Cochran raise causes controversy

◆ While the YSU President's efforts are appreciated, many believe his raise is ill-timed with recent budget cuts.

MATTHEW DEUTSCH
news editor

On March 10, the contract of YSU President Leslie Cochran was extended by the YSU Board of Trustees to June 30, 2000.

Under the terms of the new contract, Cochran's salary will increase from $135,000 to $141,750, a five percent increase retroactive to July 1, 1994. In addition, the Board increased Cochran's salary for '95-'96 4.2 percent to $147,750.

"Lin [Cochran's wife] and I have made a strong commitment to the Mahoning Valley and I'm pleased that the Board has responded in a similar fashion," said Cochran. "I'd like to personally thank the citizens of the Valley for their support and encouragement and for the privilege of serving YSU in the years ahead."

The increase will move Cochran from last (ninth) among his peer group presidents in Ohio to seventh, slightly ahead of the '94-'95' salaries of the presidents of Akron and Cleveland State. At present, it cannot be determined how Cochran will rank in comparison to his peers in '95-'96' since they are likely to receive a salary adjustment later in the spring.

Cochran's housing allowance was also increased from $24,000 to $30,000. This provision moved his allowance to the same level as other presidents in the state who do not live in university-provided housing. Presidents of universities that provide housing are required to live in those residences.

"Within three years, Dr. Cochran has turned this University around," said attorney Richard P. McLaughlin, chairperson of the YSU Board of Trustees. "Academic accomplishment is up. We have more community outreach than ever before. Our recently announced capital campaign with its focus on Campus 2000, the electronic campus, expansion of our football stadium and increase in academic endowments will lay out University foundation for the 21st century."

McLaughlin also pointed out that YSU now has a doctoral program in place for the first time and an academic scholar's program that is a national model.

"Les Cochran has led the way. He deserves this salary increase and the recognition of our entire community," said McLaughlin. "The Board of Trustees is proud to take this action."

However, student reaction to the raise was mixed.

"I feel that Leslie Cochran shouldn't have got the raise that he received from the school," said Brian Horvath, junior, chemical engineering. "Until YSU is making a considerable amount of overhead profit, he should just be happy with what he gets."

"I don't think he should get the raise," said Lisa Poltar, sophomore, Education. "I'm a transfer student from Toledo and there was federal aid there, but none of the professors or administrative officials received a raise. That's the way it should be here."

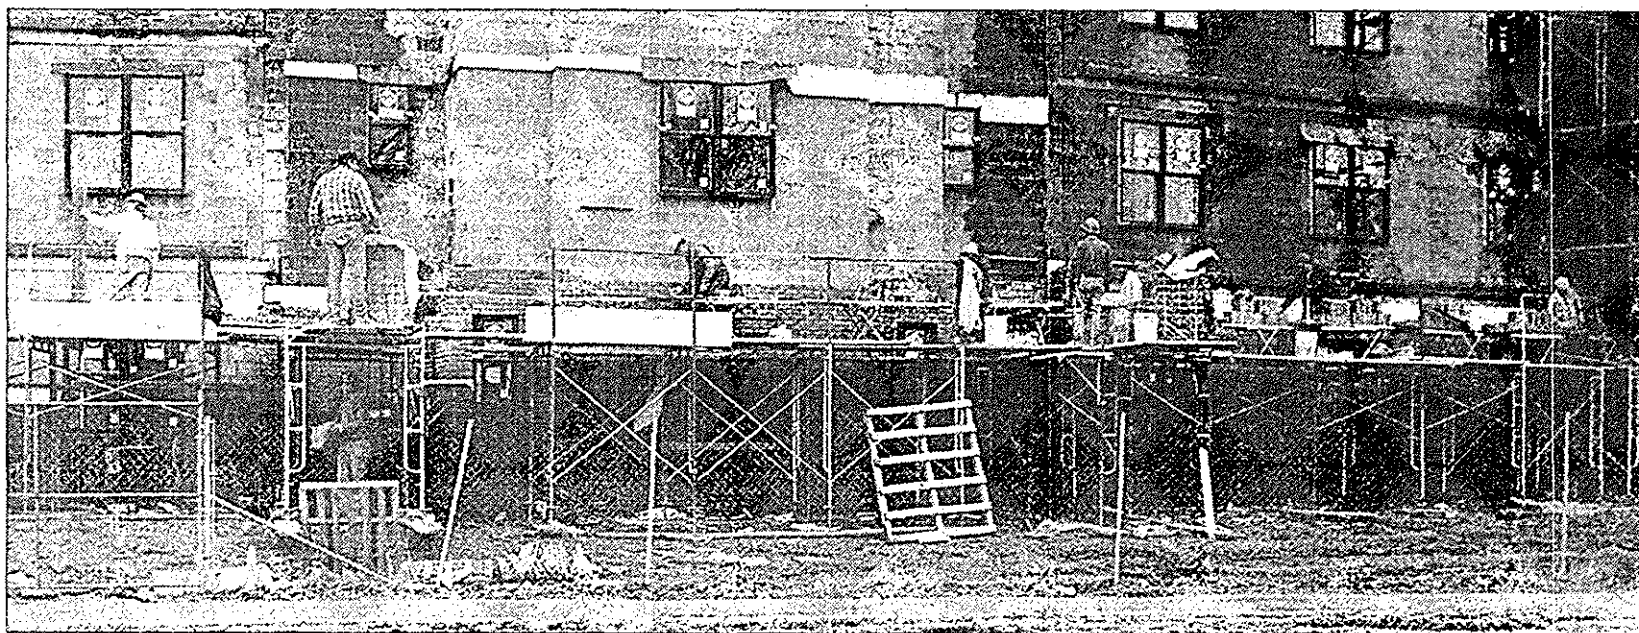

"I don't think he should receive the raise until he has done something more for the University," said Chris Wlodarski, senior, economics.

There were other students who believed the raise was justified, but its timing was suspect.

"I think he deserved the raise, but it was poorly timed in light of the tuition increase," said Jay Whetstone, junior, Education.

"I think that his raise only puts him in step with his peers at other Ohio universities," said Lisa Tate, senior, Education. "No matter how poorly timed, it is not inappropriate."

YSU's future under construction

YSU PROJECT:
Bricklayers are busy putting the finishing touches to the outer wall of the $8.6 million Residential Honors Facility at YSU. The 275-bed facility, which will house students of both the innovative University Scholars and Honors programs, is scheduled to open the fall quarter of 1995.

YSU alumnus, CEO sings praises of YSU at winter commencement

John W. Guffey Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer of Coltec Industries, gave the winter commencement address on Saturday, March 25 in Beeghly Center.

A total of 815 students graduated, including 440 students who completed study during fall quarter.

Guffey displayed his support of the Youngstown area by saying, "The type of leadership that is needed in our country is more likely to be fostered at institutions like Youngstown State University than in the graduate business schools of the Ivy League." He added, "For it is from environments like we find in Youngstown, Ohio—where high ideals of work ethic, the respect for people of all backgrounds, an abundance of common sense and the lessons from the hard times of the past—that the leaders of tomorrow are more likely to be forged."

He encouraged the engineering graduates by saying, "Coltec Industries will hire a minimum of two engineering graduates from the class of 1995 at YSU and nothing would please me more than to someday discover a future CEO of our company who came from this University."

He concluded, "I trust my enthusiasm for your individual successes, the success of the Youngstown area and my pride in Youngstown State University has been evident. I find this to be quite natural because this area is also my roots and I have a son and daughter and five grandchildren, all of whom I am extremely proud, who reside in this valley and their goals and dreams for their future are closely linked with your goals and dreams."

Guffey, a graduate of YSU, was named chairman and CEO of Coltec on Feb. 1 and has been president since May 6, 1991, when he was also elected to the board of directors and was named chief operating officer.

Coltec Industries Inc. is a

New York-based manufacturing company serving aerospace, automotive and other industrial markets.

In 1973 Guffey joined the Garlock Co., which was acquired by Coltec Industries in 1975. He served as director of engineering at Garlock before being advanced to the positions of vice president for manufacturing, vice president and general manager of the Garlock Compression Packing Operation and vice president and general manager of Garlock Domestic Operations.

NEOUCOM to provide lab training for physical therapy students

YSU and the Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine at Rootstown have signed an agreement which calls for NEOUCOM to provide laboratory training in its anatomy laboratory for students in YSU's new physical therapy program.

The agreement was announced by YSU and NEOUCOM officials at a joint press conference on March 23 in the Board of Trustees Meeting Room in Tod Hall.

YSU's four-year physical therapy degree program was approved by the Ohio Board of Regents last year. The program will begin in the summer of 1996. Students completing the program will earn a bachelor of science degree.

"The cooperative program will provide YSU with an excellent facility for the study of human anatomy which will include dissection," noted Dr. Leslie Cochran, president of YSU. "In a cooperative effort, the sharing of such a facility will greatly benefit YSU's physical therapy program and provide for program excellence."

The agreement grew out of discussions between Dr. Stephen C. Ward, professor and chair of NEOUCOM's anatomy department and Dr. John J. Yemma, dean of YSU's College of Health and Human Services.

"The partnership between the College of Medicine and Youngstown State University exemplifies our continuing attempts to pursue more efficient ways to bring higher education to the people of Ohio," said Dr. Robert S. Blacklow, president and dean of NEOUCOM. "We are constantly looking for new ways to work with other institutions to avoid duplication and to improve our programs."

Students from the YSU program will go to NEOUCOM during the summer and fall, starting in 1996, to complete their requirements for the study of human anatomy.

Dr. James Scanlon, YSU's provost, noted that when YSU planned its physical therapy program it planned to build an anatomy laboratory. After looking into the requirements for such a lab, it was decided that it would be more cost efficient to share facilities with NEOUCOM, he said.

"We look forward to participating with YSU in its new physical therapy program. The College of Medicine is fortunate in having the resources available to help insure the success of the new program," said Ward. He said NEOUCOM has a modern anatomy laboratory facility and "some of the best anatomy faculty in medical education today."

The physical therapy program at YSU will be part of the Allied Health Department, which is chaired by Dr. Madeleine Haggerty. She said the physical therapy students will follow the tradition of working with cadavers in the anatomy laboratory and be involved with interactive learning (use of video discs and computer programs).

"Four or five students will have a body to dissect and study over a period of two quarters," said Haggerty. "We have a great combination with the anatomy lab and the new technology."

YSU is currently advertising for a licensed physical therapist to coordinate its program. It is also in the process of revamping part of the basement of Cushwa Hall to make room for a physical therapy lab and new equipment.

EDITORIAL

Court should decide fate of clerk who killed robber

On March 23, Azmi Al-Tawil, a clerk at Sam's Super Saver at 1802 Oak St., shot and fatally wounded Bennie Poole, who Al-Tawil said robbed him at gunpoint. Allegedly, after Poole ran out of the store, Al-Tawil chased him around the building and shot Poole in the head, which killed him. Al-Tawil is now being charged with voluntary manslaughter.

Was Al-Tawil justified?

The controversy involved in the case is whether or not Al-Tawil should have pursued the robber after he left the store. People are saying that Al-Tawil had no reason to chase Poole because he was safe, the damage was done, he should forget about it and be happy that he is still alive. In other words, two wrongs don't make a right.

Others are saying that yes, Al-Tawil had every right to chase the robber down because what he did was wrong and Al-Tawil should have some kind of justice. A sub-group, if you will, is saying that yes, he should have pursued the robber, but shouldn't have killed him. Perhaps if he just wounded Poole, the police could have taken care of him.

Public has decided his fate

What we are mostly concerned about, however, is the way the public and the media are going about covering the issue. Talk show radio hosts blow the story out of proportion, people who call in (and yes, they have every right to do so) have already determined whether or not the clerk should fry for killing the thief.

Let the court decide

Before Al-Tawil is found guilty or not guilty by the court we need to remember that no one knows how they would react if they were confronted with this kind of circumstance. Surely, your adrenaline is at its peak, your mind is going crazy, and you just don't know what to do. Before any of us judges anyone else for their behavior, we must look at ourselves and be honest with our true feelings.

What is also questionable about this case is the message we will be sending criminals if Al-Tawil is convicted of voluntary manslaughter. Was his crime justified? Was it a case of self-defense? Was he trying to protect others from being robbed — possibly killed? Or was this a case of a man taking the law into his own hands? The answers to these questions are not ours to determine. The Youngstown court is the one to decide the fate of Al-Tawil. It is our job to learn from the incident.

Recent shooting angers student

contributing editor

As I drove home the other day I could not help but be a witness to a dreadful sight. Several police cars were in obvious pursuit of a suspected perpetrator. As I continued toward my destination, I decided to see what was causing the police to act in such a frenzied manner.

What I saw caused me to regret my actions. There, sprawled out on the ground not 50 feet from my car in plain view for the entire world, was the body of Bennie Poole.

At this time I had no way of knowing what had occurred to cause the death of another black male but I obviously had my suspicions. I thought, "There goes another one of us done by another one of us."

Not until I had reached my home and listened to the local news broadcast did I truly understand just how horrible this particular death would turn out to be in regards to the division of a neighborhood.

After the evidence was gathered and after the facts were provided to the public, we learned the truth. After the commission of a crime, a clerk in a store took it upon himself to become law, judge and jury and committed a far more hideous act.

This is no extraordinary day in Youngstown. We have come to expect several shootings, carjackings, robberies and various number of other illegal activities during the course of a 24-hour day.

However, there seems to be an attitude adjustment taking place in this community. Not long ago, if an Arab shot and killed an African-American, whether or not during the commission of a crime, the community would have been up in arms (so to speak) about the event.

It seems this is no longer the case. African-Americans, along with the rest of the community, have thrown their hands into the air and said, "We just don't give a damn anymore."

But in this episode there is a dangerous twist in the reactions of several concerned citizens. In particular, congratulating or supporting the actions taken by the store clerk.

When we (the African-American community) settle for less than what we are entitled to under the Constitution, we have no one to blame but ourselves.

Oh I would love to catch a robber climbing through one of my windows. The only need for the police would be to confirm the identity of the intruder. But there is no way I would take it upon myself to chase down, confront and hold court as Mr. Poole's assailant saw fit to do.

This is wrong and it is sad that there are citizens Youngstown who feel that it was justified. But what am I thinking about? This is Youngstown.

Letters to the Editor

Is Ricki Lake more important than our government?

Dear editor:

Is there more interest in what was on the Ricki Lake Show or the O.J. Simpson trial, than there is in shaping the future of government and politics in America?

The average person considers government and politics to be boring and distasteful topics — students are no exception. But the reality is that government and politics are inescapable, necessary and constantly evolving forces that influence each of our lives.

Question: What entity determines the level of funding for higher education in the State of Ohio; who sets the tuition rate at Youngstown State University?

Recently I traveled across campus talking about an event being held here at YSU on Friday, March 31, from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., entitled Reinventing Government. This will be a Symposium designed to focus on methods and ideas to improve government in our Valley. The fee for this event is $20, and for more information, you can call (216) 742-3358.

For students, is $20 a lot of money to spend on a program like this? How many students have spent $20 for a book or on Saturday night partying?

I was amused and troubled to find so many students having either no opinion, or a distorted opinion, of government and politics. Not at all like the era that I grew up in, (now I am giving away my age), when college students were very involved in government and politics. I guess issues then were more relevant, more life and death, more bread and butter.

Are education, economics and politics separate issues, or part of the same fabric? What differences are between young Americans being killed in the Vietnam War, and young Americans killing each other in the streets of America? If I go to college, receive a degree, but can't find employment, do I go on welfare, take a minimum wage job? What if I'm told I wasn't hired because of Affirmative Action?

If community affairs are not as they should be, who should be responsible and accountable?

Pianists Suhrstedts to perform at Dana

YSU—Piano duettists Barbara and Gerhardt Suhrstedt are one of the few one-piano, four-hand teams touring the United States. They will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 30 in the Bliss Recital Hall on YSU's campus.

Since their 1982 New York debut at Merkin Concert Hall, the Suhrstedts have performed for many prestigious concert series, including the Dame Myra Hess Memorial Concerts in Chicago, the Phillips Collection Series and the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

In 1986, Barbara and Gerhardt became the first piano duet team invited to perform for a Liszt Society annual festival. The couple has been featured on numerous music festivals, among them the Castle Hill Festival (MA), the Lakeside Festival (OH), the Piccolo Spoleto Festival (SC), and the Deer Valley International Chamber Music Festival (UT). The Suhrstedts presented the opening concert for the 1992 Gina Bachauer International Piano Festival at Salt Lake City's Temple Square.

Barbara Fetrow Suhrstedt is a native of Ohio and a graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music where her teacher was Jack Radunsky. While in Ohio, she also studied with George Haddad.

Gerhardt Suhrstedt is originally from Charleston, SC. He is a graduate of Furman University where he was a student of David Gibson. The Suhrstedts met and married while completing their graduate studies at Boston University's School for the Arts. Their teachers in Boston have included Bela Boszormenyi-Nagy, Heinz Schroter and Theodore Lettvin.

The Suhrstedts live in Boston. They have taught at several schools, including Tufts University and Boston's Shore Conservatory. The duo has released a cassette tape, A Four-Hand Feast, featuring music of Mendelssohn, Liszt, Dvorak, Debussy and Gershwin. They are well-known for their programs, "Land of the Tsars," a glimpse into the arts of Tsarist Russia, and "Four Hands Fantastique: French Music, Art, and Poetry, 1870-1920."

They will return to Salt Lake City in August for a performance on the Temple Square Concert Series. They will also present concerts for the St. Gauden's Summer Festival Concerts in New Hampshire and for the Stockbridge Summer Music Concerts in Western Massachusetts, near Tanglewood.

Pianists Gerhardt and Barbara Suhrstedt will perform their trademark "four hands, one piano" stylings in a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 30, in the Bliss Recital Hall. The Suhrstedts' performance is free and open to the public.

Nook to feature award-winning area poets

Warren—Book Nook customers are invited to enjoy a Sunday afternoon with some of the area's most prolific poets. On April 2 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. the award-winning writers will share some of their favorite compositions; poets from the audience will have the opportunity to read at the end of the session.

One of the featured poets, YSU's Dr. William Greenway, English, is the author of five collections of poetry, including How the Dead Bury the Dead. A native of Atlanta, GA, Greenway was named 1994 Georgia Author of the Year. He has been published in numerous magazines and journals.

"Poetry can't make your life longer, but it can make it deeper," Greenway said. "Poetry can help you discover dimensions... poetry can get you beneath the surface."

Youngstown writer Frank Polite, who has published two books of his poems, Flamingo and Letters of Transit, will also appear at the reading. His work has also been published in The New Yorker and Harper's.

"Poetry has been a good companion to me through the years," Polite said. "Like John Lennon says, 'Whatever gets you through the night,' and poetry has gotten me through a lot of nights."

Rick Harvey of Warren will also be on hand to share some of his selected works. He is the author of Tears of the Samurai, a collection of poems inspired by his experiences in the Vietnam War. His second book, Portrait of a Dog as a Young Artist, is set to be released in the fall of '95.

"I think we're in a moral renaissance," Harvey said. "I think people want to know the deeper meaning of things. I think people have had enough of the superficial world... and are going back inside."

Also reading will be poet Eric Lough, who has been published in The Penguin Review and in anthology collections published by Sparrow Grass Press and Watermark Press.

Two poets will have their debut at the upcoming poetry reading: Jack Khlem and Ryan McIntire. Music will be provided by flutist Mary Titus.

Adina Howard's 'Ride' premieres on new Mecca Don label

Mecca Don/East West Records recording artist Adina Howard.

Los Angeles—"I'm a 90's woman," declares Adina Howard. "I'm aggressive. There shouldn't be a double standard — women can be just as aggressive as men."

Sexy, bold and always in control, Howard makes her Mecca Don/East West/EEG debut with Do You Wanna Ride, a cutting edge group of songs that traverse easily from languid sensuality to a West Coast ghetto vibe to the funk-edged sly grind of the first single, "Freak Like Me."

Only 20 years old, Howard grew up in Grand Rapids, MI, joining the church choir at age 7. "It kept me focused," she recalls — "and it kept me from some things I shouldn't be into."

She made her career choice early: "My mother used to sing backup for a local R&B group, so she was an inspiration for me," Howard explained. "I'd hear her singing around the house and I'd be thinking, I'd love to do that."

Her other big influence was fellow Michigan native, Betty Wright. "Her song, 'No Pain, No Gain,' used to come on the radio all the time. What got me about her was that high note — and she was very blunt," — a quality that's very important to Howard. "I've always been aggressive, but it didn't dawn on me 'til high school to put that in my music," she said. "And that's when I got the chance to really show what I'm all about."

In short order, Howard was discovered by producer/manager Livio Harris, of the group 4-Sure. "A lot of people you run into in this business make a lot of promises they can't keep — if I'd heard that from Livio, I'd have thought, here we go again," she recalled. "But he never did that — he just worked real hard to get me a deal."

Howard is the first signing by Mecca Don Records, a new venture distributed by East West/EEG. "Mecca Don believed in me from the minute they received my demo and signed me within a week," said Howard. "Most A&R reps play it safe, but they allowed me to push the limit of what's acceptable for a female R&B vocalist."

The result is Do You Wanna Ride, a declaration of independence for strong, fun-loving women everywhere. "I'm representing the aggressive sistas, who aren't afraid to speak their mind and tell a man what they want," said Howard — and that's exactly the theme of "Freak Like Me," written by Mass Order. "They wrote it for me," Howard explained. "For my personality. That song is based on me telling a guy, I want a man who can handle me, 'cause that's the kind of female that I am. I know what pleases me, so I go for it."

The deceptively silky, west coast vibe of the title track backs — "Another aggressive song!" exclaimed Howard, laughing. "You know how guys ask, do you wanna ride this? I switch things around and I'm asking the guy. "Do You Wanna Ride," is my declaration that role reversal is a woman's prerogative." (She added more seriously: "I'm not telling people to go out there and have sex. And I wanna say, if you choose to have sex, use protection.")

But there are many other sides to Adina Howard, whose soaring, sultry, expressive voice is at home in an amazing variety of styles: witness the vocal skills on her cover of the Rene and Angela tune, "You Don't Have to Cry" (a duet with Michael Speaks). Or the raw grooves of "You Can Be My Nigga," with a guest rap by Yo Yo. And the tight harmonies and dance hall lilt of "It's All About You."

And then, Adina hits home with the unabashedly straightforward, "Horny for Your Love." "It's time," she said, matter-of-factly, about her attitude, "for a female to take a stand and really represent her generation and lifestyle."

Is the world ready for Adina Howard? It better be....

Penguins gun for NCAA baseball tournament

BRAD HELLER
contributing writer

The Penguin baseball team has just returned from their spring trip where they posted a 5-3 record. Out of four games against Troy State, YSU was defeated three times. The Penguins were victorious over Central Connecticut four times.

After missing the NCAA tournament last year by one game, the YSU baseball team is eager to improve in 1995. With a newly realigned Mid-Continent Conference and a strong returning crop of ballplayers, the Penguins seem sure to contend for the league title.

"Most people have picked Troy State to win the conference, but I have to believe that our squad is as strong as anyone's," said Dan Kubacki, who is now entering his fourth year as the Penguins' head coach. "We have some extremely talented players coming back, and some fine freshman who should make an impact."

The Penguins, who lost only four seniors, hope to improve on last year's 13-8 conference record and 26-23 overall record by combining what Kubacki considers the two main strengths of the team: experience and hitting.

"This is definitely the most experienced team we've had while I've been here," stressed Kubacki. "And if we hit like I think we can, everything should fall into place."

Leadership is definitely a plus for YSU, which boasts six seniors. They include outfielders Jeff Gruber and Mike Caggiano, infielders Marc Morgan and Mark Birkmeier, catcher Brad Zeigler and pitcher Steve Kendall.

Dan Kubacki

"All of our seniors will give us great depth and all are expected to contribute heavily," said Kubacki.

Kubacki also looks to a number of other players to make an impact on the '95 season. Returning are speedy outfielders Jamie Palumbo and Nick Meiring, infielders Monty Morris, Tom Harbold, and team RBI leader John Silvey and pitchers Scott Hitchcock, Jeff Santa, and Gary "Scarecrow" Gubanich.

The freshmen who look to get some quality playing time for the Penguins include catcher Dan Salamone and pitchers Barry Daggett and Shane Mead.

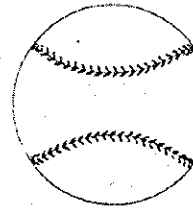

"We have an impressive team from top to bottom," said Kubacki. "If we execute, keep our errors to a minimum and swing the bats, we should challenge for the conference title."

YSU will play three games at West Virginia today and tomorrow.

College Life: A Few Things To Know

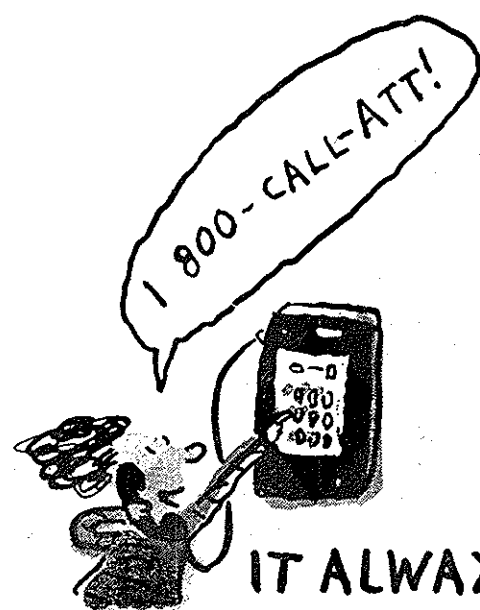

KNOW: Which "30-minutes-or-it's-free" pizza place always takes exactly 31 minutes.

KNOW: Which off-campus bookstore will buy back your used $45 textbooks for more than 25¢ each.

KNOW: which evil, quarter-eating laundromat machines to avoid.

KNOW THE CODE,SM
IT ALWAYS COSTS LESS THAN 1-800-COLLECT.SM

Hey, on college campuses those "in the know" are the ones who rule. And it's not just about being smart in the classroom, it's about being wise with your wallet as well. So if you want a great low price on a collect call, just dial 1 800-CALL-ATT. It always costs less than 1-800-COLLECT. Always.

There are lots of tricky things for you to learn at college, but here's something that's easy: KNOW THE CODE, and save the person on the other end some serious money. You'll be glad you did.
