of Presbyterians, Jews, Bahais, Moslems, Taoists, Budhists and Hindus.

In 1938, at the Conference of Evian in France, the Dominican Republic offered entry to European Jews who had been under the heel of Nazi persecution. In 1940, the settlement of Sosua on the Dominican Republic's north shore was established with land set aside for the influx of refugees. Today, El Centro Israelitis stands as a religious monument for the 120 Jewish families in Ciudad Trujillo. Designed by a Dominican architect, the functionally modern structure has a synagogue, a social assembly hall and a library -- all donated to the Jewish community by the Dominican Republic.

Plans are underway so that Japanese settlers, whose traditional religion is Shintoism, will have the same freedom of worship and the same adequacy of facilities as their Christian and Jewish neighbors.

Has the force of faith paid off in pesos as well as peace of mind? The extent of progress provides the answer.

In 1905, according to THE COLUMBIA ENCYCLOPEDIA, "the republic was hopelessly bankrupt." In 1929, the tiny land had a foreign debt of $20 million.

Since that time, the Dominican government has been able to contribute over $7 million to the building of churches, schools and seminaries. Individual contributions have also been substantial. A national leader, Rafael L. Trujillo, is said to have contributed $75,000 from personal funds to build a Jewish synagogue, $75,000 for a Protestant center, and $100,000 to build the Catholic Cathedral of Holy Virgin of Altagrafia, where Trujillo worships.

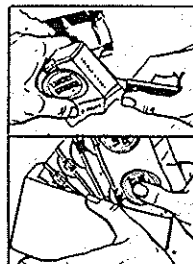

Today, the Dominican Republic boasts not only an amazing variety of churches, but also some of the most luxurious hotels in the world.

As We See It

Change of Face Again

By Pat McCarren and Blase Deleo

This may seem a little confusing to you readers, (don't feel bad - we are completely confused) but McCarren is back IN and Molly Stuart is OUT of the newspaper business. Molly has entered the teaching field, and we wish her lots of luck.

Now that the formalities are out of the way, we wish to welcome the new students - both those who have transferred and those who are starting out in their college career. A very special welcome to those of you out there who are back IN, and really, do you think you'll ever get out? Does anyone know of any person who graduated in four years? If so, we'd like to meet that individual.

Now that the nonsense of finals is out of the way, we can get back to the old routine of dances, parties, the AO, and the like, here at ole U of A (University of Anchorage). If you think the weather is bad, be consoled that in only eight short weeks, the temperature will be a warm 20 degrees and there will be only 1 foot of snow on the ground instead of 3. Now isn't that something to look forward to?

Did you know that due to the cold weather, the university maids and porters have been having a hard time finding a place to hang their newly washed towels to dry? As of last week, they were hanging them in the Snack Bar. We really don't mind except that it makes it difficult to talk with a person when his face is hidden behind a YMCA towel.

Glancing around the campus, we have noted the following:

Changes of registration are IN, cold weather is OUT, snow is OUT, the sun is IN, little lakes inside doors of the Library, Snack Bar, etc. are OUT, the new machines in the cafeteria are IN, rushing is IN, dead batteries are OUT, and if you don't understand this IN and OUT, you are OUT. If you are IN and remember IN and OUT, you should be OUT. (We're just getting on the band wagon.)

We overheard the following by one co-ed to a recently pinned friend.

"Oh, I didn't know you got pinned. I saw you wearing that last Monday, but I thought it was that silly old high school pin you used to wear around."

Now, everyone on campus who is pinned will no doubt be throwing rocks at us because of our reporting that little incident. So what?

No doubt you are familiar with the way students park in the aisles of parking lots so as to get the maximum number of cars in the lot. Our nomination for "Nice Guy of the Week" goes to J-104-Q who whipped into a lot at 7:59 A.M., got his car just off the street and into the

"GIVE A MAN A TOUGH JOB AND A CHANCE TO GO SOMEWHERE ... AND HE'LL BREAK HIS NECK TO DO IT"

In 1958 when Bill Ebben was only a few months away from his engineering degree at the University of Detroit, he was in touch with 15 prospective employers.

He chose the Michigan Bell Telephone Company because: "This company offered the kind of engineering management opportunity I wanted—and they weren't kidding."

One of Bill's first assignments was a survey of Michigan Bell's big Central District to find out how long available building space could accommodate the switching equipment required by rapid telephone growth. "I wasn't given any instruction," Bill says, "I was just told to do the job."

So Bill did it. His report became the guide for planning and budgeting future construction.

On his next move, Bill proved he could handle supervisory responsibility. He was sent to head up a group of seven engineers to design a new long distance switching center for Saginaw, Michigan—a $4,000,000 engineering project.

Today, Bill is on the staff of Michigan Bell's Program Engineer. He's working on a system for mechanized control of telephone construction costs.

How does Bill feel about his job? "Give a man a tough job and a chance to go somewhere—and he'll break his neck to do it. Of course, I don't think I'm going to be running the business next year—but I'm getting every opportunity to hit the top. You don't worry about opportunity here—you worry about whether you're as big as the job."

If you're a man like Bill Ebben, a man who can size up a job, figure out what needs to be done, and then do it—then you should get in touch with one of the Bell Companies. Visit your Placement Office for literature and additional information.

"Our number one aim is to have in all management jobs the most vital, intelligent, positive and imaginative men we can possibly find."
