Jackiss notes that November 1 was the deadline for submitting regular GBR courses; which he next month and to have a list of the courses within each domain by early winter. Continue working on courses for intensive and captorae certification (and) a few have been submitted). Bob Hogue, director of Writing across the Carricolum, is the key person to see if you need models or information about writing-intensive component; there is a committee for the critical thinking domain

Pat Sarro: Will there be workshops about fulfilling the critical thinking requirement?

Jenkins: The thrust is that the critical thinking component is to be met within the discipline. The committee will talk with those who need help. See Bruce Waller or Tom Shipka if you have questions about the literature to support assignments in critical thinking.

David Porter: In the Q2S student information booklet, there appears to be no equivalency guide for fulfilling current area requirements except English 550/551, HSC 590, and activity courses.

Jeskins: The list is incomplete at this point; not all courses for the new general education have been submitted and approved. A new advising handbook will be distributed after new courses are added. Students who are already at YSU do not have to convert to the new system for general education, and I recommend that they continue to meet the old area requirements.

Porter: What about transfer students coming in next fall? How will we evaluate whether a student has met our GER or intensive requirements?

Jackias: There is a transfer models for all state institutions. We must accept 36 hours from the module if students have them. We then model strated in state institutions or a category such as Personal and Social Repossibility. Thus, stateatus may have to pick up some intensive or other concess in addition to the courses they thank in the courses in the other institution.

INTEGRATED TECHNOLOGIES, UNIVERSITY OUTREACH, LIBRARY, ACADEMIC RESEARCH, STUDENT ACADEMIC AFFAIRS, STUDENT ACADEMIC GRIEVANCE, HONORS, AND ACADEMIC EVENTS COMMITTEES: No reports.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS: None

NEW BUSINESS:

David Porter: Has there been a formal request for the Charter and Bylaws Committee to clarify how general education gets altered or amended from the floor of the Senate? It seems as if the rulings from the last four or five meetings have not laid a clear path for people interested in revisiting the GER document

Morrison: No, not specifically, but the Senate Executive Committee would be happy to make the referral. Porter requested that the referral be made; Morrison noted that it would be done.

ADJOURNMENT: The meeting adjourned at 4:31 p.m.
