FALL 77

Few YSU students understand plagiarism, cheating penalties

by Stacy Savka

What is plagiarism? What are YSU's penalties for plagiarizing or cheating? Do these offenses become part of a student's permanent academic record?

A survey of about 100 students during summer quarter showed that less than half knew what plagiarism is and that less than one-third knew the penalties for being caught plagiarizing or cheating.

Very few, less than 10 percent, knew the varying degrees of discipline that can be given for plagiarizing or cheating.

Plagiarism, according to "The Manual for Student Writers," a required guide for all students taking English 550 and 551, "is the use of someone else's words or ideas without proper acknowledgement."

According to the 1977-78 YSU

Catalog, if a student is caught cheating, the first offense is usually dealt with by the instructor who caught the student. Instructors usually discuss the offense with the student, and a disciplinary action is then taken.

The disciplinary action is usually an "F" for the particular test that the student was caught cheating on and/or an "F" for the entire course. The same procedure is usually carried out if a student is caught plagiarizing.

The offense can or can not be reported to the Office of Student Affairs by the course instructor.

If the instructor chooses to report the offense to the Office of Student Affairs, he does so by filing out a report which includes the student's name and the type of offense. The instructor also includes a brief description of the incident and the action that the instructor took. This report becomes part of the student's permanent academic record, and the student is usually made aware that such a report was filed.

If a student is again caught plagiarizing or cheating, "the disciplinary action varies to the degree of seriousness," according to Dr. C. David Bertelsen, assistant dean of Student Affairs.

Bertelsen says that a hearing is usually held by the Student Disciplinary Board and that the outcome is usually left up to the committee's members.

"Instructors have the obligation to try to prevent cheating or plagiarism," says Bertelsen.

Many instructors try to prevent cheating and plagiarism by carefully explaining the consequences of these offenses. Other instructors use various techniques such as giving every row of students different copies of the same test.

Dr. Gratia Murphy, Coordinator of Composition, says that plagiarism is "a serious offense" and that "plagiarism has always been a problem because it's an important thing." Murphy says that in English 551 students are taught the proper ways to use quoted material without plagiarizing.

"Instructors are usually cooperative with students and go through the process of correctly using quoted material at least once." Therefore, there is "no excuse for a student not knowing what plagiarism is," says Murphy. Murphy explains that instructors spot-check student papers and that there are often dire consequences for plagiarizing.

"Research is there to be shared," says Murphy. "But the trick is to use it in a scholarly way."

Eleven incidents of plagiarism or cheating were reported to the Student Affairs Office during the 1976-77 academic year. And out of the 11 incidents reported, four were referred to the Student Discipline Board for possible disciplinary action.

"Instructors somehow find out," says Murphy. She says that one reason for in-class papers is so the instructor can see the student's own writing style.

Murphy explains that alarm and fear may be a student's excuse for plagiarism or cheating. And this, she says, can be alleviated. "Students are afraid to ask for an extension on a paper. Most instructors will be cooperative and bend somewhat in order to accommodate a student's needs," says Murphy.

It sounds as though the cheating or plagiarizing student is a criminal, and in fact, he is.

Page 44 of the 1977-78 YSU Catalog states that "procedures for reporting, investigating and considering violations of the Code of Student Rights, Responsibilities and Conduct are found in Article VI, Due Process and Disciplinary Procedures of the Code."

If the Student Discipline Board finds the student guilty, disciplinary action is then taken. However, if the Board finds the student innocent, it does not have the authority to change the student's grade. That decision, according to Bertelsen, is "solely left up to the instructor."

Bertelsen says that "serious students are more apt to cheat than those that are just here (at YSU) for the ride. And the really intelligent students are too smart to get caught. It's grade-conscious students that will resort to plagiarism," says Murphy. "They will panic."

Instructors are reluctant to accuse students of plagiarizing or cheating without proof. At times proof shows up in the radical difference in a student's style of writing.

If at any time students are not sure of their rights, proper conduct and regulations of YSU, they should check the Student Handbook or with the Office of Student Affairs.

University personnel seem in agreement in that students should be aware of the consequences of cheating and violating the rules of correctly quoting reference material. If at any time students are in doubt, they can check with the sources that are available to them. But, the responsibility of knowing the rules is solely left up to them.

NEWS BRIEFS

COLUMBUS . . . State Senator Harry Meshel (D-Youngstown) introduced legislation today which would permit state universities, with the permission of the Controlling Board, to pay relocation costs to persons displaced by the expansion programs of state universities.

The new legislation will also provide for the establishment of relocation assistance programs. These programs are intended to assure that displaced individuals will not be forced to relocate in areas less desirable than the neighborhood they left. The main duty of these programs will be to inform those displaced of suitable housing or rental opportunities.

Senator Meshel introduced the legislation in response to the Smokey Hollow controversy which arose last year between YSU and nearby residents.

HEW's Office of Education today announced final regulations for the State Student Financial Assistance Training (SSFAT) program.

SSFAT will make grants to States for the development of training programs to increase the proficiency of postsecondary student aid officers in all aspects of student assistance administration. Designed in consultation with statewide organizations of financial aid administrators, the programs will be for both State and institutional aid officers.

COLUMBUS . . . Robert F. Doolittle, Cleveland, was elected unanimously as Chairman of the Ohio Board of Regents. Doolittle was appointed by Governor Rhodes to the Board upon its formation in 1963 and has served as its Vice Chairman since 1965. He succeeds Marvin L. Warner, who recently resigned the Chairmanship to assume duties as U.S. Ambassador to Switzerland.

University sponsors convocation

Parents get acquainted with YSU

This time it was the parent's turn. Parents of new students about to start classes fall quarter attended the third annual parent convocation Sunday, Sept. 18 in Kilcawley Center.

The event was designed to provide parents with information about the University, to acquaint them with services available to their sons and daughters, and to meet administrators, faculty members and other parents.

The program began with introductions and welcomes by Patricia Bleidt, assistant dean of Student Affairs and new student orientation coordinator, George Glaros, president of Student Government, Charles McBriarty, dean of Student Affairs, and John J. Coffelt, President of the University.

A feature of the convocation was the showing of "Impressions" - a multi-media presentation depicting campus life. This was followed by small group panel discussions led by the 16 orientation group leaders and assisted by a faculty or staff member. The mixing of student leader with faculty or staff member allowed the parents to receive varied responses to questions and concerns.

The questions asked by the parents in the small group panel discussions were much the same as the questions asked by the new freshmen this year and years before. Adjustment to university life, studying habits, parking, books and class attendance concerned the parents just as much as they concerned the new students.

An opportunity to take a walking tour of campus was provided during the afternoon. The changes made in the appearance of the campus was of major interest to most parents. Some parents who were past YSU graduates were pleased and surprised by the new building and facilities. For other parents the visits to the various residence halls on and near campus were of the greatest importance.

The convocation concluded with an informal reception in the arcade of Kilcawley Center, with refreshments and conversation with YSU administrators, faculty and students.

Participants of the third annual parent convocation are shown touring the CAST building as part of the recent program designed to acquaint parents of incoming students with the services offered at YSU. Parents of past YSU graduates expressed their admiration of the many newly - constructed facilities available here.

Size isn't all

With the beginning of this school year, YSU marks its 10th year as a state university. In that time the University has spent 60 million dollars on building improvements and construction, including land purchases. Youngstown College owned 29 acres of land; YSU has 79. The campus now has 30 buildings, eight of which are used for classrooms. In the last 10 years, six buildings have been built for student use: Lincoln Project, Beeghly Center, Maag Library, CAST, and the recently opened Bliss Hall. Construction is proceeding on the new Arts and Science building, which is scheduled to be completed winter quarter.

In all, the University's growth and progress over the last 10 years is one it can be proud of. Still, when discussing the growth of a university it must be kept in mind that the caliber of a university cannot be judged by the size of the campus or the number of new buildings being built. An effort must always be made to make sure that the students do not get lost amid the bulldozers. In the last few years, college students have begun to view themselves more as consumers - they pay for a product and expect to get their money's worth. If students are consumers, it is important for universities to put as much time and money into their product, education, as they do their package.

From the President . . .

This initial issue of the Jambar coincides with the opening of the 1977-78 fall quarter. I am pleased to have this means of sharing with you some thoughts as YSU enters its second decade as a state assisted institution of higher education in Ohio.

During the past ten years the University's growth-in all respects-has been nothing less than spectacular. Although the next decade may not duplicate this growth, I am nevertheless optimistic about our future. We can point with justifiable pride to an outstanding faculty and a dedicated staff.

As we begin this new decade, I am confident we have the resources, the facilities, and the personnel, to continue to build this good institution into a great urban university. But facilities, no matter how well designed; a faculty, no matter how knowledgeable; and a staff, no matter how dedicated, are of little value without students. A diversified, interested, active student body is an essential element to any good University.

We welcome you to YSU and encourage your cooperation, support and involvement in achieving our institutional mission-a university preeminent in our service region.

John J. Coffelt,
YSU President

An open invitation . . .

Beginning with this issue, the Jambar seeks to create a more modern physical format. But the Jambar also hopes to maintain an important tradition-continued use of the talents of many YSU students.

Volunteer bureau invites students to aid community

The Student Volunteer Bureau is beginning a new year of providing information to students about community agencies and providing these agencies with volunteers.

As in the past, the SVB will inform students of volunteer positions in the Youngstown-Warren area.

Volunteer positions are not only in the human service fields. Agencies are looking for typists, bookkeepers, drivers, and more as well. The SVB provides information on a wide variety of volunteer jobs with a reminder that whether or not it is for a class credit, any student is welcome to come in and ask about volunteer work.

This year the SVB needs a few students to help staff its office. Also, the following agencies need volunteers immediately: Senior Info & Referral Center and FISH (transportation for the elderly), Salvation Army, Residential Horizons (a facility for the mentally retarded in the Niles area), Park Vista nursing home, the adult day care programs at both Child & Adult and Eastern Mental Health Centers, and the Youngstown Society for the Blind. The Samaritan House needs a typist, and the Richard Brown United Methodist Church needs volunteers for an afterschool program on Mondays from 3 to 5 p.m.

For more information on these and other programs, contact the SVB in Kilcawley, Room 269, Ext. 500. If no one is in the office, please leave your name and phone number,

Jambar offices move into new Rayen Hall home

by Denise Lloyd

The Jambar has been in its new home for one week now, and although we have yet to remember where we packed the pencil sharpener, we are nevertheless beginning to feel at home.

The Jambar moved its offices to room 117 and three adjoining rooms of Rayen Hall Sept. 13. The previous Jambar building was traded to the Holy Trinity Church on Wick Avenue, for the property the church owned just north of the Jambar building. According to Nick Leonelli, Director of Campus Planning, the University intends to tear down the house now standing on the newly acquired property and put the land to grass, to be made use of at a later date.

Although moving 12 desks, 13 file cabinets, two verityping machines, two composing machines and an untold number of cardboard boxes is never easy, the move went smoothly and quickly.

Often a university is so bogged down with "red tape" it is almost impossible for anything to be done quickly, but in this case thanks must be given to some administrators who have very sharp scissors. Edward Salata, dean of Administrative Affairs; Taylor Alderman, Vice President for Personnel; Charles McBriarty, dean of Student Affairs; Nick Leonelli, director of Campus Planning; and Ray Orlando, director of the physical plant. Also, Dr. John Mason, summer advisor, who gave up a camping trip in order to supervise the move.

The old Jambar building will be missed. Yet the old cliché "home is where the heart is" would, for a newspaper office, be more accurately put, home is where the typewriters and telephones are. In either case both 629 Bryson Street and room 117 of Rayen Hall are under new management. May it be a profitable move for both.

CAMPUS SHORTS

Registration for the YSU School of Education early childhood teacher education laboratory is now taking place for pre-school age children.

Sessions are held on Saturdays and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon and begin Oct. 1 through Dec. 10 and Oct. 13 through Dec. 17. Any parents interested in enrolling their children may contact Dr. Margaret Braden, ext. 346.

Arts and Science fall graduates are reminded that the last day to apply for graduation is Friday, Sept. 30, room 217 of the Arts and Sciences Building.

The last day to apply for Fall Quarter 1977 graduation is Monday, October 3, at 5:00 p.m. Apply in Room 2068, College of Applied Science and Technology Building.

The last day for all qualified students to apply for consideration to transfer into Nursing for winter quarter 1978 is Tuesday, September 27, at 5:00 p.m. Apply in Room 2068, College of Applied Science and Technology Building.

Students attending school this summer under the benefits of the GI Bill can continue receiving VA checks during fall quarter if there is less than a month's break between sessions, reports Thomas Richards, veterans advisor at Youngstown State University.

Graduating during the 77-78 school year? You should file an intent to graduate during the third quarter prior to the quarter you wish to graduate. File in Room 2068, College of Applied Science and Technology Building.

Over 110 courses ranging from basic rug hooking to belly dancing are being offered fall quarter through the YSU department of continuing education.

Classes begin in October with registration conducted 8 a.m. - 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. Friday in the College of Applied Science and Technology building BO 86.

For course schedules and further information contact the YSU department of continuing education, 746-1851, ext. 481.

An automated library circulation system will be installed at the William F. Maag Jr. Library at YSU following approval by the YSU Board of Trustees at its regular meeting, Saturday (Aug. 27).

The new system, which is expected to be on-line by January of next year, will be the first self-contained unit at any Ohio state university.

The new operation will consist of a small computer with three specialized terminals and the software necessary for sophisticated circulation of materials, according to University Librarian Richard Owen.

The Dana Woodwind Quintet accompanied by a lovely bite of roast beef, awaits area music lovers on Sunday, September 25, at 4:30 p.m., as the Youngstown Symphony Society begins the third year of its popular family series entitled "Mixed Bag of Music."

The fifth season for the film travel series "Exploring the World," sponsored by YSU's department of continuing education, will open in October.

Further information about tickets and the programs may be obtained by calling the continuing education office, 746-1851, ext. 481.

Dr. Leon Rand, dean of graduate studies and research at YSU has announced appointment of nine graduate assistants for the 1977-78 academic year.

New assistants in the department of music are Cathy and Steven Frank, 835 Michigan Ave.; Terry McRoberts, R.D. 1, West Manchester; and Vincent Ognibene, 730 Kenmore, NE, Warren.

Two assistants in mechanical engineering are Roy Stoyer, 6 Sylvan Way, Greenville, Penn., and Surapong Tovchakchaikul, 838 Ohio Ave. David Bailey, 5708 Palmyra Rd., Warren, was awarded an assistantship in the department of electrical engineering.

Working as an assistant in the mathematics department will be Thomas Yench, 803 Detroit Ave.

Four courses in General Management Skills will be offered fall quarter at Youngstown State University through the YSU Department of Continuing Education, the American Management Associations Extension Institute (AMAEI), and the YSU School of Business Administration.

The courses are part of a series of 25 AMAEI offerings selected to cover major functions of business areas. In addition to General Management Skills other areas are Managerial Finance and Control, Management and the Computer, and Marketing Management.

Tricks for textbook reading Steps outlined for successful study

Opinion from AAP Student Service

A textbook, properly used, can be invaluable in any course. It provides you with essential course information, reinforces your class lectures, helps clarify and complete notes, supplies visual aids and helps you prepare for exams. The following six steps have proved to be successful in using textbooks, and they can easily be applied to any assignment.

Survey the entire book, glance through the text as a whole: chapter headings and summaries, reading suggestions, quizzes, chronologies, discussion questions, graphs, pictures and diagrams.

Read for the main ideas. The author is trying to convey important ideas in each chapter. These, rather than details, should be your primary concern. Periodically ask yourself, "what is the author trying to convey?"

Question yourself as you read. Ask yourself What, Why, How, Who and When? It will help you grasp the author's main ideas.

Underline and make margin notes. Mark your text freely and underline key statements. Bracket significant phrases and put light check marks around special points. This will give you a clear idea of the most important material when you review. Writing in the margins is helpful. Ask questions, disagree, modify statements, rephrase concepts in your own language. By challenging the author's ideas, you will read actively and you remember what you have read.

Use study guides. These guides often contain a synopsis of the textbook and raise provocative questions that can add to your depth of understanding. Use one as you read, and return to it when you review for your exam. Consult the text supplements mentioned in the author's "suggested readings or bibliography." Often a point that seems obscure in your text can be clarified by a special study of the subject.

Review systematically. Review is an on-going discipline. It is essential to successful study. You review a phrase or sentence by underlining it; you review a page after you have read it by recalling the major points; you reassess the meaning of a chapter by going over your textbook notes; you re-evaluate the material in class by joining in the discussion; you record points of view and interpretations in your notebook as you listen to the professor and other students; you make your final review before the test by re-examining your underlinings, your notes in the margin, lecture materials, and notebooks.

Studying is an essential part of your education and requires practice and concentration. The enjoyment you find in learning, and the retention of the knowledge you acquire, will depend in great part on your developing good study habits.

Republic Steel, Wick Avenue lots added to help ease student parking problems

With the addition of a new student parking lot on Wick Avenue across from Ursuline High School and the Republic Steel lot, YSU students will find over 4,330 student parking spaces available, the largest number in YSU history.

However, student and faculty lots across from Jones Hall will be closed the end of fall quarter when construction begins on the new parking deck east of Wick Avenue.

The total number of student spaces now is 300 more than last year and more than double the number of parking spaces available just six years ago, reports Donald M. Minnis, director of auxiliary services at YSU.

"Not only is there a record number of student spaces but faculty parking has been expanded and now totals 845 spaces as compared to 770 last year. Parking fees for students and faculty will remain the same," said Minnis.

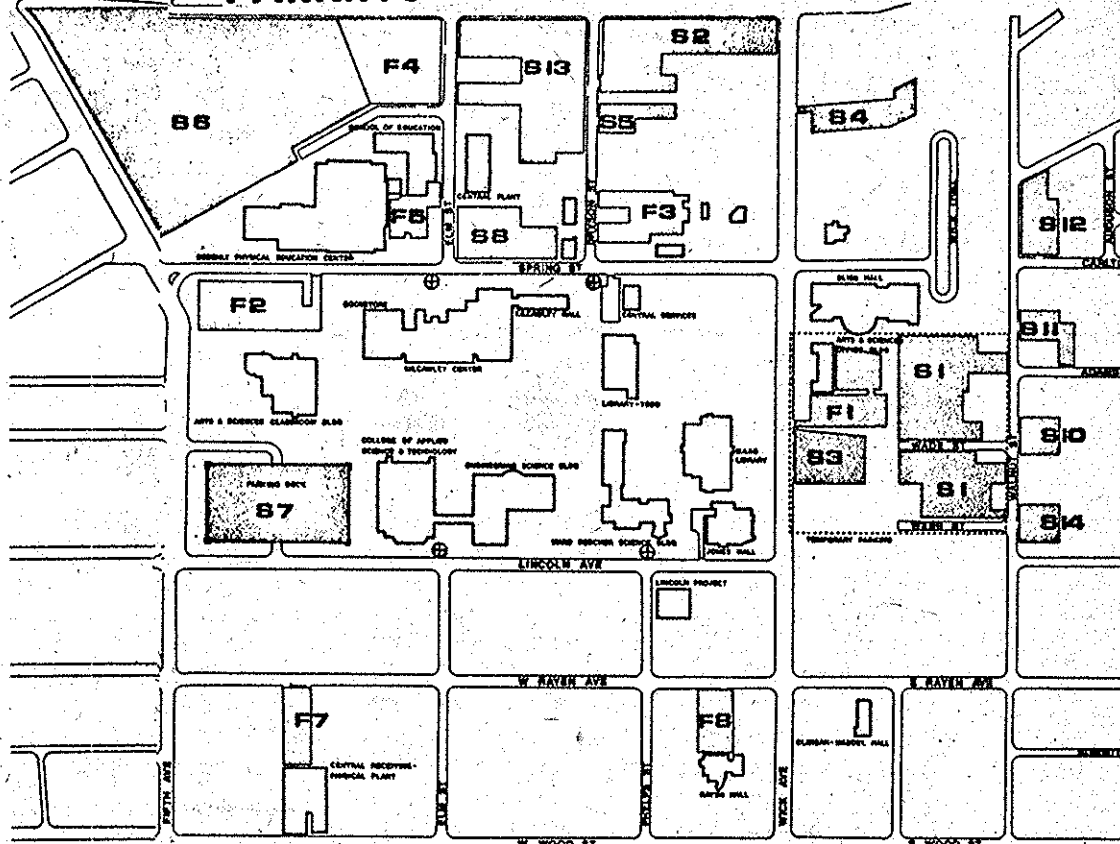

During the first week of school, off-duty Youngstown police will help direct traffic flow around the campus. A new student lot will be open on Wick Avenue across from Ursuline High School and hold 250 cars. A faculty lot adjacent to the new arts and sciences classroom and office building will open at the end of fall quarter and offer 135 extra spaces.

The Republic Steel lot downtown will continue to offer free student parking with a free shuttle bus service that runs to the University every half hour. There is also a special half-rate discount for students riding any buses in the city.

Minnis noted that the 49 acres of parking lot space on campus includes special parking areas for the handicapped in the parking deck and in the lot behind the arts and sciences motel. The parking decks also have been painted with new graphics to help traffic flow.

Advertisements with campus maps showing all student and faculty parking locations will run in local newspapers.

Penguin defense stops Villanova; Tech halts YSU express 38-22

by William Snier

The YSU Penguins successfully opened their 1977 football season with a 13-10 upset victory over the Villanova Wildcats at Wildcat Stadium in Philadelphia.

Villanova, a Division I school which had been ranked as high as 20th in the nation in some pre-season polls, were never able to sustain a scoring drive against a fired-up Penguin defense which limited the Wildcats to only two second-half first downs.

The Penguins, who had gone into the game as a 15-point underdog, avenged a 34-14 pounding they absorbed at Villanova last year.

Villanova drew first blood in the second period after a punt by Chuck Haynali was blocked by Sean Collins at the YSU 13-yard line. The punt was the first one blocked in two years by a YSU opponent.

On first down, Wildcat quarterback John Puleo hit Steve Koenig with an 11-yard scoring pass. The point after made it 7-0 Villanova. The Wildcats added a 30-yard field goal by Gus Fernandez just before the half to conclude their scoring for the afternoon.

Outstanding kicking by Chuck Haynali featured in the YSU scoring as the sophomore booted kicked field goals of 44 and 35 yards as well as adding one extra point. His 44-yard effort broke his YSU record of 42 yards set last season. Haynali also punted for an average of 43.4 yards which was instrumental in keeping the Wildcats bottled up deep in their own territory for most of the afternoon.

Pentz and McCloud elected Penguin captains for 1977

by Allen Rock

Two awesome figures stride to the center of the gridiron, one stands 6 foot 1 inch weighing 200 pounds and wears number 84, the other walks at his side donning the number 50 and filling it with a 5 foot 10 inch 205 pound frame. They meet with the officials and two opposing players, shake hands, flip a coin and then run back to the bench with such intensity that it gets the whole squad in an uproar. These men are senior defensive end Ron Pentz and senior left linebacker Don McCloud.

Don and Ron are a first; you see no other YSU football player before them had the honor they share. Don McCloud and Ron Pentz are the first elected co-captains in the history of YSU football.

Pentz and McCloud share a great responsibility as co-captains. "Our biggest job is to keep togetherness. We serve as the link between the coaches and players. You see many of the younger players come to us

YSU's lone touchdown was set up by a fumble by Wildcat All-America candidate Vince Thompson at the Villanova three yard line. Two plays later quarterback Bill Fink kept the ball himself in a sneak over center for the score that proved to be the final tally of the game.

The game was also sloppily played from a standpoint of fumbles with a total of 14 occurring during the contest. Each team fumbled seven times. The deciding factor, however, was that YSU lost the ball only three times while Villanova fumbled it away six times.

The big story, though, was the defense. The Big "D" limited the explosive Villanova Wishbone to only 153 yards total offense and just nine first downs. Last year Villanova averaged 316 yards total offense per game. Defensively Greg Fitzpatrick led the Penguins with 13 tackles while captain Don McCloud chipped in with 10. Defensive end Tom Harderand tackle Fred Thomas also had outstanding games with Harder getting three quarterback sacks and Thomas recovering a fumble and proving to be a stone wall on the line.

The YSU Penguins suffered their first setback of the season at the hands of the Tennessee Tech Golden Eagles 38-22 Saturday at Cookeville, Tennessee.

Tennessee Tech, a 21-19 victor over the Penguins last year, piled 489 yards total offense against a strong Penguin defense which had limited Villanova to only 153 yards the previous week.

Turnovers plagued the Penguins during the contest as the offense suffered three fumbles and two pass interceptions which led to two Tech scores. A fumble on the YSU 19 yard line led to the Golden Eagles second touchdown, a 16-yard run by quarterback Mike Jenkins. Greg Hamilton's theft of a Keith Snoddy pass at the YSU 23 led to a one yard touchdown run by Jenkins which gave Tennessee Tech a commanding 21-0 lead.

The YSU offense, despite the turnovers, showed improvement as they amassed 359 total yards. Keith Snoddy completed 11 of 18 passes for 175 yards in the loss. Marschell Brumfield appeared to regain the form he showed before his injury last year as he carried 13 times for 107 yards including a 54-yard gallop for the first Penguin score on the opening play of the second quarter. Brumfield also scored on a two-yard plunge later in the second quarter. The other Penguin tally came on a 4-yard run by freshman James Robson on the final play of the game.

The YSU Penguins will attempt to get back on the winning track Saturday as they play host to the Western Illinois Leathernecks at Rayen Stadium. Every fan attending the YSU-WIU game will receive a coupon for a frisbee redeemable at any area Burger King. Game time is 1 p.m.

by Bill Narduzzi

All of you have been busy at work making money and getting ready for the 1977-78 school year or getting rested up for another academic session. Hopefully, you haven't been too busy to follow the progress of your football team. Since reporting to camp on August 17th, a group of your peers (a group which now numbers about 87) has been busy and hard at work trying to make you, your university, and your community proud of YSU athletic accomplishments in football.

On September 10th, the YSU football team certainly "did you proud" in Philadelphia when it pulled off a 13-10 win over a Villanova team which was ranked as high as no. 20 in some Division I pre-season polls.

Last Saturday the team traveled to Cookeville, Tennessee to take on the big, tough, and highly talented Leathernecks of Tennessee Tech. The 38-22 loss doesn't come close to describing what really took place. They scored early (in just two plays). We gave them the ball and they scored again—once but twice! And as the first quarter ends YSU is on the short end of a 21-0 score.

This is a young team. Only six seniors on the entire roster. Before Tech can get their second touchdown, one of the seniors (co-captain Don McCloud) is on the bench with a sprained ankle; a linebacker right out of the middle. Add to that the fact that sophomore Kevin Stutzer, starting safety, is also on the injury list and we have two men from "down the middle" not on the field. We fumbled and threw interceptions. We missed tackles and busted assignments. But this young team regained its poise and composure and put up a real battle. They are a proud group of people and one you can be proud of.

NOW school has started. NOW the students are on campus. YSU plays its first home game this Saturday at Rayen Stadium. NOW we want to see you there. Your I.D. card is your ticket to the game. Put on something red and white and help to dispel the theory that this university has no school spirit. IT'S UP TO YOU to show this team that you want and appreciate a good team by attending (with enthusiasm) this week's game against Western Illinois. IT'S UP TO US to put on a good enough show to get you to return on another Saturday.

We are spending many hours every day to do our job. How about spending several hours on one day to do yours. WE NEED YOU!

Edinboro State places first in Fall YSU Golf Invitational

The YSU golf team played host to twelve teams in the 3rd annual Youngstown Fall Invitational held Monday at the Avalon Lakes Course in Warren.

Edinboro St. took team honors in the classic with an 18-hole total of 368, ten strokes better than runner-up Indiana (PA). YSU took sixth place with an 18-hole total of 392.

Three golfers tied for individual medalist honors with scores of 72: Tom Hantky of Allegheny, John Mazza and Bob Backstedt of Edinboro St. Hantky took top honors in a playoff to clinch the individual title.

Rick Banish was low man for YSU with a 76. Other scores for the Penguins were Mike Kowalczyk 77, Tony Razzano 79, Mark Marriman 79, Don Dean 81, and Joe Bettura 81.

The Penguins return to action Friday when they will participate in the Pitt Invitational at McDonald, Pennsylvania.

Fall tryouts for the YSU Varsity Golf Team will be held at noon, Monday, Oct. 3, at the Avalon Lakes Golf Course near Warren, Ohio.

Chess

Two chess wizards tied for the top spot in the recent chess tournament at Youngstown State University sponsored by YSU's Chess Club.

In the Swiss Tournament five of seven entrants were class A or B players with Ted Halstead, a North Dakota native, and Leopold Sukiennik from Pittsburgh, tying for the lead with 2½ out of a possible 3 points. Brian Takei won the C-entrant division.

The quads each had five players with two sections. Pete Mikina won the first section with a perfect score of three points and Tom Minnick won the second section with two points.

Sbaraglia as sports information head

Dick Sapara, assistant to the sports information director at Kent State University for the last three years, has been named sports information editor at YSU, it was announced today by President John J. Coffelt. A 30-year-old native of Cleveland, Sapara succeeds Greg Sbaraglia, who left YSU in June to become SID at Marquette University.

Commenting on the appointment, YSU Athletic Director Paul Amodio stated, "The credentials and recommendations Sapara brings with him prove that he is more than qualified for the job. His contacts and knowledge of northeast Ohio athletics and sport media people will be a tremendous asset to us."

A 1971 alumnus of Kent State, Sapara brings a wide and varied background to his new post, which will include the conducting of a comprehensive program of public relations for a 16-sport varsity athletic program.

As a student at Parma Padua Franciscan High School, Sapara was a high school sports correspondent for Cleveland's two daily newspapers. He also served as the school's football and basketball statistician.

While an undergraduate student at KSU, he was a general assignment reporter for the school's newspaper and also worked as a sports writer for a weekly newspaper in the Greater Cleveland area. Sapara, who graduated with a BS degree in education, majoring in history and government and minoring in journalism, is a candidate for a M.A. degree in education administration with a minor in athletic administration.

YSU's new sports publicist then joined the faculty at St. Edward High School in Lakewood after graduation from Kent. There he was a social studies teacher, assistant basketball coach, and the school's sports publicity director.

Sapara remained at St. Edward for three years, before joining the sports information staff at Kent in the summer of 1974.

Student Development Solving special problems is their business

by Helene Olexo

So you've finally made that big decision to go to college. To tell the truth, you're scared to death of life on campus. Maybe you've just graduated from high school, or you're a recent veteran. Or perhaps you're a housewife whose kids have all grown. You might even be of another culture and language. Or how about this—you may be blind, chair-ridden, deaf or otherwise handicapped.

You're afraid you won't fit in because of that barrier that separates you from others. Or you may have a special problem in some area of study that you fear will hold you back. Whatever the case may be, there is a solution to your problem and it's right here on campus.

The solution is the Student Development Program, a system of non-professional counseling given by fellow students who have all faced problems similar to yours. It's personal, and it works.

From the minute you walk into the office (which is located in Kilcawley Center) you're made to feel relaxed and welcome. There is an atmosphere of warmth as you are encouraged by the director to "sit down and figure out where you've been, where you are now, and where you want to go." Depending on your situation, you are then assigned a peer counselor, a fellow student, who works with you personally as often as you need it, whether it be on a monthly, weekly, or even a daily basis. You need never feel lonely or without a friend, because your counselor becomes that friend when you need him.

If additional help is needed by other offices or agencies, your counselor doesn't just refer you and send you on your way. He makes the contacts himself, insuring that you're "plugged in" beforehand. After that he stays with you until you get the results you desire.

If your problem is a unique one, such as a physical handicap, you are soon assured that there are many services available to fill your special needs. For instance, through Student Development a blind person is given access to readers, textbook tapings and Talking Books, as well as made familiar with the campus on a personal basis. Motorized wheelchairs are also available for use on the grounds. Whatever your handicap, Student Development does its best to break down the barriers and make campus life easier.

Maybe you simply need a tutor, or help in developing your reading or writing skills, or basic study habits. The point is, no matter what the problem, large or small, the Student Development Center is available to you any time you need it.

Resident advisors receive their training for upcoming year of Kilcawley dorm life

Resident Advisors of Kilcawley Men's Residence Hall received their training and orientation session on September 19, conducted by Richard Eplawy, Business Manager for Auxiliary Services.

The five Kilcawley RA's and the Resident Director, John Palotts, all students, are responsible for keeping things running smoothly and enforcing regulations on the floor they are assigned at the dorm. Each year five RA's are chosen in the spring to assume duties in the fall. Three of the RA's have previously held this position.

"For their orientation today we brought in the RA's and Resident Director to go over procedures and regulations. Dr. Letchworth of the Counseling Center went over counselling techniques with them in the morning. He gave them examples and put them in a situation. He also taught them how to listen since part of the RA job is to help students with problems," said Eplawy.

"Dr. McBriarty, dean of Student Affairs, will give them an overview of Student Affairs and Dr. Bertelsen, assistant dean of Student Affairs, will speak to them on discipline, this afternoon," he said.

At the present time only men reside in the Kilcawley Residence Hall, but there are plans to make room on the second floor for women after the psychology department moves from their offices there, Eplawy reports.

Greek system opens doors of experience for students

by Cynthia Mould

Greeks are on the rise and making a comeback at YSU. More and more, students are realizing the unique opportunities fraternities and sororities can offer, whether a student is beginning or continuing his college career.

YSU's 11 fraternities and five sororities are organizations of approximately 500 men and women like yourself, in search of lasting friendships and active involvement with the University. The Greek system encourages active participation in community social service activities.

Students of all class ranks are welcome into the Greek system as long as they are full time students and in good standing with the University.

A "rush" period is set aside at the beginning of each quarter in order to acquaint students with the Greek system. During rush each individual fraternity and sorority offers a series of parties where interested individuals can meet the members of the particular organizations.

During the first week of school a booth is manned in Kilcawley Center arcade to answer questions and to supply more information about each fraternity and sorority.

Considering the benefits, the cost of being a Greek is not expensive. Dues for most fraternities and sororities average about $150 per year. Living away from home is another experience that Greek life offers. Rent in a Greek house is considerably lower than anywhere else on or off campus. The number of people living in particular houses varies, depending on the fraternity or sorority.

Becoming involved in the Greek system also enables the student to participate in campus activities such as interfraternity council and pan-hellenic council.

While Greek life may not be for everyone, fraternity and sorority membership does provide an outstanding experience for those who take advantage.

Here's what the Jambar has to say about the IRON WORKS

A few years ago Woody Allen produced a very funny comedy entitled Sleeper. The story concerned a young man placed in suspended animation and awoken a couple of centuries later. His experiences are not unlike those upon entering the Iron Works, Youngstown's newest disco.

When approaching the building my thoughts constantly came back to the phrase, "hole in the wall." This is probably because of the age of the building. (Located on 422 towards Girard, the Iron Works is the renovated original office building for Youngstown Sheet and Tube Brier Hill Works. The building is over 75 years old.)

Upon entering, however, the feeling is like that of Woody Allen's Sleeper: awakening, shock, disbelief, and incredulity. A number of new, modern, and unique sensations immediately assail you.

I did not realize which of my senses first noticed the change, my eyes or ears. With a lighting system, soon to include laser beams, and a sound system costing $25,000, it is possible to imagine this overwhelming experience to be similar to that of entering the "orgasmtron" from Sleeper.

After becoming adjusted to the atmosphere, I took time to break down my instincts and discovered that there was an almost subliminal pull to dance and move with the music. The two dance floors provide more than adequate space, and the choice of music was good disco sound, but not as corny as most disco music. Each evening the DJ's will change allowing for a variance in the sounds.

The drinks are most reasonable. Beer is sold in pitchers at two dollars for a 64 oz. pitcher. Wine coolers cost only two dollars for a 32 oz. carafe. These are the only drinks sold, and there are no waitress or pressure to purchase drinks.

Security is heavy, but not noticeable. There are two guards at the door, a completely lighted parking facility, and any loiterers are questioned. This is not near my residence, and it is in a very low crime area.

The disco will only be open on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Any other day will be open for private parties.

KCPB packs YSU year with entertainment for all

What do white-water rafting, November New Year's Eve Party, a spring-break extravaganza to Florida, a Pop Art Exhibit, Oblio's Coffeeshouse, "The Boob Tube," Livingston Taylor, Shampoo and the Kentucky Derby all have in common? These are all just some of the events and activities that are planned each year by the Kilcawley Center Program Board.

The large variety of events planned by the Board is no accident. They program with the philosophy, "There must be something for everyone." In this way, KCPB programming meets the needs of a large and varied student body and introduces them to new experiences and adventures.

"The program board is comprised of over 50 students," report Jackie Lyn Caventer, chairperson of KCPB. Student contribute ideas on programming, advertising and financing of events. They work closely with the Kilcawley Center staff and together make the programming decisions.

Those 50 students make up eight different programming committees. And each of the eight committees plans a specific type of events. The committees include:

Art Gallery
Recreation
Social
Pub Programming
Video-tape
Coffeeshouse
Film

To become a member of KCPB - the most active student group on campus - just stop in the staff offices on the second floor of Kilcawley Center and ask for Kevin Fahey. Membership is open to all interested students.

Skeggs Lectures include Jack Anderson

The Special Lecture Series recently announced its schedule for the upcoming Fall and Winter quarters 1977-78.

The Series provides the University with noted speakers. All programs are open to the public, and the admission is limited on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Funds for the Special Lecture Series are derived from student general fees. The Skeggs Lectures are endowed by the Skeggs Foundation. This foundation was originated in memory of the late Leonard T. Skeggs Sr., who played a vital role in the founding of the University. The Skeggs Series was established in 1966 and brings to campus outstanding speakers who are authorities in their fields.

Five lectures are scheduled, the last one to be presented on behalf of the Skeggs Foundation.

The first lecture is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 5, in Kilcawley Center's Multi-purpose Room. Sir Robert Mark, recently retired head from Scotland Yard, will be the speaker. He will compare the British and American criminal justice systems and discuss world-wide terrorism.

The second lecture in the series will feature Edward Albee, who will speak at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 18, in Kilcawley Center's Multi-purpose room.

Albee is widely regarded as America's foremost contemporary dramatist and is the author of Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolf and A Delicate Balance. Albee's lecture offers theatre-lovers the opportunity to hear how great plays are conceived and developed in the author's mind, then delivered to the stage.

The third lecture will take place at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 24, in Kilcawley Center's Multi-purpose Room. Jack Anderson will be the speaker. Anderson, a syndicated columnist who received the Pulitzer prize, is one of America's top investigative reporters. He was at the bottom of the biggest exposes to come out of Washington, including the CIA assassination plots and the Watergate cover-up.

U.S. Senator Daniel P.

Moynihan is the fourth speaker in the Special Lecture Series. Moynihan will bring his talent as an orator, statesman and historian to bear on the problems of the state and country. Moynihan, has held high-level positions under four presidents, and was one of the most colorful and effective UN ambassadors in history.

The fifth lecture is funded by the Skeggs foundation and hosts Dr. Carl Sagan as its speaker. Head of the Laboratory for Planetary Studies at Cornell University, Sagan is a leading astronomer and expert on extra-terrestrial exploration. He was also a member of the NASA team that landed the Viking Explorer on Mars. This lecture will take place at 8:30 p.m. Monday, March 6, in Kilcawley Center's Multi-purpose Room.

Writing lab offers free aid to needy students

"It's an informal, exciting, active place" said Nancy McCracken, director. No, this exciting place is not Kilcawley Center but the YSU Writing Lab. And even better than Kilcawley, for everything at the Writing Lab is free.

The lab, located in Engineering Science 210-211, provides expert help with any problem a student may have in any writing situation. Paragraph and theme organization, sentence structure, outlining, punctuation, vocabulary, methods of research, spelling and more are covered in lab practice. The lab does not help a student to prepare particular class assignments or themes, but does allow him to work out particular problems that would apply to all his writings.

Many different kinds of materials are available in the lab for student use. Books of all types, cassette tapes and filmstrips are offered, and private tutors are present for more intensive help. 551 are advised to visit the Writing Lab by their instructors. But enrollment in a basic composition class or any other English class is not a prerequisite in attending the lab.

The Writing Lab is a service to the University as a whole. It provides help not only in correcting writing deficiencies, but also in writing resumes, letters to prospective employers, and any other written material.

There is no charge for Writing Lab services, but an appointment is necessary to attend the lab. To make an appointment, call or stop by the lab rooms in the Engineering Science Building or call Nancy McCracken in the English Department. The lab is open Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

Joy DeSalvo and Jerry Phaus are the lab instructors.

Where do I go? What do I do?

The 16 orientation leaders will be available from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in four locations around campus to help students with any problems on Sept. 21-23.

The orientation leaders will be located at the entrance to Kilcawley from Spring Street, the first floor arcade of Kilcawley, the north lobby of CAST and the lobby by the planetarium in Ward Beecher. Contact them if you have trouble finding classrooms or have any other campus related problems.

Help Hotline

Have you ever attempted to put together a puzzle, when one of the pieces was missing? If so, you have an idea of what a life crisis feels like - no matter how hard you try, the pieces of your life just won't come together.

The solution: call Help Hotline, Inc. You will be greeted by knowledgeable, concerned listeners.

Hotline is scheduling a fall training class that you could be part of. Classes will run from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. two nights a week for ten weeks, and information is available at 747-2696.

Bob Hope begins hunt for talent on campuses

Bob Hope, certainly one of the nation's top entertainers, has announced a college talent search program to be conducted in conjunction with the National Entertainment and Campus Activities Association (NECAA) and the Kilcawley Center Program Board.

The purpose of the program will be "to provide hope for many young artists who are striving to 'be somebody' in the field of entertainment." The Bob Hope Search for the Top in Collegiate Talent will involve a nationwide search which will begin on over 900 NECAA member campuses. Each campus winner will participate in an area competition, then a sectional competition and finally a national competition. The final 8-10 finalists will appear on a Bob Hope television special in February, 1978.

The competition is open to any full-time student pursuing a degree at the time of application in the quarter of competition. The student's act must fall into one of eight categories: Pop/try, Folk, Jazz, Classical, Dance and Other (comedian, magician, etc.). The competition is not open to professional entertainers.

The chairperson of the YSU Talent Search will be Jane Moore, Chairperson of the KCPB Entertainment Committee. The campus contest will be held on Oct. 10 and northeast Ohio section competition on Oct. 29 at Hiram College.

Final details are still being worked out. Applications, rules, regulations and qualifications will be made available soon.

Co-captains

activities such as Student Council Key Club and Hi-Y.

McCloud, known as "Moonie" to his friends, is a 1973 alumni of Cardinal Mooney High School, where he was a stalwart on the defensive unit. "Moonie" also was active in track and the ski club.

Don's father, Donald McCloud, Sr., played football for YSU under the legendary "Dike" Beede from 1952-54, while Ron's brother, Cole, was a center for YSU from 1968-72, giving snaps to former Youngstown great Ron Jaworski.

So by luck both men followed members of their family and decided to bring their talents to the YSU campus. And as in high school, neither player was content to "just play football," but Ron and "Moonie" lead an active academic life at YSU.

Ron is majoring in Advertising/Public Relations with a minor in marketing while Don is a physical education major and carries a minor in Business Administration.

But more important, co-captains Pentz and McCloud are active members of YSU's student council, with "Moonie" servng his third quarter on council and Ron his first quarter. However, both players are quick to add that the president and vice-president of Kilcawley Dormitory are also football players. They like to point this out to show people that football players are people that get involved.

Ron and Don don't fit the stereotype of the "typical" football player. At YSU "everybody likes to have a good time, and football players are just noticed more," says Pentz, "but the football player at YSU is a different kind of person. You see, Coach Narduzzi keeps us in line and tries to build character as well as a type of family unit," Ron adds.

Ron and "Moonie" show that even on the field the "typical" football player needs some knowledge. The co-captains happen to head a defense that could show the opposition a possible 487 different looks. This is not a defense that is learned by just anybody.

Pentz and McCloud are quick to attribute much of their success to head coach Bill Narduzzi. "You just can't say enough about Coach Narduzzi. He makes everyone feel wanted; you naturally want to do your best for him," states Pentz. "The whole coaching staff is a great bunch of men," adds McCloud.

Connoisseur's guide rates food ; informs freshmen of gastro delights

by Bill Snier

Fall quarter has begun and it's time again to answer the pressing question that bothers all students every day of their lives on campus: Where am I going to eat lunch or how do I satisfy my lust for food and excitement at the same time?

Last year, the Jambar ran a survey on where students prefer to eat on campus and why they would want to eat there. If you remember correctly, Har-dees' proved to be the choice of a majority of students.

This year we would like to do something different regarding the individual establishments. A rating system based on the star system will be used to determine the good and bad points of each place. The four rated categories are location, atmosphere, food and service.

A four-star rating means top notch, three stars means good, two stars means all right (some people like it and others could care less) and one star means permissible for human consumption but not highly recommended.

This rating scale is dedicated to the in-coming freshmen who have yet to experience the joys of eating on the YSU campus. The Pub was not rated in this survey because its food is imported from outside sources.

By the way, everybody got a four star rating for location in the survey. What the heck! They're all located on campus anyway.

If you wish to comment on the following ratings, send your cards and letters to the Munchy Monster in care of the Jambar.

PLACE	ATMOSPHERE	SERVICE	FOOD
Hardees	***	**	*
A great place to meet your friends and sit and talk.
Burger King	**	****	***
Best Hamburger on campus if you care about hamburgers.
Red Barn	**	**	*
You're always guaranteed a seat.
Jiblab	***	****	***
It's hard to rate hot dogs: nobody else serves them.
Wicker Basket	****	**	**
A nice quiet sit-down restaurant: meet your favorite administrator there.
King Kong	**	***	**
You can play pinball while you eat.
The Italian Village	***	***	****
They're new in front of Tony's: any service puts them one step above the old Yellow Sub shop.
Inner Circle	***	*	****
The food is good, especially the pasta, when/if you get it.
Pogo's Pub	**	***	***
Didn't think they had food, did ya?
Brief Eater (formerly The Hoagie Stop)	**	***	**
The restaurant has a catchy name.

NEWMAN is the campus ministry of the Roman Catholic tradition and is present on campuses across the nation. Here, as elsewhere, there is strong cooperation in the ecumenical COOPERATIVE CAMPUS MINISTRY. Many things are done together; some are done separately. Campus ministry establishes relationships with many facets of YSU life, cooperating in shaping values and in providing intellectual preparedness. The Gospel calls for response, reflection and service. Toward this end, campus ministry develops a variety of programs. Hope you share at least one.

NEWMAN STUDENT ORGANIZATION is YSU students gathered to foster religious, academic and social development. It designs opportunities for personal growth. Further information from NSO President, Theresa Popovich (799-0241) or at the Center.
