

Urges School Growth

Gov. DiSalle Draws 1,000 For Seminar

Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle told some 1,000 guests at a seminar on state government that Youngstown University is a progressive institution, but that it will have to expand its facilities to keep up with the ever growing college population.

Gov. DiSalle and members of his cabinet were guests of the University and city officials at the seminar held in Strouss Auditorium, designed to alert citizens of the complexities of state management.

Among the party accompanying the governor were Dr. James H. Maloon, state finance director; Dr. Robert Haines, director of the department of mental hygiene; Dr. E. E. Holt, director of education; Mrs. Mary Gorman, director of the department of public welfare; and Theodore Kauer, director of public works.

Discusses Five Departments

The seminar discussed the function of state government in five categories including highways, welfare, mental hygiene, public education, and state supported higher education.

The morning sessions were devoted to introductory remarks by Gov. DiSalle and other members of his party. The principal address was given by Maloon who spoke on a multitude of subjects dealing with the handling of state funds.

Dr. Holt explained school financing and policies to the interested crowd of spectators. Dr. George A. Bowman, President of Kent State University and former Superintendent of the Youngstown Schools, discussed higher education during the afternoon session. Other afternoon speakers included Dr. Haines and Mrs. Gorman.

The evening sessions were devoted to a question and answer session with members of the audience firing queries to the governor and other members of the panel.

Ask Education Support

Questions ranged from state support to junior colleges to the attraction or repulsion of industry for the state of Ohio. University students did not attend the evening session in large numbers.

The governor noted that more reservations were made for this seminar than in any of the previous four he has held in this current series. Previously seminars had been held in Toledo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Columbus. Three more are scheduled for Dayton, Canton, and Akron.

Recruiters Plan Auditorium Visit

An officer selection team from the Air Force recruiting service will answer questions about the officer training school program for senior men and women from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday, in the hall in front of the auditorium.

Senior students may apply 210 days before graduation without obligation. Transportation will be furnished by the Air Force to Columbus or Dayton where processing will take place.

The local recruiting office is in the Main Post Office Building.

OHIO GOVERNOR Michael V. DiSalle takes a coffee break with members of his entourage between sessions of his day-long conference at the University. He answered Youngstowners' questions about the various departments of their state government.

Dean's Council Votes Ziemanski President

Tom Ziemanski, a junior engineering major, has been elected president of the Dean's Council of the Rayen School of Engineering for the spring semester.

Other officers include Bill Flynn, vice president; John Porea, recording secretary; Tom Williams, treasurer; and John Koshen, corresponding secretary.

The 20-member body has jurisdiction over affairs of the William Rayen Engineering School.

Enrollment Hits 7,482 for Spring

Total Is Highest Ever For Second Term

Preliminary registration figures for the spring semester indicate a total of 7,482 full and part-time students currently attending the University.

This represents a jump of about 800 students over enrollment figures for the spring semester last year when the official tally showed 6,682 full and part-time students. In addition, the figure represents the largest second semester enrollment ever experienced by the University.

Sgt. Wm. Conner Is New Assistant YU Supply Officer

Sgt. 1/C William E. Conner has recently been appointed assistant supply sergeant of the military science department.

Conner joined the Army in 1943, serving with the 82nd Airborne Division in Europe. After World War II, he returned to Ft. Bragg, N. Car., where he served until 1949. Other assignments include 11th Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., 10th Special Forces in Germany, and 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell.

He holds the Master Parachutist Badge. Other decorations include commendation and good conduct medals.

Conner is a native of Youngstown and resides with his family at 509 Poland Ave., Struthers.

Five ROTC Cadets Gain Commissions; Lt. Colson Honored

Five ROTC cadets have received their second lieutenant commissions in the U.S. Army Reserves.

They are David A. Colson, also honored as the distinguished military graduate; Ralph J. DeMain Jr., Michael D. Knable, John R. Kotchmar and Daniel F. Quinn.

The newly commissioned officers will report for active duty soon. Lt. Colson will be commissioned in the regular Army soon after reporting for active duty.

Col. Richard J. Bestor, chairman of the military science department, officiated.

Dr. Howard W. Jones, University President, expressed pleasure at the increasing enrollment, especially in view of the fact many university enrollments are down during the spring term.

Says More Want Degrees

Dr. Jones attributed the increase in part to the fact that a greater number of students want to go to college, and a large number of transfer and returning students are choosing the University.

As might be expected, a huge registration of this type was not accomplished without the usual minor ailments and complaints. The average student spent about an hour and a half getting through the multitude of booths, tables, advisors, and card files, and in many instances he was lucky to do it without stapling, bending, folding, or mutilating the IBM cards.

Table Shows School Totals
The tentative breakdown for this semester is as follows:

	Full	Part	Total
Lib. A.	1,152	845	1,997
Engin.	663	442	1,105
Music	102	29	131
Educ.	1,362	1,133	2,495
Bus. Ad.	979	775	1,754

Totals 4,258 3,224 7,482

Dr. Jones said that 1,300 students, including a number of graduated seniors, did not return to the University for the start of this semester.

The University enrolled some 1,100 new students at the start of the spring semester, accounting for the drop of 200 students in the overall figures for this school year.

The figure 1,100 represents some 513 full-time and about 600 part-time students new to the University this term.

Freshmen, transfer, and returning students are included in this count, Dr. Jones said.

YOUNGSTOWN'S TRAFFIC Engineering Department has taken the first step in determining the need for a traffic light at the Wick Ave.-Spring St. intersection with this traffic survey. Results of the survey, taken Jan. 30, 31, and Feb. 1, will not be released until a complete picture of traffic movement at the corner is available to the city.

A New Approach

Regrettably, most of the complaining that has been done about student apathy at Youngstown University has been of the "all smoke and no fire" variety.

This is as true of the Jambar and its efforts to combat apathy as any other group. On the other hand, when it comes to doing something, the going can get pretty rough.

The nature of the campus, the fact that all students live off-campus, and the lack of regular student gathering centers make apathy a greater problem to solve here than on, say, a small college country campus.

It is too bad that these problems exist, but they won't always exist and if a good start is made to lick them now, the entire problem will disappear sooner. And even in its present state, the apathy enigma is not insurmountable, because there is a balance of assets offsetting the problem.

For instance, Youngstown turns out better athletic teams than even the most spirited small college ever could; it has a fairly well developed, although highly self-centered, fraternity and sorority system, and, beginning this semester, a new student council which, of course, has not had a chance to prove itself.

What we, the Jambar staff, propose to do is to temporarily forget the growing pains of this still-young (54 years old) university and concentrate on a constructive attack on apathy here.

As a part of the new approach, the Jambar will give increased space to the academic policies and qualifications of the university, including "Students' View" columns on the various basic courses.

To do this, we invite the leadership of those who, after all, are the school's main leaders, the faculty and administration. The Jambar will give editorial page space to all reasonable and pertinent comments and suggestions from faculty members, and, for that matter, students too.

The NEW Jambar

In an effort to spruce up and provide a little more appeal to Youngstown University students, the Jambar comes to you this week printed in a new, more modern style.

Starting now, and in the future, we expect to present a fresher approach to the campus news and sports reporting.

Our new format was worked out after a careful study of type faces available after which the staff decided that these called Metro, Gothic and Spartan, present a clearer and more readable page.

Our staff has been streamlined, and new officers have taken over the running of the paper. To go along with our new approach, we are now looking for people with the same outlook on campus events to help round out our coverage.

More than general reporters, we need students with some particular interest — Greeks, religious clubs, sports, etc. — to do informed, specialized reporting.

That way it works out best for both of us: we get good coverage for the general student body, and our reporters don't have to waste time in unnecessary research.

If you are interested, let us know with a note in our mailbox, No. 69, located in the registrar's office.

Letters to the Editor

Editor of the Jambar, Sir:

As president of the Ohio Alpha chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, I would like to thank all persons responsible for making the 16th annual Popularity Dance a success.

The success of any school function is measured mainly by attendance. The attendance at the "Pop Dance" was good in spite of the fact that the secrecy of voting was lax. Why the outcome of this election was not kept secret this year, as in the past, I cannot answer. Did it escape through persons with responsible positions on Student Council? Do the students deserve a revision in election procedure? Friday morning the Snack Bar was humming with "news."

I would like to congratulate "Fif" Casetto and Larry Ryan, and thank the other participants.

Sincerely,
 JOE YWINSKI
 President

Editor of the Jambar, Sir:

I would like to extend my sincere thanks to Youngstown University faculty, staff and students who were so thoughtful when I was confined to North Side Hospital for surgery in January.

Beat, Beat Everywhere Except Here

By Don Shelley

(Editor of the "Horizon")

In most countries college students are characterized by their need to associate themselves with the progressive, the liberal, the revolutionary.

It seems that everywhere college students are throwing stones at foreign embassies, spitting on chief executives, discussing Ayn Rand and Nietzsche, conducting party raids, and burning college presidents and football coaches in effigy. Everywhere, that is, except here at YU.

One of the most recent vehicles of revolt adopted by the college masses is the "Beat" movement. It seems natural that this movement should attract the college student since it gives him an opportunity to justify any of those personal qualities which he had previously labeled "inadequacies."

Logic Is Trivial

That is, such verbose spokesmen as Kerouac and Ginsberg have insisted that the only valid method of expression is that which is most natural to the writer. Such trivialities as logic and grammar, which are merely systems of attaining coherence, are unnatural devices imposed upon the creative mind by unimaginative rhetoricians, and must therefore be discarded if we are to escape our vault of intellectual sterility, and provide the creative mind with an opportunity to maintain its artistic integrity.

The student who has failed Communications 105 usually needs little convincing before he embraces

YU's Shame

Everyone has a cross to bear and Youngstown University students bear one in common — The Book Store.

The fact that the book store is situated next to the Main Building's back stairs presents, among other things, a serious problem of congestion.

At the beginning of a semester, this area is deplorable. As many as 75 students, often two abreast, line the right side of the hall facing the rear entrance. It is almost an impossibility for students with lockers there to reach them.

The student must be part juggler, part contortionist to pass through this section without having his books splattered all over the floor. Students stand in line for hours on end, many times cutting classes, only to find that they must leave without some of the needed books because of insufficient funds. The reason? Book lists that do not state the book prices.

Quite often disgusted, the students choose to go to class bookless for a week or two, rather than stand another couple of wasted hours in line.

Requisition forms are another unneeded time-consuming action. Why do the students have to put their name on the forms. What use does it perform?

The irony of these hindrances is that they could so easily be rectified. But they have been shunned and overlooked so often and for so long, that they are now looked upon as necessary evils.

The cure is simple and self-evident — move the book store for a week or so following registration and modernize the selling process.

The Jambar suggests Strouss Auditorium as a site for the book store. Strouss is spacious enough to give students "browsing" room while they purchase needed books.

With such an abundance of room, the book store could easily follow a self-service plan with four or five check-out counters.

In years to come Youngstown University will sport a modern Student Union. A book store is a must in the building plans. The book store is one of the basic needs of the university and modernization of the of the present system must be placed high on the list of redevelopment projects.

THIS SCENE is repeated every semester following registration as students line up awaiting their turn to buy books. Notice particularly the students just inside the door. They have completed the first phase of the project — they are finally in the room. They must now follow the wall to the rear of the room, turn to face the counter, then make their purchases.

such a philosophy of expression as presented by the bearded bandit of adolescent emotions. Those who stress the complete subjectivity of expression also allow the young painter, who couldn't sketch a realistic object if his abstract sensitivity depended on it, to classify his gobs and gashes of paint as hidden mirrors of his own unappreciated genius.

It is rather difficult to determine just how much the "Beats" have affected the college mind. It is equally as difficult to separate the true "Beat" from the peripheral "Beat" since both are generally too lacking in distinctive qualities to permit much differentiation under microscopic study.

Few Students, Few Beat

The number of full time students at Y.U. has prevented any notable "Beat" movement. In fact, it has prevented almost any type of movement. Of course, there are still a few stragglers who are still looking for something to rebel against, but generally the word "Beat" has become derogatory in nature. In fact, it has created a new category in which one might put his adversaries.

The Greeks assume that the independents are undisciplined organization haters and are therefore basically "Beat." The independents feel that the Greeks are too clanish and immature to be genuine and are therefore "Beats!" The artists claim that the writers are beatniks while the writers claim the musicians are beatniks. The engineers and business majors are certain that all three groups are "Beat" while the faculty suspects the entire student body is a bit "Beat." The administration makes no comment.

YU Bears Same Scares

Although Y.U. has by no means been engulfed in a Beat movement, it has not gone unmarked. Never has our asphalt campus been so populated by so many wane, dissipated, tired-looking creatures. Student apathy is soaring almost as high as the sales on bongo drums and black leotards.

Yet, in the midst of it all, there arises a new and apparently more inviting type of fad which is replacing the "Beat" movement. The student body is proving its normality in that it is following a natural cycle from the passive to the active. The churches call this innovation "obscene." The chiropractors call it pure "mastochism" while the psychologists call it displaced aggression. The students call it "The Twist."

Dare We dare Youngstown traffic officials to cross at the Wick-Spring Streets intersection when YU classes are changing and feel safe doing it.

THE MANY LOVES OF THORWALD DOCKSTADER

When Thorwald Dockstader—sophomore, epicure, and sportsman—first took up smoking, he did not simply choose the first brand of cigarettes that came to hand. He did what any sophomore, epicure, and sportsman would do: he sampled several brands until he found the very best—a mild, rich, flavorful smoke—an endless source of comfort and satisfaction—a smoke that never palled, never failed to please—a smoke that age could not wither nor custom stale—a filter cigarette with an unfiltered taste—Marlboro, of course!

Similarly, when Thorwald took up girls, he did not simply select the first one who came along. He sampled. First he dated an English literature major named Elizabeth Barrett Schwartz, a wisp of a girl with large, luminous eyes and a soul that shimmered with a pale, unearthly beauty. Trippingly, trippingly, she walked with Thorwald upon the beach and sat with him behind a windward dune and listened to a conch shell and sighed sweetly and took out a little gold pencil and a little morocco notebook and wrote a little poem:

*I will lie upon the shore,
I will be a dreamer,
I will feel the sea once more,
Pounding on my furor.*

Thorwald's second date was with a physical education major named Peaches Glendower, a broth of a girl with a ready smile and a size 18 neck. She took Thorwald down to the cinder track where they did 100 laps to open the pores. Then they played four games of squash, six sets of tennis, 36 holes of golf, nine innings of one o'cat, six chukkers of lacrosse, and a mile and a quarter of leapfrog. Then they went ten rounds with eight ounce gloves and had heaping bowls of whey and exchanged a firm handshake and went home to their respective whirlpool baths.

He did not simply select the first one who came along...

Thorwald's final date was with a golden-haired, creamy-browed, green-eyed, red-lipped, full-calved girl named Totsi Sigafos. Totsi was not majoring in anything. As she often said, "Gee whillikers, what's college for anyhow—to fill your head full of icky old facts, or to discover the shining essence that is YOU?"

Totsi started the evening with Thorwald at a luxurious restaurant where she consumed her own weight in Cornish rock hen. From there they went to a deluxe movie palace where Totsi had popcorn with butter. Then she had a bag of chocolate covered raisins—also with butter. Then they went to a costly ballroom and did the Twist till dawn, tipping the band every eight bars. Then they went to a Chinese restaurant where Totsi, unable to translate the menu, solved her problem by ordering one of everything. Then Thorwald took her to the women's dorm, boosted her in the window, and went downtown to wait for the employment office to open.

While waiting, Thorwald thought over all of his girls and came to a sensible decision. "I think," he said to himself, "that I will stick with Marlboros. I am not rich enough for girls."

Marlboro, however, is rich enough for anybody. It takes mighty good makin's to give you unfiltered taste in a filter cigarette. That's the flavor you get in the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia. You get a lot to like.

Cagers Attempt To Halt Zerger

By Tom Green

The Penguins will travel to Steubenville tomorrow night to meet the highly touted Steubenville College five in a rematch of the two teams. The Penguins hope to reverse an earlier decision, a 68-61 loss to the Barons.

The big man for the Barons is lanky Chuck Zerger, who paced the Steubenville attack with 22 points. Once again the Penguins will be at a height disadvantage as the Barons sport two 6-6 plus men. Not only will the Rossellimen be out to turn the tables on the downstate five, but they will also be seeking to break a poor post-semester record. The Penguins, prior to semester exams, held a 9-5 record, have seen their mark drop to 9-9. Steubenville's record stands at 13-8.

Monday night, the Penguins will take on Geneva College at South Fieldhouse. Geneva defeated the Penguins earlier 83-77 on the victor's court.

In the past two weeks' action, the Penguins lost considerable ground as they dropped four of five games. Baldwin-Wallace was the only victim while Ohio University, Hillsdale, Marietta and Kentucky Wesleyan numbered the Penguins in their win column.

Penguin Rifle Team Going 'Great Guns' in Loop Play

The YU rifle team, coached by M/Sgt. Michael J. Sarisky, has vaulted into second place in the Lake Erie Intercollegiate Rifle Conference following a 1372-1359 victory over the Kent State sharpshooters.

Leading the way for the Penguins, who took over Kent's number two spot in the rankings, was Dennis Gartland with a 277 score. Following Gartland were Richard Butch and Bob Lydon, each with a 276, while John Wronka and Dick Majestic posted totals of 272 and 271 respectively.

Prior to the Kent meet, YU had two marksmen in the top ten of the conference: Gartland, the No. 2 man with a 282.4 average and Butch ranking No. 5 with an average of 277.5. Ray Mayer and Majestic have also given a creditable showing ranking 14th and 18th respectively.

With two matches remaining, the first today at Gannon and the other next week against Case, the Penguins are very much in contention for the conference crown currently held by the Akron Zips with a 7-2 record. The YU record to date is 5-3.

Career Cues:

"Whatever your major, make sure to include a course in 'people'!"

W. Emlen Roosevelt, President
National State Bank, Elizabeth, N. J.

"If my college adviser had prophesied that studying psychology would some day help promote my career in banking, I'd have scoffed. Yet that is exactly what has happened. And when I think about it now the reason seems obvious. The facts and figures of banking, or of any other field, are mechanical devices. They take on real meaning only when related to people.

"Good psychology is also the basis of all teamwork. And, since most of today's business and scientific problems are too complicated for 'one man' solutions, teamwork is essential. If you want to be a valuable team player, and a likely candidate for captain, be the person who understands people. Learn what it takes for people to work together in harmony. Learn how to win trust and confidence. Learn basic human psychology.

"Bear this in mind, too. World tension, community tension, business tension, even family tension, are the facts of everyday life. The more you know of human behavior, the better prepared you will be to deal with these problems.

"So, if you have the chance, take a course devoted to 'people.' Your class adviser can probably help you fit a psychology elective into your schedule. I don't think you'll regret it... I know I didn't."

W. Emlen Roosevelt first became a bank president while still in his early thirties. Today he heads still another bank and is a leader in New Jersey financial circles. Em's been a CAMEL fan ever since his undergraduate days at Princeton.

As We See It

Temperance is the Thing!

By Pat McCarren and Juanita Carnivale

Hello, group. What's up? It must be the price of cigarettes or something, because it sure ain't snow. At this writing, the fluffly stuff is really coming down. There's something to be said for it, though.

It makes hapless pedestrians at the Wick-Spring intersection stand out so they at least have SOME chance against the Indianapolis "500"-type traffic.

Not really much to report since our last issue — just the same old drag. Registration was worse than ever. The only consolation (for half of this team) was the fact that it was the LAST. WHOOPIE!

Laugh of the week . . . came from Betty Trope, who really didn't want her name in to the effect that "This semester I'm really going to work hard and study." Good luck, Bet.

Signs of the times . . . things must be getting quite rough when the cafeteria had to put up a "NO CREDIT" sign. Does that mean that meals are on a cash-and-carry basis, or that no college credit towards a degree in Campusology is given for fighting the chow line?

If anyone knows of any person who is making out a will, why not have them make YU the beneficiary, with the stipulation that the proceeds of the estate be used for such necessities as paper towels, chalk for classrooms, and copy paper for the JAMBAR. . . . Somewhere along the line, a friend told us about copying some 250-plus words from a book in a term paper, with the instructor's blessing. Our friend referred to it as "legal plagiarism."

Reader's Digest came through with a few stories this week that we'd like to pass on to you. The first one concerns a veritable gold mine of a business venture for college campuses that has been uncovered by a student at a western university. Luckless and loveless coeds who wish to appear popular can rent a fraternity pin from a designated agent. The prices range from $2 to $10 dollars a week, depending upon the standing of the fraternity. One half of the fee goes to the owner of the pin, whose identity is kept secret. The other half goes to the originator of the scheme as his profit.

At last report, business was excellent.

Snack Bar now: "Popcorn, cracker-jacks, frat pins, Hershey bars." And then when the young lady was talking with the agent. "Now here's one that is very hard to get. Only a few are available. Some of the most "with-it" girls on campus have been trying to get this. Only last week Tammy-amjo Kwiturbelyakin asked me for one of these. I'll have to have at least $12.50.)

Next, the story is told of a young sophomore couple at Southern Methodist University who had been dating steadily. They'd had Coke dates, coffee dates, even hamburger dates, but nothing more elaborate because the young man was on a limited budget. Then one day the girl happily reported to her mother, "He's taking me out to dinner tonight — he sold a pint of blood today for $20."

She must have been quite a girl. Quotable line we think everyone should hear . . . "Work and classes are just a pastime between week-ends." Oh, yes. The Twilight Zone YOU ARE THERE, GROUP.

There was a fellow the other day who, when asked why he was leaving town immediately after graduation, replied, "I wouldn't stay in Youngstown for love, nor money, and I'm not getting either anyway."

Lastly, the line from the gent who said, "In my younger days, it used to be wine, women and song."

BEWARE! This may happen to you if you park unauthorized in the First Christian Church parking lot.

Now it's Metrecal, same old gal, and Sing Along with Mitch."

Only 36 days to go until St. Patrick's Day.

Forget the rest of this nonsense, but ALWAYS remember:

Be moderate in all things, especially temperance.

NEW MAP DISPLAY WILL SHOW PILOT WHERE IN THE WORLD HE IS

No matter what the weather, speed or altitude, an IBM navigational display being developed will let pilots find their positions on a moving map. With this new computer display for planes, a pilot will actually be able to see his position though the earth might be totally obscured by a cloud cover.

In developing this display, IBM engineers and scientists solved a unique combination of optical and photographic problems. They were able to produce map images with good resolution on the inside surface of a glass hemisphere. A beam of light illuminates a small section of this hemisphere and projects it onto a screen in front of the pilot. In flight, the computer controls rotation of the hemisphere, correlating it with the plane's supersonic progress and the rotating earth. This approach to a computer-controlled map display suggests further application in a space navigation system, where a star map might be used instead of a map of the earth.

People with backgrounds in the sciences, engineering and liberal arts all contribute to the success of projects like this. At IBM, ideas which create new products and systems can come from anywhere—from research, programming, manufacturing, and systems engineering. If you would like to work where your ideas can be as important as the ability to apply them to vital and exciting areas of development, you should consider the many opportunities at IBM.

The IBM representative will be glad to discuss with you the many areas in which IBM is making important advances. All qualified applicants will receive consideration without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. Your placement office can give you further information and arrange for an appointment. Or you may write, outlining your background and interests, to: Manager of Technical Employment, IBM Corporation, Dept. 908, 590 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N. Y.

You naturally have a better chance to grow with a dynamic growth company.

IBM will interview March 6.
